Civitan Induct 24 Members

By Maxine McNeill

A&T's newly established Collegiate Civitan Club inducted 24 members at its charter banquet held in Williams Cafeteria Thursday. A&T's chapter is the first predominately Black chapter in the Southeastern District.

The Collegiate Civitan Club is an international service organization. The purpose of the club is to work with campus projects and promote citizenship on campus.

Dr. Jesse E. Marshall, vice chancellor for student affairs, who was the keynote speaker, described the event as the most momentous during the course of time at A&T. He said it was no occasion for a keynote address and attention should be focused on the students who were being chartered.

"As I look at what has happened through that nation, someone needs to be his brother's keeper," said Dr. Marshall.

Dr. Marshall feels that we are our brother's keeper. He said the members of the Civitan Club should strive to bring good citizenship back on campus.

The president of the Civitan International, Carlie Sessoms, feels that the A&T Civitan members are confronted with a real challenge. "It is your responsibility to build better citizenship at A&T and in Greensboro," said Sessoms. The challenge the chartered Civitan members are confronted with is whether or not they want to see A&T's club walk or fly, according to Sessoms. He said if it is to progress quickly the students' time, money, and energy will have to be utilized.

Doris Camack, president, said, "I am proud to be a part of the Collegiate Civitan Club. I want to launch a new membership drive."

Ms. Comack also said all the members inducted last night are all community health majors. She said the club is open to all students but community health majors are the only students (See Civitan, Page 5)

Cornell Architect Stresses Landscaping

By Rodney McCormick

Paul Friedburg, a landscape architect, spoke on Urban Planning in Carver Hall last night. Friedburg, a graduate of Cornell University, is a senior partner in his architectural firm, director of the Urban League planners at CCNY, and author of several publications, dealing with urban planning projects.

He stressed the idea that the landscape architect should utilize the environment to its fullest potential and adaptability. For those who don't know, landscape architecture is the profession concerned with the planning of outdoor areas and communities. Landscape architects are needed wherever people use areas of land.

Friedburg said that this field is up and coming. For both men and women, a career in Landscape Architecture holds many rewards. Because of the (See Architecture, Page 8)

Three Will Not Share Rooms

By Mary Williams

There has been the question in the air concerning three people in a room next year. This issue is now under investigation and in the process of elimination.

Dr. Jesse Marshall, vice chancellor for Student Affairs, stated, "From the experience we have had with personal problems and psychological arrangements under which students were compelled to live, we don't plan to consider future arrangements for three people in a room. This will not be considered unless it is specifically requested by the occupants."

Mrs. Lucille Piggott, dean of women, stated that there is no intention of placing three girls in a room for 1977-78.

There have been a certain number of rooms obtained for freshmen students. William

Dr. Marshall

Gamble, director of admissions, said out of the 2100 students selected, 1200 will be admitted to comprise the freshman class. Out of this number eighty per cent will live on campus in the dormitories.

"We are using the fifty dollar deposit for rooms to estimate how many students will stay on campus," Gamble said.

The student will be expected to sign a statement explaining the conditions and his request if he so desires to live with three occupants, he explained.

"This problem has never existed within the male dormitory, and we don't expect three in a room next year," said William Goode, dean of men.

Reynolds May Step Down As Basketball Coach

By Craig R. Turner

"I will neither confirm nor deny the report. I intend to remain neutral until I have received a recommendation on the matter." Those were the words of Chancellor Lewis C. Dowdy in a telephone conversation yesterday on a report involving the naming of a new head coach for the A&T basketball team.

A report broke late Saturday that A&T's Warren Reynolds would step down this month as head coach and that a new mentor would be named later this week. The report, originating from both local television and radio sports persons, stated that Appalachian State University assistant Gene Littles would be named as the new man.

Also, an unofficial statement was released that former NBA and ABA star Joe Caldwell would be named as the assistant to Littles.

Dr. Dowdy, and athletic director Cal Irvin would not comment on the report and that Reynolds' future at A&T is still facing uncertainty. Dr. Albert Smith could not be reached for comment but has maintained a "wait and see" attitude.

