VOLUME XLVIII NUMBER 45 NORTH CAROLINA AGRICULTURAL AND TECHNICAL STATE UNIVERSITY, GREENSBORO MARCH 22, 1977

Founder's Day Services To Be Held On Sunday

A&T State University's 85th Founder's Day Observance on Sunday, March 27, will include an address by the commissioner of the Bureau of Professional and Occupational Affairs of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and a special day of tributes to the A&T parents.

Speaker at the 11 a.m. convocation in Moore Gym will be Dr. Edward W. Robinson Jr., also a vice president of North Carolina Mutual Life Insurance Company, the largest Black-owned business in the world.

Participating in the convocation will be representatives of the student body, faculty, alumni and board of trustees. Music will be furnished by the university's choirs and symphony band.

A coffee hour for parents and guests will be held at 9 a.m. in the dining center, followed by the 9:45 a.m. salute to the parents by the university's Air Force and Army ROTC units.

The speaker, Robinson, has had wide business and civic involvements.

He formerly served as president of the Provident Home Life Insurance Company. He is a noted producer of films on African and Afro-American history and is the co-author of a book on Black history.

Robinson holds degrees from Virginia State College, the University of Pennsylvania and a law degree from Temple University.

A&T began operating in Greensboro in the fall of 1893 with 37 students, although a legislative act had set up the college temporarily in Raleigh in 1891.

Greensboro made a bid to be the permanent home for the college and citizens here donated $11,000 in cash and 14 acres of land to A&T as a part of the city's offer.

Today A&T has more than 5,500 students, 300 faculty members and 700 supplementary staff members.

The institute, usually a one-day event, has been extended to three days, and will be held in the Memorial Student Union.

Theme for the institute will be "Creative Solutions to Major Urban Problems Confronting Federal, State and Local Government."

The March 30 session will include keynote addresses by Lawrence Bailey, deputy-assistant to President Carter for international relations, and Dr. King Cheek, president of the Union for Experimenting Colleges in Yellow Springs, Ohio.

International Week Begins

By Johnny O. Hunter

A cultural first of extravaganza and goodwill will explode this week on the A&T campus. Mrs. Anne C. Graves, director of the International Students office, and Mrs. Mattye Reed head of the Heritage Center, are spear-heading the gala events of the first annual International Week. It began Monday, March 21, and will be celebrated through Saturday March 26.

Monday's 7:30 p.m. "Open House" at the Heritage Center featured various entertaining activities including film slides of East and West Africa. "Most of the focus will be on Nigeria and Tanzania," said Mrs. Graves. "The musical showcase was a drum exhibition." A tour of the center's artifacts coincided with the on-going activities throughout the evening. Refreshments were served. Mrs. Reed served as hostess for the "Open House" opening-night events.

Wednesday night "An Evening in India" which begins at 7:30 will be held in the lobby of High Rise Dormitory. Mrs. Graves explained, "The focus is on the East. There will be a complete enactment of wedding ceremonies showing the difference in a cultural wedding in India as opposed to one in America." Lending to the authenticity of the event will be three East-Indian couples who will reaffirm their marriage vows. They are A&T students. The ceremonies will be followed by a traditional reception. ## Two Drive-In Seminars Will Focus On Reading

The improvement of reading programs for secondary schools will be the subject of two drive-in seminars at A&T State University on April 21 and later on April 29.

Both conferences for educational administrators from across the state are being sponsored by the division of reading of the North Carolina State Department of Public Instruction.

Thursday's conference will be held from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the Paul Robeson Theatre. The state will also sponsor other reading conferences at Appalachian state University and at East Carolina University.

"The idea for these sessions," said Mrs. Gladys White, coordinator of the A&T conference, "is to acquaint principals and other educators (See Seminar, Page 6)

Job Market Isn't Tight For Female Accountants

If the job market is tight, it isn't tight for the women accounting majors at A&T State University.

In fact, the young ladies in the School of Business and Economics are besieged by offers of employment ranging from $12,500 to $15,000.

"This is a testimonial to our fine program," said Dr. Quiester Craig, dean of the school, "and also to the fine performance of the ladies and the men in the program."

A recent interview with five of the students scheduled to graduate in May revealed that the young ladies are highly enthusiastic about their futures in the public accounting field.

"I became interested in accounting while in high school," said Miss Hilda Pinnix, a native of Efland. "I took a course in booking and that sold me."

Miss Pinnix said she would like to become a controller in a major corporation. Another student, Miss Thelma Anders of Raleigh, said she would like to be a partner in a CPA firm. Miss Anders has a 3.9 average.

"The one thing I like about this field," she said, "is that you can be a career woman and still combine a career with a marriage."

Diana Williams of Greensboro said she was attracted to the study of accounting because it is "mind boggling." Miss Williams, has an overall average of 3.6 on a 4.00 point scale.

Dr. Craig said that approximately 40 percent of the A&T's current accounting majors are women. He said that, as a rule, all of the students get the opportunity to participate in an off-campus work experience, either in the summer or during the school year.

The five young ladies interviewed have all worked for a major accounting firm.

"We are pleased that the women are in the high performance group of each class," said Dr. Craig. "The field of accounting is an open field," he said, "and about 80 percent of our graduates, men and women, get accounting-related positions."

Ford Officials

Will Conduct

Program Here

Officials and executives of the Ford Motor Company will exchange their plush offices and desks for a few hours on a university campus next Wednesday when they conduct a College Roundtable Program at A&T State University.

The Ford party will arrive by plane Wednesday morning and spend several hours at A&T meeting with administrators, students and faculty members.

The executives will share small seminars with the students on such topics as "The Product: From Concept to Market, and "An Overview of New Technology."

Later in the day, 21 A&T faculty members and 29 students will travel to Raleigh to attend a dinner with the Ford people at North Carolina State University.

