"COMPLETE AWARENESS FOR COMPLETE COMMITMENT"

VOLUME XLVIII NUMBER 43 NORTH CAROLINA AGRICULTURAL AND TECHNICAL STATE UNIVERSITY, GREENSBORO MARCH 4, 1977

A&T Engineering Society To Sponsor Conference

The Architectural Engineering Society and the Architectural Engineering Department of A&T will host the South Atlantic Regional Conference of the Association of Student Chapters/American Institute of Architects (ASC/AIA) here, March 5 and 6.

The conference will be held in the Student Union Ballroom and on the campus of Guilford Technical Institute, which will assist A&T in hosting the conference.

A series of business sessions and discussions concerning the ASC/AIA will be held. The ASC/AIA is designed to give students of architecture and related fields all across the nation a chance to meet and discuss matters that relate to their future careers in architecture

Student chapters that will attend the conference will come from Clemson University, Georgia Tech, UNC-Charlotte, North Carolina State, Guilford Technical Institute and Pitt Tech.

The schools attending the conference will discuss topics geared toward structuring the guidelines by which the entire region of the South/ Atlantic will operate during 1977 and the early part of 1978.

Tony Graham, president of A&T's AES chapter, feels that

A&T will play an instrumental part in deciding the direction the region will take. "It was the excellent showing of this delegation to the 1976 ASC/AIA Forum that was responsible for bringing this regional conference to A&T for the first time," Graham said.

A&T will get a chance to compare its facilities with other schools in the region by means of a series of slide shows to be brought and shown by each attending school. Graham said these slide shows will also help to promote the proposed rotating slide shows between schools from across the nation. It is hoped that these shows will help bring schools closer together, thereby enabling each school to benefit more fully from their career training, he explained.

The ASC/AIA Forum for 1977 will be a conference on the national level, attended by schools across the nation. Clemson University will host the conference and A&T will assist in the planning for it.

In addition to the visiting schools, the regional director and the national vice-president of the ASC/AIA will attend the conference. Local architects and the faculty of the A.E.

Department will also be present at the conference.

Two Coaches Resign Tuesday

By Craig R. Turner

A & T made an unprecedented move in the institution's athletic history, as it was announced that both head basketball coach Warren Reynolds and head football coach Hornsby Howell resigned late Tuesday in a brief news conference.

Reynolds' resignation came as no surprise as press reports had indicated that his career would end after the Aggies' dismal 3-24 record, the worst in the school's history.

However, the resignation of Coach Howell came as a complete surprise as he was named by athletic director Cal Irvin as the assistant athletic director under him.

Howell stated that his decision was one that he had been considering for the last two or three years. He cited his primary reasons for his decision as being health and his continued concern for the student athlete and his status at A&T.

But most attention was focused on Reynolds. The fifth year coach had been under extreme fire for the last year or so although most of it has come within the last two months.

Reynolds said that he was appreciative of the A&T administration. "The administration has been good to me in my stay here but I feel for the betterment of the university, my family, and myself I should step down."

When questioned as to whether any of the present members of basketball team would leave along with him, Reynolds cared not to speculate.

"I will talk with them individually along with the athletic directors to explain the present situation. The decision will be theirs and theirs alone."

"I promised these kids' parents that they would receive

A&T School Of Business May Become Accredited

By Maxine McNeill

A&T's School of Business and Economics will become the third undergraduate school in North Carolina with accreditation if its upcoming visit from the American Assembly of School of Business is successful.

"We have every intent of becoming the third," said Quiester Craig, dean of the School of Business and Economics.

According to Craig, the Business and Economics School has made several revisions which hopefully will lead toward accreditation. He said the number of instructors with doctoral degrees has been doubled since 1973. Seven others are expected to complete their doctoral degrees in the next 12 months.

The programs have been revised so as to include courses necessary for accreditation. Craig said the first step in accreditation is deciding you want quality in all programs.

A learning research clinic has been added to assist the students at their own pace. That school's library and teaching equipment has also been upgraded.

