Vet School Construction
Depends On Legislature

RALEIGH (AP) - President William C. Friday of the University of North Carolina system told North Carolina legislators earlier this week that until the legislature is willing to put up $9 million to get started on a building program to school of veterinary medicine can be opened in the state.

Friday told the legislature's joint Higher Education Committee that the veterinary school planned at North Carolina State University will cost an estimated $35 million and $9 million is the "absolute minimum" to get started, "It is that is forthcoming, we can't get started," he said.

The advisory committee did not recommend anything for building the vet school in its proposed budget.

John Sanders, UNCS's vice president for long range planning, told the legislature North Carolina is now spending about $40,000 a year training about 17 students in veterinary schools in other states. He said, the state builds its own school, it will cost about $4 to $5 million a year to operate and will have a capacity of about 300 students.

He said present plans call for opening the school in 1981.

Members of the committee questioned Friday and other UNC officials about overlapping between the university system and the state's community college system.

In answer to a question from Sen. Fred D. Alexander, D-Mecklenburg, Sanders said that, although the veterinary school would be located at North Carolina State University in Raleigh, plans call for carrying on some veterinary research and preveterinary medical training at A and T State University in Greensboro.

Friday recalled a study by the UNC Board of Governors had concluded that the state does not need a state university in the area.

SNEA Sponsors Conference

By Carlese Blackwell

The annual Spring Student Teaching Conference was held for student teachers Tuesday afternoon in the lobby of Bluford Library. Attending this conference which was sponsored by the Student National Educational Association (SNEA), were cooperating teachers and department advisors.

The conference opened with remarks and a speech of welcome by Dr. Frissell Jones, coordinator of student teaching.

Following Jones' speech, an introduction of cooperating teachers and supervisors was given.

The major purpose of the conference commenced as student teachers, cooperating teachers and supervisors formed small groups for workshop planning. These workshops were beneficial in several ways.

First of all, in these workshops, department advisors were given a chance to meet the teachers whose students would be working with. Next, students who could not meet with their cooperating teachers at a previous date, got a chance to become acquainted with them in the workshop. Finally, cooperating teachers from different regions were able to familiarize themselves with the curriculum of other school systems.

Following the conference, Jones said that he was quite pleased with the turnout of both cooperating teachers and student teachers.

Court Judge Elreta Alexander are A&T graduates. Williams said they are concerned about the public's image of A&T.

"I have never seen a student from Bennett College in court for shoplifting," said Williams. He said an average of two to three Guilford College and UNCG students were arrested a month for shoplifting.

"When I first started hearing students say they were arrested for shoplifting," Williams said, "Something has to be done. Both Williams and District
Security Police Force Experiences Shortage

By Vanessa Spells

"There's definitely a shortage of campus police said Norwood McMillan," director of campus security. There are exactly 16 campus police, who are expected to patrol the vast campus area."

There are three security officers on each shift, one patrol car, and radio equipment which is in the process of being updated by the budget of the physical plant.

Approximately seventy-five incidents are reported monthly which include trespassing, breaking and entering, vandalism, assaults, and larceny—being the most reoccurring incident McMillan said.

Most incidents that occur are done to students by other students and most information received by campus police is obtained from the students.

A campus security officer was recently placed into the union and, since then, there has been a decrease in incidents, McMillan reported.

Aside from the 16 campus police there are five security guards who really don't have the police powers but aid in patrolling the buildings. McMillan said, in order to run the campus effectively he needs approximately eight other policemen. He said one is just needed for pursuing leads to finish solving cases. Cases are never closed until solved no matter how long it takes, McMillan said.

Steam System Will Be Re-evaluated

By Rudi Noble, Jr.

While walking across campus, you probably have often wondered what causes the steam to escape from the manholes.

Is it really that hot down there?

Gerard E. Gray, director of the physical plant, says the vapor seen coming from manholes results from cold air contacting condensate (water condensed from steam) leaking from expansion joints and other places.

Actually steam transmission lines serving the campus include two pipes. One carries steam to heat the buildings while the other carries condensate back to the heating plant to be reheated so that the heating process can be repeated in a continuous cycle.

Gray also said that a consulting engineering firm is presently in the process of surveying the steam transmission system and will report its recommendation for correcting the problem to include repairs or replacement. Its recommendations will be put into effect. The firm's surveillance should be completed within a month's time.