Littles, a former All-America at nearby High Point College, starred for four years in the American Basketball Association with the defunct Carolina Cougars and later the Kentucky Colonels.

He assumed the assistant post at ASU last year and had been instrumental in the recruiting of players for the Mountaineers. ASU had been one of the stronger teams in the Southern Conference this past season.

Coach Reynolds commented on WFMV-TV's A&T Sports Report that he had not received any official notice of his nonrenewal. Reynolds stated that he had received several job offers in the field of coaching including three of the members of the MEAC. Reliable sources claim that he is the prime candidate for the coaching posts at Maryland-Eastern Shore, Delaware State, and North Carolina Central.

ACHA Announces Internships

The American College of Hospital Administrators (ACHA), based in Chicago, Ill., has announced the establishment of a summer intern program for minority students titled the "Albert W. Dent Work-Study Fellowship." The program is designed to address the issue of minority involvement in the health administration field.

Dent is president emeritus of Dillard University in New Orleans, La., and was the first Black administrator in ACHA.

Announcement of the fellowship in North Carolina was made this week by the N.C. Health Manpower Development Program (NCHMDP) in Chapel Hill. NCHMDP, an inter-institutional program of the University of North Carolina system that was organized in response to the acute need for more minority and disadvantaged health professionals in North Carolina, will serve as the contact agency in the state for students interested in the fellowship.

The Dent Fellowship, which carries a stipend of $3,000 was launched as a result of a 1973 ACHA task force on minorities. Findings of the task force showed a great need to correct the underrepresentation of minorities in health administration positions.

The fellowship will be part of ACHA's commitment to increase, train and retain minority health administrators.

Candidates for the fellowship must:

(1) Complete a summer internship as a participant in the National Work-Study Program administered by the Association of University Programs in Health Administration and the National Association of Health Service Executives.

(2) Be a student in good standing in an acceptable undergraduate or graduate program in health or hospital administration. Students in undergraduate programs must show proof of acceptance in the fall term in a graduate school in hospital or health service administration.

(3) Produce two letters of endorsement from persons who will attest to the potential and sincerity of the candidate to pursue his or her career goals.

(4) Be able to relocate in Chicago for the 11-week internship from June 13 to August 26. Married candidates must assume responsibility for their families during the internship period.

Deadline for submitting applications is March 15.

Cage Coach Comments On Future Employment

He also responded to the question of future employment by stating that two corporations had contacted him about coming into their organizations. But the fourth-year coach also reaffirmed his feelings that he would gladly stay with the university if his services were requested.

"I have enjoyed my stay here at A&T and feel it is one of the finer opportunities that a coach could have. I don't want to leave A&T but there are a lot of different opportunities around for me to consider. My stay at A&T has been most enjoyable and I have no regrets whatsoever."

Speculation has been for the last few weeks that A&T would have to have an impressive showing in the MEAC tourney in order for Reynolds to stay on as head coach. However the Aggies succumbed to Howard in the opening round in a not-too-impressive 91-79 defeat that ended a horrible 3-24 season.

As to the naming of Littles as A&T's new head coach, ASU has not made any public statement to the fact that he had asked to be released from his three-year contract with that school.

Guilford College To Show Films

By Lynelle Stevenson

The Guilford College Film Series will be showing five more films for the month of March starting on Tuesday, March 1.

"The Hour of the Wolf" by Ingmar Bergman is a study of the dual personalities of a husband and wife plagued with a nightmarish version of madness and demonism.

On Tuesday, March 15, "The Grapes of Wrath" will be shown. It is a movie version of John Steinbeck's classic novel dealing with the poverty, hardship and disillusionment experienced by a family forced to leave their Oklahoma farm in the early 1930's to work in California.

"Little Big Man" will be shown on Friday, March 18. The movie is peopled with such characters as the sole survivor of Custer's last stand, an adopted Indian brave, a mule skinner, a town drunk and a gunfighter.

On Friday, March 25 "The Coconuts," the Marx Brothers' first film, will be shown. This film contains some of their best stage routines while the plot concerns a Florida hotel mismanaged by Groucho with some stolen jewels thrown in.