The school has to make a lengthy self-study report about all aspects of the program by

Shoplifters Will Be Sent Home

By Margaret L. Brown

When the question arose what action would be taken to discourage students from shoplifting, Norwood McMillan, director of campus security, said, "I am going to be responsible for getting the names of students, who have been caught shoplifting to Dr. Marshall. Then action will be taken to dismiss the students from the university."

The students will be given a hearing and trial. Afterwards the students will be sent home.

In regard to students' stealing from each other, they will be arrested and the same approach will be taken.

McMillan stated that he has already started going to the courts and jails to see who these individuals are.

"To dismiss the students from the university was decided because someone in authority has to take a stand on the things. The court system has a dim view of A&T. We (A&T) have to discipline ourselves or someone else will do it for us."

In conclusion McMillan wants each student to keep this thought in mind: "The university has been as tolerant as it can be. We have bent over backwards to give our students a second chance. I feel we have to draw the line. Our students are supposed to be adults, so whenever you make a decision to steal, weigh the facts that you may be sacrificing your college education."

1977 THE SUMMER SCHOOL 1977

Hi There, My Fellow Aggie:

I would bet that you are now making plans for the summer months. First, very likely, you will eliminate all chances possible of being back in the old home situation. From this point of view, consider Summer School as an alternative.

Consider these advantages of Summer School:

- * It is cheaper by the credit hour
- * It is cheaper by the investment of time
- * It meets the need of accelerating the time for graduation
- * Some athletes can catch up with sequential courses or required ones
- * Others may remove probation status or improve quality points
- * Finally it meets the need for summer away from the home situation and continuation through vacation time of the friendly atmosphere of college life.

The frame below shows the cost of Summer School. The cost is shown by dollars per credit hour and at the rate of double occupancy in rooms with meals by the week.

APPLICATION MUST BE MADE AT THE SUMMER SCHOOL OFFICE BETWEEN MARCH 21 AND APRIL 30, 1977.

Show Depicts Black Artists

By Mary Williams

Vinnie Burrows, a one-woman performer, appeared in Harrison Auditorium Tuesday night in her show called "Walk Together Children."

Featuring the Black journey from auction block to a new nation, Ms. Burrows relived the lives of Black American artists. Realizing that the Black poet and writer lacked adequate public exposure, she created her own show, using the poetry and prose of Black Americans. "Walk Together Children" opened in New York City to instantaneous and unanimous critical acclaim.

The program opened with the voice of Ms. Burrows singing "Somebody's Knocking at Your Door" and reciting the slave narrative, "Membrances." There were filmstrips of African culture, sculpture and painting, reflecting the African from freedom to bondage.

In addition to the virtuoso performance in which she depicts 24 different characters, the material she presented offered a seldom-seen view of Black writings and the Black experience in America.

Acting with dramatic emphasis on the expressions and feelings felt by the slaves, Ms. Burrows relived the time of slavery, the pain and anguish.

House Committee Tries To Salvage King Murder Probe

WASHINGTON (AP) - House leaders said Thursday that House Committee on Assassinations members want to salvage at least a probe of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.'s murder, but the leaders offered no words of optimism that the panel will survive its current disruptions.

Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill said after a meeting with the committee's Democrats that they believe they can get three witnesses who would shed new light on the assassination of the civil rights leader.

O'Neill said he did not know if James Earl Ray, convicted of killing King, is one of them.

But when O'Neill was asked if he believes the House should continue the committee's life beyond the end of this month he paused and said, "Well, let's just see what we're talking about with these three witnesses."

The panel was originally set (See Gonzalez Page 5)

Ms. Burrows used such famous artists as Langston Hughes, Carl Wendell Hines, Jr., Kali Grosvenor and Anita Eckford as examples of Black talent that America ignored.

Ms. Burrows used Gwendolyn Brooks' poem, "We Real Cool," to depict the lives of Blacks and how Blacks are expected to act in America.

Ending her program with Langston Hughes' "Let America Be America Again," Ms. Burrows quoted, "America was never America to me, I am the poor fool pushed upon Black slavery, I bear the scars, I am the one who never got ahead, yet I am the one who dreamed. We aren't free in America, it has never been the land of the free."

Ms. Burrows said her career as a one-woman show began out of her frustration for Black actors who are rare. She has performed "Walk Together Children," in over 500 university and college theatres, and at the first Pan-African Cultural Festival in Algiers.