The Navy, though few black college men realize it, can be one of the fastest places for a smart young man to get ahead. Responsibility comes quickly at sea, and it's real responsibility. An officer less than a year out of college may be in charge of thirty men; after just two years he may run a division of fifty or more. In four years, a Navy officer can have more managerial experience than most civilians have midway through their careers.

The Navy has officer programs in Aviation and Nuclear Propulsion, in Supply, Law, Medicine, and many others. Talk it over with your Navy recruiter or call 800-841-8000 toll free. Early responsibility. Black or white, it's what being a Navy officer is all about.

How Does SGA Rate?

The performance of the Student Government Association, especially that of the present administration, leaves a lot to be desired. SGA President Tony Tyson has announced a student body meeting for February 16. All that can be said about that announcement is—it’s about time.

Student body meetings at A&T for the past four years have been about as scarce as natural gas. They (student body meetings) are held every now and then; and, in most cases, it is more than now.

There have been only a few cultural events sponsored by the present administration, the most recent being Georgia State Senator Julian Bond. That event probably would not have occurred had it not been for the North Carolina Fellows who were originators of the plan. They co-sponsored Bond’s speaking engagement.

Social events have also been a rare occurrence on this campus this academic year. Though some other events have been planned, we all know how some plans can fall through.

But social events should not be the main concern that this writer has in connection with the SGA. From this writer’s point of view, little has been accomplished since the cafeteria “boycott” of last semester. And if the same problems exist now as they did then, the “boycott” cannot be listed among the SGA’s accomplishments.

This editorial is not interested in downing any particular person or group. Its purpose is to make a few observations. The fact is the present administration’s accomplishments have been few!

The student body itself is not without its faults either, but most of the attention is focused on the president and his administration. He and his staff were elected by the majority of those students voting. When things are not working as they should, then the student body is also partially at fault.

As stated earlier, accomplishments have been few. If you were to rate the present administration on a scale of minus ten to positive ten, what would its rating be?

Celebrate Daily

In the past, we, as Black people, took pride in celebrating Black History week. This year the Black History celebration has been extended throughout the month of February.

It’s nice that we believe in something but why should we wait until a certain week or month to express ourselves? If we are truly proud of being Black, why can’t we show it daily?

The knowledge of our past should live in our hearts every second of the day. It should not be something turned on like a water faucet.

Attend Student Body Meeting

Dear Aggies:

I am encouraging all Aggies to come out and take an active part in your student body meeting Wednesday, February 16.

We are trying to communicate better on campus by changing the location of the student body meeting from Harrison Auditorium to the Student Union Ballroom, 7:00 p.m. - 9:00 p.m.

I am sure that your participation will be most significant in expressing yourself, influences, values, events, and helpful suggestions.

As a student body, we want to be really free, to expand our minds and our hearts.

There exists a need to express myself to others, to allow others to see my image and to accept or reject it just as I have...

Who we are today is reaching toward who we will be tomorrow. What we appear to be today and the way we will appear to be tomorrow will change.

In the subject of attending the student body meeting, it is you who must choose. It is you who must be. It is you who must live.

Thank You,
Tony Tyson,
SGA President

It’s nice that we believe in something but why should we wait until a certain week or month to express ourselves? If we are truly proud of being Black, why can’t we show it daily?

The knowledge of our past should live in our hearts every second of the day. It should not be something turned on like a water faucet.

A&T and the other Black colleges should always stress Black history. We students are so unconcerned that the fact that A&T does not offer a Black history major does not bother us.

If you want to major in Black history, don’t bother to apply at A&T because there is no such major here. However, A&T is considered one of the best Black colleges in North Carolina.

Yes, we are proud Black people. We proved this in the past by celebrating our past one week in last February. This year we have the opportunity to prove ourselves for a whole month.
An appeal could affect at least 10 other states which the U.S. Office of Civil Rights in Atlanta says face court action in connection with their own colleges and university systems.

Louis Bryant, higher education director of the civil rights office, identifies them as: Louisiana, Mississippi, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Maryland, North Carolina, Virginia and Florida.

Thomas W. Steele, UT-Nashville's lawyer in the nine-year old case, told Dr. Edward J. Boling, UT president in Knoxville in a letter Monday that "I have no hesitation...of recommending to our board of trustees, that Judge Gray's decision be appealed."

The judge cited figures showing the student body of UTN was more than 85 percent Black while the student body of UT was more that 5 percent white.

The UT trustees meet Saturday in Knoxville.