The last one is "Marat/Sade," a deeply complex and troubling film, a wrenching intellectual and emotional experience. It shows the persecution and legendary assassination of the physically ill and mentally troubled French revolutionary Jean-Paul Marat as performed by the inmates of the asylum of Charenton.

All films will be shown in the Sternberger Auditorium and all will begin at 8:15 p.m.

A&T's Band's 'Hot Horns' Will Appear In April

"Hot Horns," a long playing album recorded by the A&T Blue and Gold Marching Machine, will be ready for release in April.

The album is a recording of the songs played by the band during the 1976 fall football season. The recording took place last December in the Paul Robeson Theatre under the direction of band director Robert A. Williams.

Subscriptions for the album were distributed after the Christmas holidays. The cost of the first long playing album by the band is $7.50 with an additional $.25 for mailing.

Williams said the jacket for the album will picture the title,

"Hot Horns," along with an assortment of horns on the front. The back cover will feature a picture of the 1977 edition of the Blue and Gold Marching Machine and the names of each member.

The director said that a place on the album cover for him was available, but he felt that the students deserved all the credit. He also mentioned that Ty Miller of radio station WEAL will be giving a number of the songs airtime.

The recording was done by Ray Perry and Associates but will be on the label of Tom Britten Associates out of Montana, Alabama.

Dizzy Gillespie

Will Perform

At NCSU Theatre

By Lynelle Stevenson

Dizzy Gillespie, patriarch of trumpet, will be appearing at Stewart Theatre on Wednesday, March 2.

This native of Cheraw, South Carolina, went north in the thirties to Philadelphia with his golden trumpet in his sack. In 1945 he joined his first band, "The Hep-Sations."

He later played with such greats as Cab Calloway, Ella Fitzgerald, Earl Hines and Stan Getz. Composer, singer and leader of jazz, Dizzy inherited the style that Roy Eldridge got from Louis Armstrong.

Tickets are available at the box office on the 2nd floor of NCSU's Student Center. For more information, please call 737-3105.

Nelle's Corner

By Lynelle Stevenson

There's a fairly new artist out with a brand new album just for you. Her name is Marlena Shaw and her album is entitled "Sweet Beginnings."

Marlena began her career a long time ago but has just recently reached the point of stardom. Today, her thoughtful musical performances reflect a wealth of experience, nurtured over the years by working with such notables as Count Basie and Sammy Davis, Jr.

The vocalist mastery she has acquired resulted in a comprehensive recording career, that included being the first female vocalist signed to the Blue Note label. Today, there's a new recording deal with Columbia, and her first album release, "Sweet Beginnings" is quickly gaining interest amongst disc jockeys, critics and the public.

Marlena's musical talents were confined to the church, until she left high school to attend Potsdam State Teacher's College in New York on a musical scholarship. After a year, Marlena left her studies in favor of a more direct musical experience by singing on the East Coast Playboy Club circuit, and one year's play at the Concord Hotel in New York.

In 1966 her broad-based appeal within her music, brought Marlena to the attention of Cadet Records. The two singles, "Wade in the Water" and "Mercy, Mercy" and two albums, "Out of Different Bags" and "Spice of Life," she released with them eventually led to her performing with the illustrious Count Basie.

In an era that was new to rock and roll, the big-band plus singer, Marlena and Basie played to standing-room-only audiences throughout America, and continued through Europe, with the same degree of success.

When Blue Note offered Marlena a recording contract in 1972, the decision between the obvious security of the Basie Band, and the challenge in being the first female vocalist to be offered a contract with Blue Note, proved a difficult one to make. Marlena chose to concentrate on developing her own career.

The five Blue Note albums: "Marlena", "Live at the Montreaux Jazz Festival," "Who is This Bitch Anyway," "From the Depths of My Soul" and "Just a Matter of Time," showed her versatile approach and firmly established her as a significant recording artist.

Today, Marlena Shaw has joined Columbia Records and brought with her both an established recording reputation and the desire to broaden her career even further.

The album is bad; the lady is bad. If you don't check her out, you're crazy because she has herself totally together. It's music you would want to relate to because, as I said before, the lady is bad!! You'll see!!!