Taylor Gallery Presents Japanese Art Exhibit

By Mary Williams

H. C. Taylor Art Gallery is presenting an exhibit of Japanese posters and Japanese folk art March 6 to March 29.

A selection of 35 contemporary posters by many of Japan's leading graphic artists project the highly original approaches to today's design problems. Showing with the Japanese posters will be a collection of Japanese folk art contributed by Dr. and Mrs. Theodore Benfey of 801 Woodbrook Drive in Greensboro. Spending a year in Japan Dr. Benfey collected his own exhibit of Japanese culture.

The exhibit comes from the International Exhibition Foundation in Washington, D. C. The exhibit was first shown at the Staatliche Akademie Der Bildenden Kunst in Stuttgart. Among the posters are commercial advertising and excellent travel posters as well as theatre and dance, and the Olympic Games and Expo '70.

Professor Shin-Ichi Watanabe, of the College of Art at Wihon University in Tokyo, originated the show with the cooperation of the following silkscreen artists: Masaru Katsumie, Kiyoshi Awazew, Ikko Tannaka and Kazumasa Nagai.

In Japan the idea of the posters, silkscreen and woodcut printmaking has an ancient tradition. With their unusual sense for surface beauty and paintmaking with its potential for refinement, the Japanese would seem to have a natural medium. Through their contemporary qualities they exploit the three-dimensional and textural qualities.

The Japanese attempt to create first-rate works of art. In so doing they reveal a remarkable sensitivity to subtle and beautiful color as well as fine-line work.

Professor Watanabe, originator of the art, said, "The paintings show a representative cross section of contemporary Japanese poster art."

Nelle's Corner

By Lynelle Stevenson

I've got some news on various recording artists that I want to share with you. Here it is!!

Everyone's favorite tune in the recording industry last year was undoubtedly "Kiss and Say Goodbye" by Columbia's The Manhattan. The group sold well over two million copies on the tune and has re-signed with the label.

Columbia recording star, Johnny Taylor, who scored super-heavily on the music charts with "Disco Lady," will perform the soundtrack for the production of "Disco 9000." Not only will Johnny sing the score, he'll also have the honor of starring in the film project as a business executive and record producer.

The Jacksons' first recording effort on the Epic Label, "Enjoy Yourself" turned solid gold and the album simply entitled "The Jacksons" will reach the gold mark very soon. Be on the lookout for the Jacksons in Greensboro in a major concert tour.

The group that consistently keeps you moving to the beat, B.T. Express, is back on the hit tracks again with an upcoming Columbia Album.

To squash all rumors, Miles Davis is still on the Columbia label.

The Miracles have added a new member to the group, Donald Griffin, brother of lead singer, Bill. The Miracles debut Columbia album entitled "Love Crazy" featuring the hit tune "Spy For Brotherhood," will be released soon.

Maurice White of Earth, Wind & Fire is beginning to be introduced to music industry folks now as Mr. Golden Pen. It seems everything that Maurice puts his hands on turns to gold and platinum.

The Emotions received their first gold album for "Flowers," produced by Maurice. They are currently in the studio recording their second Columbia album under White's supervision.

Another Columbia artist under Maurice White's Kalimba Productions, is Denece Williams who has people everywhere humming and singing her smash recording, "Free."

Earth, Wind & Fire is continuing to set landslide concerts grossing overwhelming record sales. Their latest Columbia album entitled "Spirit" has sold over two million copies and is heading rapidly for triple platinum.

Philadelphia International recording artist Billy Paul is opening the record doors to all music listeners with his latest L.P., "Let 'em in." Watch for him, Jean Carn and Dexter Wansel on tour together soon.

Well, that's it for now. The facts, the plain truth of the matter, just for you!!!

No Beer Privileges Here

Some students at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and North Carolina State University in Raleigh are lobbying before the General Assembly for the right to sell wine and beer on public university campuses.

Presently there are three private institutions in the state that have the right to sell wine and beer. Duke University, Davidson, and Queens Colleges have this privilege and those students lobbying in favor of the bill for public institutions feel that the 16 campuses of the University of North Carolina system should be included.