Steele cited several previous Supreme Court opinions to claim Judge Gray went too far, including some public school desegregation cases following the court's 1971 decision outlawing segregated classes.

In a case involving Charlotte and Mecklenburg County, schools, Steele wrote, "The Supreme Court of the United States has made it clear that not even in the public secondary school systems does the Constitution prohibit predominantly Black schools." Other lawyers have compared Judge Gray's order in the UTN-TSU case as akin to a busing order for the two colleges.

Steele also cited a case in which the Supreme Court ruled that "The problem of desegregating higher education must be dealt with on a statewide, rather than on a school-by-school basis."

Southern Blacks Organize To Stop White Takeover

ATLANTA (AP) - Black landowners in the South have organized in an effort to stop whites and big business from buying up agricultural land at low prices.

They called for more federal aid to Black landowners so they can keep their land.

Members of the National Association of Landowners held their first convention last week, charging that the federal bureaucracy has set up barriers between the Black landowner and federal assistance.

Joseph F. Brooks, director of the Atlanta-based Emergency Land Fund, said that 330,000 acres of Black-owned land are being sold to whites each year.

He said the convention, which attracted about 300 landowners from seven southern states, represented only about 30,000 acres of land.

"That's reflective of the relative non-ownership of Blacks," Brooks said, noting that Blacks own about three-tenths of one percent of all privately held land in the United States.

Blacks are losing their land because of a lack of local and federal support, said Brooks, because big corporations are buying up agricultural land at low prices and because of problems they encounter with federal agencies, convention participants said.

They said the National Association of Landowners hopes to exert pressure on the federal government to cut some of the red tape.

Dr. Aaron Henry, president of the Mississippi NAACP, said U.S. Department of Agriculture agencies, particularly the Farmers Home Administration, seem to be geared directly against the possibility of Black citizens owning and retaining their land.

When asked if the FHA is likely to be more helpful to Blacks under Agriculture Secretary Robert B. Bergland, Henry said, "Let's all show a bit of enthusiasm and hope so. We feel he has empathy with us. But we are very concerned that the structure surrounding him and the amount of red tape already there will make it a very difficult situation."

Gloria Cousar of the Joint Center for Political Studies in Washington said the problem of Blacks being forced off their farmland in the South has contributed in a direct way to the nation's urban problems.

When housing and agricultural assistance don't come through for the Black farmer, people are forced to go on the welfare rolls, she said.

The struggle is not limited to Black farmers, but extends to Mexican-American landowners as well, said Clay Cochran, president of Rural America Inc.

"The main thing that has been missing up to now was this kind of organization," he said. "Big agri-business" main weapon over the years has been the lack of organization on the other side."

There will be a Student Body meeting Wednesday, February 16 in the Student Union ballroom starting at 7:00 p.m.

The Love I Want

I only want one Love, just one.
Some understanding soul.
Who knows my moods and attitudes.
And loves me, part and whole--
A Love who, when I am sad and blue,
Will take me by the hand.
And make me feel with friendly zeal
That she can understand;
And who, when I'm in merry mood.
A doze minutes after
Will not repress my foolishness
But join in all my laughter--
A love who gives her best to me
And who with stubborness demands
She sees the best in me
And will accept nothing less.
I only want one love.
Just this one will amply do:
A love when I'm in need,
A love in thought,.in creed;
In other words . . . just you!

Programs Offer Experience

Foreign students from across the state met Thursday for North Carolina’s first “International
Student Day at the State Capital.”

More than 250 students from 21 colleges, universities and business and trade schools participated in the activities.

“The program is designed to offer an experiential learning opportunity for international students across the state to see their state government in action,” says Jill Stritter, director of the International Center at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. “It also allows them an opportunity to meet international students from other schools.”

Following the welcome address the international students saw a film, “Voices of the People” and heard a presentation on the legislative process by the UNC-CH Institute of Government. A North Carolina
Legislators panel featuring Senators Charles E. Vickery and McNeil Smith and Rep. H.
Michaux, Jr., completed the morning’s activities.

In addition to attending the regular legislative session, the students had a chance to tour the Legislative Building and the Governor’s Mansion in the afternoon.

North Carolina was the second state to hold a state capital day for its foreign students. Georgia began a similar program four years ago under Jimmy Carter’s administration.