Who Is Conspiring?

Since Friday's edition of The Register, this writer has learned that Ms. Tommie Young, director of the library, has said some staff employees are conspiring to get rid of her. This was learned from a very reliable source.

However, it would seem highly illogical that someone would leave his job in an effort to ruin the career of another—especially when a good job is hard to come by. If that had been the case (conspiracy), then Ms. Young could have easily told this reporter that information last week.

In the editorial that appeared in the last edition of The Register, entitled "What Is The Library Hiding?", this writer stated that the total number of resignations was 17. Well, bright and early Monday morning, one library staff jovially corrected me. The count stands at 19. Now ask yourself, would 19 people put their jobs in jeopardy in an attempt to get rid of one person? It hardly seems possible.

One of the most recent persons who have resigned said Monday that he had a statement to make. That person said that what he has to say is something that everyone should know, especially the student body.

When the final story comes out, we will be able to tell what is fiction and what is truth.

Stop Abusing Laundry Machines!

Editor Of The Register:

If you are a resident of Scott Hall, I am sure you are faced with the problem of washing and drying your clothes. Since the students continue to beat and wreck the washers and dryers, Scott Hall will soon be faced with the problem of a shortage of washers and dryers for its residents.

The ratio of residents to machines already is about 200 to 1. Now that the students themselves are tearing up the machines, robbing them of petty cash, showing no respect for other people's property, the odds will surely increase.

In talking with other students, we all share the same opinion, that what is happening really doesn't make any sense. The university provides us with washing facilities on campus. Instead of using these facilities, we abuse them.

Maybe one Saturday morning when you go down to the washroom, see no washers and dryers and have to wash your clothes in the shower, you'll understand.

Stealing Has Stiff Penalties

By Maxine McNeill

The rising crime rate involving A&T students can never be overemphasized. Students do not realize the predicament they place themselves into when they steal, that is, until it is too late.

If these students do not care that they are placing their school's name and their peers into jeopardy, they should think about what they are doing to themselves. Whether they realize it or not, there are certain jobs that students with criminal records are not eligible for.

The Career Planning and Placement office is circulating a list with these jobs on it.

Warren said that his office would not help students with criminal records find jobs. It would be a shame after four years of struggling to be told your degree is obsolete because you have a criminal record, but that would be your fault.

Some of A&T's students steal items which are totally unnecessary. Why would a student living on campus steal a can of oven cleaner? That does not make any sense whatsoever.

Students should not be suckered into stealing these petty items by their friends. A true friend would not ask you to do anything that would hurt you.

Maybe some students steal to belong to a certain group, like a sorority or fraternity. They should realize that no sorority or fraternity is worth ruining their lives to pledge.

If pledging means that much to you, develop your own fellowship. You can entitle it "Individualist Phi Individualist."

This is not an indictment of fraternities and sororities. There is nothing wrong with them. There is something wrong with the person who is not strong enough to defy an order like shoplifting.

Local District Court Judge Robert Pfaff does not plan to play nursemaid to A&T students. If you are found guilty of shoplifting in the future, be prepared to suffer some stiff consequences.

Towns Helps All Sunday Schools

By Lynelle Stevenson

Dr. Elmer Towns, director of Sunday School Research Institute in Savannah, Georgia, will be in Lexington, March 4 and 5. The purpose is to hold a Sunday School Growth Seminar at Sheets Memorial Baptist Church, Cotton Grove Road, Lexington.

The Research Institute lists the largest Sunday Schools and fastest growing Sunday Schools each year in "Christian Life Magazine." Because the innovations among the largest Sunday Schools are predictive of new trends, Towns is able to help all Sunday Schools grow.

As he prepares for the Sunday School Growth Seminar, Towns feels that the newer evangelical denominations show Sunday School growth in attendance, offering, budgets and new construction for classroom space. Some of these are the Nazarene, Assembly of God, Church of God, Free Will Baptist and Independent Baptist Churches.

At the same time the old-line denominations have fully put skids to their downward decline. These are such groups as United Methodist and Presbyterians.

The Southern Baptists slowed in growth during the late 60's but once again have picked up momentum.