According to those students lobbying for the passage of the bill, the law would give "the option to sell beer and/or wine on campus to public universities." If the bill is passed, it would be the board of trustees of each institution who would have the final word.

This is not the first time the bill has been presented to the General Assembly. The bill was dropped in the last session of the legislators because of the possibility of an increase in tuition. According to one report, the education committee of the assembly defeated the bill by a narrow 7-6 margin.

Now someone may ask how would passage of the bill affect student life at A&T. Well, in all honesty, this writer is sure student life would not be affected. It is safe to say that the A&T Board of Trustees would vote the bill down. This action would be in the best interest of the university.

Considering the attitudes and personalities of some students here, passage of the bill by the trustees (if passed in the legislature), would virtually destroy the academic setting of this university. We must admit, there are a number of immature students among us who would take advantage of the bill. Some students now can't consume alcoholic beverages discreetly.

If the beer and wine were to be sold in the student union, as would be the case at North Carolina State—well, I for one would hate to think what the student union would look like.

Property damage here would almost certainly be on the increase. We are faced with this problem now—broken windows, washers, dryers, light fixtures, and the list could go on.

It is true that other campuses face the same problems; but, for the sake of the university and the sanity of many, it is hoped that, if the bill is passed, trustees here will say no.

Letters To The Editor:

Student Wants Answers

Editor-of-The Register:

I am a student at A&T who would like to see some positive changes in the life-style which exists for all students here on campus.

Dormitory conditions have long been an issue half-studied by anyone. I feel the atmosphere created in the individual rooms determines how the students feel toward the dorm as a whole. The rooms have about as much appeal as a cell.

What, could be wrong with students' improving the looks of closet doors with a neat coat of paint or wood stain, improving the desk, the dresser, paint-chipped bedends and the ever present radiator?

If these improvements are made at the students' expense, how could the administration lose out? When a person is pleased by the surroundings in which he lives, he strives harder to take care of this environment. Causing students to feel better about how they live could cut down on a lot of the acts of defacing school property.

This is merely my opinion of the matter. I would appreciate answers to the questions present and any enlightenment offered on the matter.

Rickey Antonio Rawlinson

Is 'Plain Truth' Really True

Editor-of-The Register:

Saturday evening I walked into the student union building and picked up a free magazine. The Plain Truth.

In it there was an article on South Africa—"one of the world's top four mining countries." It was headed "The Battle for Southern Africa" by Gene H. Hogberg. After reading this article, it has become clear to me that Mr. Hogberg is either a very confused man who does not understand what the real issue in S. Africa is, or he is deliberately trying to mislead us.

Mr. Hogberg insists that because of its economic importance to the industrial west, the people of the U.S. should support the present racist regime. Furthermore, he makes some half-hearted attempts to justify APARTHEID or "separate development of cultures." His hue and cry about the threat of Communism to this area is once more beside the real issue—a cover-up.

Obviously, The Plain Truth is not telling the plain truth, but rather a biased, racist, narrow view of the subjugation the Black in South Africa are being subjected to.

What really bothers me is the fact that such a well-recognized Black institution like A&T lets this kind of trash circulate on its campus. The fact that this university has, for a long time stood for Black solidarity and Black brotherhood in the U.S., is known in international circles amongst friend and foe of all Black people.

I can draw a parallel between the civil rights movement of the last decade in the U.S., and the Black South African fight for self-determination—both movements demand basic God-given rights to be free men equal to any other free men in the world.

Being a pillar in the revolution for self-determination of all oppressed people all over the world, this institution should show its open support of the right of Black South Africans to administer their own country and government.

A Concerned African Student

Why Do Students Leave Trays ?

By Maxine McNeill

Oh, no, what could she possibly be complaining about now? That is probably the question some of you are asking at this moment. Will you try to bear with me through this complaint, though?

When certain instructors begin class with a sermon which starts, "You, students," students become very defensive. We feel these instructors are classifying all students in one category.

The truth is that all A&T students are not doing the negative things we always write about. A few are spoiling the name of the whole student body. The students who are not participating in these acts owe it to themselves to try to influence their friends to stop such acts.