The following N.C. schools participated: Belmont College,
Sacred Heart College, Appalachian State University,
University of North Carolina at Charlotte, University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill;
Davidson College, N. C. Central University, Duke University,
Durham Technical Institute,
Bennett College, Greensboro

Carolina at Greensboro, East
Carolina University, Meredith

Bears May Be The Team To Beat In Tournament

By Joseph Foust

The following is a preview of the MEAC Tournament, scheduled for February 24-26 at the Greensboro Coliseum. The tournament offers a composite view of all the teams in the conference. Morgan State, Howard University, South Carolina State, North Carolina Central, and North Carolina A&T are just a few of the teams. Morgan State seems like the team to beat in the conference. Morgan State has the league's most outstanding player in Eric "The Pencil" Evans. Evans leads the MEAC in scoring, and his defense is a question mark on the court. Although Evans represents the heart of the Bear attack, Morgan State is not a one man show. Anthony Young, a rugged forward from Brooklyn, New York, has the strongest inside game in the conference. Young has an assortment of inside moves and is a dominant force on the offensive and defensive boards. The guards, Maurice Jennings and Duncan McGriff, are quick with good shooting touch. Six-foot swingman Jim German gives the Bears firepower off the bench.

MORGAN

Talent-wise, the Bison can match any of the top teams in the conference. Dorian Dent, 6-10 center, has come a long way to become the conference's best inside player. It is possible that Dent could be the player of the year. South Carolina State plays excellent defense. But the team is limited on offense. Although Dent is sharpshooting forward Edward Roper takes pressure off the defense. Stan Melvin has a good outside shooting touch. The team is++

SOUTH CAROLINA STATE

The Eagles, under the guidance of Sterlin Holt, feature the league's most potent fast break. Floyd Monroe and guard Jim King, Central is a well-balanced team. Morgan State appears to be the sleeper in this year's tournament. The Bulldogs have a balanced attack, and the top backcourt players in the conference are Bruce Brown and guard David "Hollywood" Whitehead. Gaskins is a fine outside shooter. But his inside game is solid. Whitehead is the conference's best outside shooter. The Bison bench is fair.

NORTH CAROLINA CENTRAL

THE CHALLENGE

Here's the challenge. You'll need a watch and a pencil. Start with number 1 in the center of the ribbon. Then, as quickly as you can, cross out every number, one at a time in numerical order. When you've reached number 60, check your watch. If it took you less than three minutes, you've met the challenge.

When there's a challenge, quality makes the difference.

We hope you have some fun with the challenge. There's another challenge we'd like to offer you, too. The Pabst challenge:

We welcome the chance to prove the quality of our beer. We challenge you to taste and compare Pabst Blue Ribbon to any other premium beer. You'll like Pabst better. Blue Ribbon quality means the best tasting beer you can get. Since 1844 it always has.

PABST. Since 1844. The quality has always come through.
A&T Defeats Quakers-Eagles

By Dennis Bryant

The A&T Aggiettes, led by Charlene Henderson with 20 points and Cheryl Armwood with 27 points and 26 rebounds, upped their record to 11-2 with a pair of victories over Guilford College and North Carolina Central.

The Aggiettes used a balanced attack to score a 63-50 victory over crosstown rival Guilford. The Aggiettes, after being behind 8-6 in the first half, spurred 8-0 to go ahead for good at 16-10, with Natalie Rogers leading the way.

The Aggiettes led 24-17 at the 10:17 mark and the Aggiettes, were without their leading scorer, Coach Joyce Spurriell inserted Henderson with 6:20 to go. The flashy guard scored seven consecutive baskets as the Aggiettes jumped to a 31-21 lead.

The Aggiettes were never in serious trouble in the contest. By Moody scored ten first half points as the Aggiettes led at the half 37-24.

The second half, the Quakers of Guilford went on a 10-2 spurt after being down 49-34. With the insertion of Marnie Jones, the guard scored the next six points to keep the game in the hands of the Aggiettes at 57-50.

Guilford was unable to score the rest of the contest because of the Aggiettes' pressure. The Aggiettes scored the last six points to go with the victory at 63-50. Once again the Aggiettes played a good game of team ball.

On Tuesday, the Aggiettes were able to come from behind with the victory. The final score was 83-74, their biggest margin.

The Aggiettes were led by Charlene Henderson with 22 points, Cheryl Armwood with 20 points and 15 rebounds, and Trina Graves with ten points. The Eagles were led by Yvonne Perkins with 22 points and 15 rebounds, and Juanita Gibbons with 20 points. The Eagles' record dropped to 4-7, while the Aggiettes slimmed their record to 11-2.