The seminar includes two days of study where delegates analyze and apply growth patterns to their home churches. Dr. Towns will address a series on the Aggressive Laws of Sunday School Growth which features 242 principles of growth. The delegates then work in groups to develop a 3-year plan for their church.

Towns has written 27 books in the field of religious education and served as President and Academic Dean of a college.

Many sources call Towns "Mr. Sunday School" although he doesn't prefer the title. He sees his role as a college educator, researcher and writer.

CADA Worker Speaks In Merrick On Transportation

By Margaret L. Brown

Andrew Barnes, a 1976 graduate of A&T came to Merrick Hall to speak on "Transportation and Opportunities It Has."

Barnes is employed by CADA (Choanoke Area Development Association). The program came to Murfreesboro in 1952. It is named for Chowan and Roanoke Rivers.

CADA works to develop the four-county area of Bertie, Hertford, Halifax and Northhampton. They hope to help work some of the economical problems of the area.

CADA recruits students from low income families during the summer months to work on PACE, NYC (Neighborhood Youth Corp.) and internships. It also provides trips to various sites for school children and gives them free meals.

In providing transportation, Barnes said, "Don't overschedule, over plan, over crowd because it's hard on the maintenance of the bus."

Survey Shows Illiteracy Rate

RALEIGH (AP) - A new state survey used driver's license applications to find out how many North Carolinians can read. Now the state senator who ordered the survey wants to use the same applications to reduce the state's illiteracy rate.

The survey by the Highway Safety Research Center of the University of North Carolina simply recorded those license applicants who had to take an oral test instead of a written one.

The test revealed that 8.3 per cent of the state's adult population is illiterate, that illiteracy is greater in eastern counties than western and that non-whites were more likely than whites to be illiterate.

Senator McNeill Smith, D-Guilford, said he planned to introduce a bill that would require driver's license applicants to be able to read.

"The ability to read is more important now because of complex traffic instructions," said Smith.

But the authors of the survey, Patricia Waller and Robert G. Hall, indicated they weren't sure Smith's plan was a good one.

"Certainly any precipitous across-the-board implementation of such a program would work serious hardship on many and possibly achieve no real benefit," they said in their report.

They also said any such requirement should be combined with remedial reading programs and they noted a careful study should be made to link safety and reading ability.

"Licensing cannot justifiably be used to achieve non-driving related goals, no matter how worthy they appear," the study said.

One hopeful sign in the report is that a similar survey in 1959 showed a 20 per cent illiteracy rate in North Carolina.

SPORTS NOTEBOOK

By Craig R. Turner

The sixth annual MEAC tournament was not a success. It was not a success in terms of finances, gates, media coverage, or organization.

From a spectator's view, the games in this tournament were some of the best played and most exciting that the tournament has witnessed in its six years.

Why, then, didn't the tournament draw any more than the 10,000 or so fans in those three days while the Division II oriented CIAA drew nearly 40,000 fans in its venture in Hampton, Va.?

The reason is that A&T seems to have to have the prime responsibility in seeing that the MEAC tournament is a success.

Most of the MEAC schools, if not all of them, will try to acquire this point, but they will do so in vain.

A&T sold more tickets to the tournament than any other member school. Ticket sales were not even compatible.

The A&T organization coordinated the bulk of the promotion in the triad area while the other six members merely sat on their hands during the winter months.

You could probably compare expenditures by this university to make the tourney a success and the rest of the MEAC and it would be no comparison.

There is no other place in the world for this tournament to be successful except in the city of Greensboro because no other communities support Black institutions except the communities like Greensboro. They are very few.

The Greensboro followers are loyal to the MEAC but there is one important exception. They are followers of A&T first.

A&T did not have a good year basketballwise. Matter of fact, it was the worst record in the school's history and there in lies the story of this year's tournament.

As long as A&T produces winners, not necessarily championships, the Greensboro fans will turn out in droves for sporting events of this nature. Simply look at last year's attendance.

When they fail to do so, the result is as it was last week, a well-conceived attempt but with inevitable failure.