At the beginning of last semester, some concerned students organized to protest the cafeteria conditions. The protest was abandoned because the majority of the students would not participate in it. In fact, all students who eat in the cafeteria complain but very few will even suggest ways conditions can be improved.

Now, it seems that some students have started another protest. This one is silent and unorganized but seems to be obtaining more support than last semester's did.

Some students enter the cafeteria, eat, and leave their trays on the tables. This trend has risen to the point where students are asked frequently by the cafeteria announcer not to leave their trays.

It's your prerogative to complain about the food but do so in a beneficial way. Mrs. Laura Thornton, acting food service director, has mentioned several times that she wants to hear students' complaints. So if you are dissatisfied about the food or anything else concerning the cafeteria, she will be glad to talk with you.

It does not take much effort or time to place your trays on the conveyor belt. That is one thing we students can do to improve the physical conditions of the cafeteria ourselves.

State Senate Rejects E.R.A.

RALEIGH (AP)—The North Carolina Senate Tuesday refused to ratify the proposed Equal Rights Amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

ERA completely dominated a legislative day which saw the House approve two proposed amendments to the state constitution to eliminate discrimination based on sex.

After hearing solely from speakers arguing in support of ERA, the Senate voted 26-24 to reject the amendment. Opponents were so sure they had the necessary votes they offered no debate against the amendment.

It was the third time an ERA ratification measure has been killed in the Tar Heel legislature. In 1975, the House rejected it and in 1973 the Senate voted it Hopes of ERA's boosters were raised about three weeks ago when the House voted 61-55 to approve ERA and turned the issue over to the Senate.

There it was the object of intense lobbying both for and against. Those who attempted in vain to persuade wavering senators to support the amendment included Gov. Jim Hunt and President and Mrs. Carter.

up to investigate King's killing and that of President John F. Kennedy.

Chairman Henry B. Gonzalez, D-Tex., submitted his resignation Wednesday as a result of his feud with chief counsel Richard A. Sprague. House leaders still have to said whether they will accept or reject Gonzalez' resignation or have the full House vote on it.

Democratic leader Jim Wright acknowledged to newsmen that his compromise efforts have been directed at keeping both Gonzalez and Sprague on the committee. Wright said today, however, "I must say I probably engaged in a miscalculation. His Gonzalez' feelings are very deep, very intense."

Wright and the committee's next ranking Democrat, Richardson Preyer of North Carolina, announced that one decision made at the morning meeting was that the committee will meet next Monday whether Gonzalez returns to Washington by then as expected or not.

They said the meeting would deal with evidence in the King investigation and a budget, possibly including staff cuts, but will not deal with "personalities," an apparent reference to the Gonzalez-Sprague fight.

Wright had said Wednesday he believes that, if Gonzalez insists on resigning, the House will kill the whole investigation.

reported Wednesday.

Officials close to a U.S. Justice Department investigation of the case were quoted Tuesday as saying subpoenas for witnesses are being issued. No time was given for when the grand jury will meet.

The report was carried in Wednesday editions of the Greensboro Daily News.

The report said two witnesses expected to be questioned by the grand jury were Eric Junious and Jerome Mitchell, who testified against the Wilmington 10 at their 1972 trial.

Nine men and a woman were convicted at the trial of conspiracy involving firebombings during racial violence in Wilmington in 1971.

The Wilmington 10 case has been under investigation by the U.S. Justice Department's civil rights division.

Junious was reported several weeks ago to have signed a statement declaring that he was offered a job and given a minibike by the prosecution and Wilmington police before testifying against the Wilmington 10.

Another witness for the prosecution, Allen Hall, also has stated publicly and in affidavits that he lied on the witness stand against the defendants.

Mitchell has refused to talk about the case.

SPORTS NOTEBOOK

By Craig R. Turner

It has been a policy of mine not to comment on the situation involving Coach Warren Reynolds until the problem had reached its final conclusion.

It has now reached its end and the matter has been resolved. Over the last three months a great deal has been said for and against Reynolds.

The one outstanding factor surrounding this entire affair has been the total neglect on the part of the media.

Many persons have stated that Reynolds was driven to resignation because of his undesirable reviews in the local press.

I assert that this was a gross exaggeration. Reynolds was not bombarded by the press, strangled by television, or lambasted by radio.