The Aggiettes were off completely in the first half. They connected on only 15 of 42 field goals but led at the half 35-31. But the lead slipped away. Coach Spurriell's case of the bench hasn't paid off in the last few games. The bench reserves have been outscored 59-34 in the last three games. But the starters have been able to gain the lead back. This may or may not happen always.

In the final 10 minutes of the second half, the Aggiettes outscored the Eagles 36-18 to prevent the NCCU-Eagles from sweeping a pair of victories. Charlene scored 14 second-half points while teammate Armwood scored 10 second half points.

Henderson scored the last six points in the contest as the Aggiettes led at the 57-50 mark and the Aggiettes, saw to it that the early crowd of 500 fans got their money's worth.

The Pencil' Visits Aggieland

By Craig R. Turner

"The Pencil" is coming. Yes, "the Pencil" is coming. Aggie fans will get their Jon Jones appreciation opportunity to look at John Evans, the MEAC's top player in 6'-10 Eric Evans tonight in the Greensboro Coliseum as the Morgan State Bears meet A&T at 8:00 p.m.

The 6'-6 Maurice Jennings. The sophomore is averaging over 17 points per game and is near the top in free-throw shooting.

Frazier will probably start all four of these experienced veterans as the Bears go after sole possession of the MEAC's top spot.

The Hawks had the most pleasant surprise in the conference this season. After going through the 1975-76 season without a conference win, the team bowed out this season to defeat defending champion A&T twice. Ken Simmonds, a freshman guard from New York City, is currently the second leading scorer in the conference. As of now the team to beat is Delaware State, the youngest team and least experienced team in the conference this season. Marshall Emery has done an excellent job of molding the team together, however, the Hornets are still a year or two away from contention in the MEAC.

defense and that could be a factor in their favor should they advance to the championship round.

NORTH CAROLINA A&T STATE

The Aggies are the defending conference champions. Although their conference and overall record this year would not make them the favorites in the tournament, A&T has always played its best basketball in playoff situations.

L. J. Pipkin has emerged as the conference's top offensive force. 6-10 center Melvin Palmer is the team's most improved player and 6-2 Ellsworth Turner has guided the team with poise. This team does not compare with the championship teams of the past. But any A&T team is tough in tournament play.

Hawks Good Scoring Power From Inside

The Hawk's defense is a cakewalk for A&T. "Hopefully, we will have a lot of participation in the spring because we are here to involve students," stated Gaskins.

Trouble Dumps Bad Company

As Intramural Season Ends

By Archie B. Bass

The men's intramural championship game concluded intramural basketball Wednesday night as Trouble dummled the defending champs Bad Company, 62-50.

A crowd of about 300 spectators witnessed the action-thrilled contest. Intramural basketball showed us that students, male and female, are very much interested in the sport, both as participants and spectators," said Ernest Gaskins, intramural coordinator. "At this point the intramural program and activities have increased 50%, even though the budget remains the same," he added.

According to Gaskins, two new activities were added this year from basketball. Free-throw shooting which involved 130 participants-40 females and 90 males, and the slam dunk contest which was won by David Watt.

The only thing that will determine who will wrestle is by having the two guys wrestle and watch out, the Hawks could be used to our advantage," stated Pinckney.

It's not just enough to wrestle the same schools every year, but to go against the top ranked schools in Division I," said Pinckney.

He stated that this has helped more than anything else. "I give everyone of the guys an opportunity to wrestle whether he has any experience or not. The only thing that will determine who will wrestle is having the two guys wrestle and the one who losses sits out that match," he said.

However that wrestler is able to come back at anytime and challenge the other wrestler in his weight class for that spot.

Coach Pinckney said that the five matches coming up this weekend against Pembroke, Elizabeth City, Davidson, East Carolina, should prepare A&T for the tournament next Friday and Saturday. "I would much rather have the tournament away from home because of the pressure that will be on the boys all the time during the tournament. It's much easier to push their classmates. But in this case it can be used to our advantage," stated Pinckney.

As of now the team to beat is Morgan State followed by South Carolina, Delaware State and A&T. "We will have to give it all we got and see who will have to use our motor and not forget fundamentals. That's the key, everything is secondary in long run, fundamentals will come through for us in the tournament," Pinckney said.

And the matmen of A&T will be getting their skills against the toughest odds to try to capture its third straight championship.
Now comes Miller time.