Just where does Warren Reynolds stand at this moment? He stands on very shaky ground. Reynolds made a statement last week that Aggies "have been spoiled for winning." He answered the "why" question himself.

Sunday, on WFMY-TV's A&T Sports Report, he sounded a note of impending doom when he commented on his future.

Perhaps the path of the future has made itself clear and the wheels for finding a new coach are already turning as evidenced by the story involving Gene Littles.

If it is true, then neither Reynolds, the media, nor fans alike can stop the inevitable. It is out of our hands.

It looks as though time has run out.

Girl's Tourney Begins Thursday

By Dennis Bryant

The A&T Aggiettes, with a 15-3 record, enter the NCAA IAW-Division III tournament on Thursday. The Aggiettes are the top-seeded team with a perfect 7-0 division record.

The Aggiettes, coached by Joyce Spruill, have definitely got to be the team to beat. The Aggiettes' only losses have come at the hands of Winston-Salem State, NCCU and MEAC champions, South Carolina State.

Without their second leading scorer, Cheryl Armwood, the Aggiettes have found added depth in the middle. They are led by Lillie Pratt, Valerie Capehart and Elmira Hall. The three have succeeded in filling the vacant spot.

The Aggiette attack is led by All-Division candidate guard Charlene Henderson. The 5'6" freshman guard is averaging 18 points per game. Charlene gets better as the season progresses. She seems to score at will and her dazzling moves bring the crowds to their feet. She's a great performer.

Another fine guard is Mamie Jones, a 5'2" freshman from New Bern. Her play is the pep for the team. She starts the scoring drives when the Aggiettes are in a slump. Trisa Graves, 5'3" freshman from Whisett, teams with Jones for some outstanding play. Graves is a good ballhandler and assist leader. She's the starting guard. At the forward position, the Aggiettes are loaded with talent. Eva Patterson, 5'9" senior from Red Springs, leads the pack. She averages ten points and 11 rebounds per game. She provides the needed inside play. She controls the boards and plays good defense.

Natalie Rogers, a 5'7" freshman from Moncure, is deadly from the outside with her long range jumpers. She has come along strong in the last part of the season. Lillie Pratt, 5'6" freshman from High Point, plays a big part in the game. She's the most improved player in the line-up. Pratt plays very good defense and is a very good rebounder. She fills the spot vacated by Armwood.

Janice Hooker, 5'8" junior forward from Albermarle, provides the team with a lot more inside depth. She goes to the boards more, and in the last few games she has improved. Hooker is not much of a scorer, but she scores when needed.

The inside position is centered around Elmira Hall, with the absence of 5'10" freshman standout Cheryl Armwood, finds herself in a needed situation. She has improved her scoring touch and grabs more rebounds. Valerie Capehart, 5'6" freshman, from Bertie County, is a very aggressive player. She holds the

'The Pencil' Wins MEAC Honor

By Craig R. Turner

Eric "The Pencil" Evans was a runaway winner for the most valuable player during the sixth MEAC tournament.

The 6-10 junior scored 80 points in his three-day performance, added 49 rebounds, and 16 blocked shots.

Evans was a unanimous choice as the center on the all-tournament team. He was joined by 6-8 teammate Anthony Young at one forward spot.

Howard had two representatives on the squad 6-7

Gerald Glover, who finished second in the MVP balloting. The 5-10 point man, Gerald Gaskins captured the other spot for the Bison.

Charles Shealy, another 5-10 guard, from Delaware State appeared in only one game but his tourney high of 35 points against North Carolina Central was good enough for his place on the team.

The outstanding tournament coach award went for the second time to Nat Frazier of Morgan.

His Bears, twice, staged comebacks from 16-point deficits against S.C. State and Howard to claim their first tournament championship.

Frazier coached his team to the 1974 NCAA Division II championship and was named the national coach-of-the-year that particular season.

The sportsmanship team award went to Howard University for the third consecutive year, a feat unparalleled in the six-year history of the league.

Morgan Wins MEAC Tourney

By Craig R. Turner

There has been a drought throughout much of the west this year, but the drought in Baltimore, Md., ended Saturday night as Morgan State staged a movie style come-back to win the MEAC championship 82-77 over Howard.