What caused the resignation was the ageless battle that is as old as time itself. Who is going to run the show?

There has long been a creditability gap between Reynolds and media. It was always compounded by his statements as to who should do what at A&T?

Perhaps the time had come that the administration could no longer keep Reynolds as an asset and his liabilities began to show through.

The James Sparrow incident did nothing for Reynolds' position, as he has been long under fire about the not-too-impressive showing of his athletes as students.

The list of reasons, variables, and intangibles could go on forever, but the decision was made by the center of the attention.

Reynolds said he did it in the best interest of his family, the university, and himself. I agree with him. His one and only choice was to resign. It was by any standpoint inevitable.

Reynolds Leaves Position

By Craig R. Turner

Weeks of speculation, controversy, and disdain came to an end last Tuesday when Coach Warren Reynolds resigned his post as head mentor of the A&T basketball program in a news conference at the Cosmos Club I.

It had been anticipated for the last several weeks that either Reynolds or the university would make a decision about his future with the Aggies. Reynolds ended the long vigil by reading his letter of resignation which was submitted to Chancellor Lewis C. Dowdy following last week's MEAC tournament.

It reads as follows: "At the close of the basketball season, I wish to advise you that I do not wish to be considered for contract renewal for the next year. You know of my personal and professional regard for you. However, while you were a big enough person to preside over the development of A&T on its way to being a great university, others are still in the dark ages and do not seem to share your vision of greatness. The demands of high position have exceeded their capabilities. Hints of dissatisfaction, quibbling over the administrative pecking order, striving for administrative one-up-manship and, most recently, "leaks" to friends in the local press, have confirmed my tentative decision of some time ago that, in fairness to my family and my own professional development, I should pursue my career elsewhere.

"Recent publicity has resulted in many students, alumni, staff members and others expressing support for me personally and the program we have envisioned here at A&T. In appreciation of their regard, I have been tempted to strive to solicit support for a contract renewal fight, if indeed, a fight were required, but this can but weaken the program and the university. Therefore, regardless of all this, I have submitted this resignation.

"You know, I am sure, of good wishes for you and for the future of A&T, especially the basketball program."

Reynolds stated that he had received several coaching offers including three institutions within the MEAC for next season. He refused to divulge the name of any of his prospective new employers but hinted that he was not worried about his future. The former coach-of-the-year also said that he was considering going into private business with two large corporations in the area of public relations and promotions. Reynolds said that he had been contacted by the heads of these companies about the posts earlier but his main interest would lay in the field of coaching.

Reynolds departs from A&T after his fifth year as head coach after assuming the post in 1972 when present athletic director Cal Irvin vacated the spot for his present job.

In that short period of time, he compiled a 73-57 record, claimed three MEAC titles, and named conference coach-of-the-year three times.

Last season he took his 20-6 Aggies to the NIT in New York to become the second predominantly Black college to do so. A&T lost to Providence in the opening round of that tournament.

No successor to Reynolds was named yesterday in the news conference but a new head coach is expected to be named in the next few weeks in order to start recruitment of high school candidates.

A&T Closes Out Season With 15-3 Record

By Dennis Bryant

The A&T Aggies led by Ivy Moody and Natalie Rogers, defeated Meredith 62-50 to close out their record season with a 15-3 mark. The Aggies have a perfect 7-0 division record, and now enter the NCAA IAW-Divisions-III tournament.

A&T, after being down 7-4 with four minutes gone in the first half, outscored the girls of Meredith 7-0 to take a 11-7 lead. The Aggies led the rest of the game as they used a pressure defense.

The Aggies led 26-20 at the half. With 10:30 to go, Meredith pulled to within three at 32-29. The Aggies began crashing the boards and, with the scoring of Rogers and Moody, then opened a ten-point spread which was more than enough against Meredith.

A&T had leads of up to 14 points due to their numerous number of steals. The defense proved successful at every viewpoint. They shut off Meredith's outside shooting and their ability to get two and three shots on offense. The Aggies played one of the best second halves they have played this season.

Coach Joyce Spruill praised her team's output. She and, "The girls are definitely ready for the tournament. Our offense was somewhat off, but they hustled 100% in the second half. We couldn't use our regular running game in the first half, but with some adjustments, we slowed the transition to offense from defense."

The Aggies were led by Ivy Moody with 14 points, and Natalie Rogers with 11 points. The Aggies scoring was fairly well balanced at the seven and eight point mark.

Meredith was led by Kathy Owen with 14 points and Martha Ferebee with ten points. Meredith will also enter the NCAA IAW-Division III tournament.

Search For New Coach Begins

an education and make progress towards a degree. I am sure that this will not change now that I'm gone," said Reynolds.

Asked about a possible successor, Reynolds said he hoped that a new coach would be concerned with the total development of the individual.

Howell was then asked how it felt not being head coach. He retorted in familiar style, "I'll live longer."

He stated that his history of illness was a key factor in his decision. He expressed the fact that he could probably help the athletes of A&T even more in his new position.

Irvin was questioned about the James Sparrow controversy.

Title IX Helps Women's Sports To Blossom

By Archie B. Bass

"Women's athletics have improved 100 % over the last year." Those were the words of Joyce Spruill, women's athletic director.

With the help of Title IX, which states that sports for men and women should be equal, this has given women's athletics at A&T a chance to blossom.

The latest induction of the women's athletics is the addition of a ladies' track team. "This year will perhaps be the first full-scale track team here at A&T," said David Miller, coach of the lady sprinters.

Miller, a former speedster for the Aggie track team, stated, "I feel a lot of pressure as coach because I have to be strict as a coach in order to obtain the proper respect I need from the girls."

The former speedster noted that 31 girls started out and the squad has been cut to 12 girls. "I have Lisa Dorman, Mary Lyons, and Linda Price on the team with no experience in track before," said Miller.

He went on to say, "These young ladies, along with the rest of the squad, have shown tremendous determination and talent."

The team is made up of 3 sophomores and 9 freshmen. "We know the team is young in terms of experience, but running against top-notch schools like East Carolina, we feel by the second half of the season, we shall be able to hold our own," stated Miller.

Miller feels that the team will win some relays this season, but his main objective is opening the way for years to come for the ladies' track team.

He said that the situation was presently in the hands of the necessary persons and it was being handled as quickly as possible.

Irvin also stated that A&T's proposed football stadium is slated to open for the 1978 season. It would accommodate 15,000 fans initially and could later be expanded.

He was also questioned as to whether he would return to the basketball coaching circle. Irvin quickly informed the media he had no such intentions.

The question of successors arose and Irvin explained what the policy for finding new personnel would incur.

"We will send out notices that the coaching vacancies are present. There has been no previous announcement until today and a screening process will follow the applications."

Irvin stated he had heard the reports that Gene Littles, an assistant coach at Appalachian State, would move into the basketball opening.

"I cannot make any positive statement to that and there are several persons who have expressed interest. A decision will be forthcoming in the near future," Irvin said.

If you want an incredible slide rule calculator that's also programmable, then this is the one for you.

There're 74 preprogrammed functions and operations. And it has AOS, TI's unique algebraic operating system, the underlying reason an SR-56 is so powerful. It'll let you handle problems with as many as 9 sets of parentheses. Talk about memory. An SR-56 has 10 (11 if you count the T-register.) And you can do arithmetic with all of them.

Chances are you'll soon discover how really easy it is to program. An SR-56 has 100 steps. Six logical decision functions. Four levels of subroutines. Decrement and skip on zero. Compare a test register with the display to make a conditional branch. And this is just the beginning.

Think about it. Can you really afford to put off getting your SR-56, now?

SR-52 $249.95* (New low price)

If you want the computer-like power of a card programmable then choose this one.

Techniques like optimization, iteration, data reduction, what-if matrices, mathematical modeling, need not tie up your mind—or your time.

But learning to use it is a hassle, you say. Not true. Pre-recorded programs are gathered into software libraries: Electrical Engineering, Math, Statistics, Finance. All you need do is load a mag card, press a few keys and you'll get answers that previously required a computer.

You can make your own programs just as easily. In just a couple of hours you'll begin to prove what a powerful asset you have—right at your fingertips.

And there's not a better time to get an SR-52 than right now.