Trailing by as many as 16 points in the second half, the Bears erupted for 27 points in the last eight minutes to claim its first championship after four straight tries at the title.

Howard, playing in its second MEAC title game, appeared to have the game well in hand after running to an impressive 48-38 halftime advantage.

Morgan stayed that close only on the super effort 6-9 Eric Evans who pumped in 19 points inside down when needed, and is a very good scorer.

Others adding depth are Tammy Garner, Sylvia Delotach, and Ivy Moody. Garner is a good hustler and has the ability to score. She plays good defense.

Delotach, senior guard, is a good ball handler and hustles on defense. Moody, a junior guard, is a good outside shooter. Her scoring from the outside provides added depth to the team.

The Aggies are loaded with talent; and, with nine freshman, two juniors, and two seniors, this is only the beginning of success.

The only thing they lack now is that needed inside height. Coach Spruill is in search of that now.

Being the top-seeded team, the Aggies find themselves as being the team to beat. The other teams are number 2 seed Lenior Rhyne 13-3, number 3, Methodist 12-3, number 4, Winston-Salem 14-4, number 5, Atlantic Christian 11-6, number 6, Pembroke State 10-9, and number 7 seeded Bennett 6-8.

The games will be played at Pembroke State University. The Aggies hope to bring home a championship. If they should fail, it has been a good year. They have the talent to capture it in the years to come.

ever growing need to use land, landscape architects are constantly needed for recreational and conventional purposes.

The program last night is the first in a series of lectures centered around a general theme, "People and Plans." The next lecture is scheduled for March 21. Anyone who would like more information on landscape architecture, should go to Room 231 in Carver Hall.

in the initial period.

Howard increased its advantage by outscoring Morgan 8-2 to take a 56-41 lead with nearly 15 minutes left in the game.

It was then that Morgan pulled itself together as it had done the night before against front runner S.C. State in the semifinals.

Forward Anthony Young took it upon himself to squirm inside the Howard collapsing zone for eight straight points while getting both of Howard's big men, Dorian Dent and Mike Pressley into serious foul trouble.

Morgan pulled back into the game at the 5:59 mark when Evans hit a 15 foot jumper to cut the margin to 68-64;

From there, sophomore guard Darrell Davis and junior Maurice Jennings dashed through and around Howard's tandem of David Whitehead and Gerald Gaskins.

Morgan regained the ball from a missed shot and decided to play a stall for a high percentage shot.

Reserve Jim Gorman was called for a charging foul at 1:06 and Howard had its last chance at victory.

If you want an incredible slide rule calculator that's also programmable, then this is the one for you.

There're 74 preprogrammed functions and operations. And it has AOS, TI's unique algebraic operating system, the underlying reason an SR-56 is so powerful. It'll let you handle problems with as many as 9 sets of parentheses. Talk about memory. An SR-56 has 10 (11 if you count the T-register.) And you can do arithmetic with all of them.

Chances are you'll soon discover how really easy it is to program. An SR-56 has 100 steps. Six logical decision functions. Four levels of subroutines. Decrement and skip on zero. Compare a test register with the display to make a conditional branch. And this is just the beginning.

Think about it. Can you really afford to put off getting your SR-56, now?

SR-52 $249.95* (New low price)

If you want the computer-like power of a card programmable then choose this one.

Techniques like optimization, iteration, data reduction, what-if matrices, mathematical modeling, need not tie up your mind — or your time.

But learning to use it is a hassle, you say. Not true. Pre-recorded programs are gathered into software libraries: Electrical Engineering, Math, Statistics, Finance. All you need do is load a mag card, press a few keys and you'll get answers that previously required a computer.

You can make your own programs just as easily. In just a couple of hours you'll begin to prove what a powerful asset you have — right at your fingertips.

And there's not a better time to get an SR-52 than right now.

Texas Instruments will rebate $10.00 of your original SR-56 purchase price when you: (1) return this completed coupon including serial number (2) along with your completed SR-56 customer information card (packed in box) and (3) a dated copy of proof of your purchase, verifying purchase between Jan. 1 and March 31, 1977.