The College Roundtable Program was established by Ford as an effort to promote understanding between higher education and the business sector.

"They want to know what college educators and students think about them," said Dr. Willie T. Ellis, coordinator of Ford's visit to A&T. "They also want to show something of themselves."

One Participates In Exchange

By Albert Leach

Moses Kamara, director of the instructional development department, said that there was only one student participating in the Student Exchange Program. Her name is Sylvia Mitchell.

Sylvia is a junior landscape architecture major with a 3.2 overall average.

Sylvia is from the University of Wisconsin at Madison, where she is a member of the Omega Psi Phi Pearl Sorority.

When asked what she thought of A&T, she said, "A&T has a lot of nice aspects and I love the weather and my social life."

Sylvia also stated that coming to A&T gave her a chance to see how it would be to come to a predominantly Black school. She also said that the work load at A&T isn't as heavy as the work load at Wisconsin.

The first exchange program started in 1967. It was founded under Title III of the Higher Education Act of 1965.

Kamara said that the exchange program was between the University of Wisconsin and A&T, which consisted of approximately 150 students from both schools.

Students that participated in the exchange program are enrolled in their regular courses and majors.

Kamara also stated that students only spend one semester on the host campus, but it helps prepare students academically and psychologically. It also encourages the majority of the students to prepare for graduate studies at larger schools.

The exchange program formally ended in 1973 when funds were terminated.

The public is invited.

Entertainment:

Nelle's Corner

By Lynelle Stevenson

I hope your spring break was enjoyable and that everybody is ready to get back to the books.

The Jacksons and Wild Cherry will be in concert at the Greensboro Coliseum on March 26. However, that's all the information I have. For further information contact the Greensboro Coliseum.

Now, on to a show I do know about.

Billy Joel, a dynamic pianist who is enjoying audiences across the country, will appear at the Greensboro Auditorium, Wednesday, March 23, at 8 p.m.

Joel's music and style express his intensity as a musician. He revels in the spirit of his song "I've Loved These Days" as he sits at his grand piano singing, stamping, playing harmonica and leading his band.

Joel's career as a pianist began when he started playing classical piano at the age of 7. He started playing with Long Island bands when he was 15, travelling the Long Island Circuit.

In 1968 Joel left the Circuit to record an album with the Hassles. The next year he and Jon Small, former Hassles drummer, formed a duo called Attila, and soon cut another album.

After deciding to go on his own, Joel moved to Los Angeles, where he played in a piano bar using the name William Martin Joel.

In 1973 he signed with Columbia Records, where he recorded the album "Piano Man," the single becoming an instant AM hit, and several other cuts, including "Captain Jack." He was named Best New Male Vocalist by Cash Box in 1974 following the success of the album, and soon became a tour headliner.

Joel's band includes Richie Cannata, a multi-talented musician who plays organ, strings, tenor sax, soprano sax and flute; Liberty de Vitto, drummer; Howie Emoron, guitarist; and Doug Stegmeyer, bass player.

Billy Joel leaves no doubt that he is the Piano Man. His audiences and fans, totally convinced, are always in the mood for his melodies.

Reserve tickets for the Billy Joe concert are priced at $7.00 and $6.00. They can be purchased at the Coliseum Box Office, all area Record Bars and Reznick's in Winston-Salem.

NOTICE!

Wednesday, March 23, will be the last day for students wishing to drop a class without credit. Failure to drop class by this date will result in an incomplete grade or F.

Practice What You Preach!

The plight of the Wilmington 10 has become a major topic of discussion in connection with President Jimmy Carter's campaign on human rights.

Many political activists are arguing that, if Carter can denounce human suppression in other countries such as the Soviet Union and Korea, he should then do the same here. One must admit the activists have a point.

In his speech to the United Nations last week, Carter said, "No member of the United Nations can claim that mistreatment of its citizens is solely its own business." If that is the case, then he should have taken immediate action long ago in the case of the Wilmington 10. Surely they have been treated unjustly (according to recent testimonies).

In speaking of human rights, one can easily see that the United States is not without its own faults. This country has discriminated not only against Blacks but other races as well. Discrimination still exist in this country and especially in the case of the American Indian. Mr. Carter can not paint a "holier than thou" picture of the United States.

There are a number of violations this country has committed which involve human rights. Mr. Carter has a right to denounce human suppression. But he shouldn't do it unless he is sure this country has a clean slate.

Many of the countries are getting upset with Carter not because of his stand on the issue but because they see him as a hypocrite.

If Mr. Carter is so intent on having his way with the human rights issue, then he should practice what he preaches.

Alexander Receives Stipend

North Carolina Congressman Richardson Preyer announces that a North Carolina scholar is among the 220 recipients selected to receive National Endowment for the Humanities Summer Stipends awards for 1977.

Professor Sandra C. Alexander, A&T State University, Department of English, has been awarded a summer stipend that provides each recipient with $2,500 for two months full-time scholarly study and research during the summer of 1977. Stipends are awarded to college and university teachers and others working in the humanities who have proposed projects of high quality and value to the humanities.

This year's 220 recipients of awards were chosen on the basis of national competition from among 1,577 eligible applicants.

The National Endowment for the Humanities Summer Stipends for 1977 were awarded in the traditional disciplines of the humanities such as literature, history, philosophy, religion, and foreign languages. Awards have also been made to study those aspects of the social sciences which seek humanistic knowledge and understanding of the problems they address.

Professor Alexander is a 1969 graduate of A&T State University in English. She has MA degree from Harvard and Ph.D in American Literature from the University of Pittsburgh.

With her summer stipend, Professor Alexander will complete the research and begin the writing of a full-length biography of Arna Wendell Bontemps, a prolific Black poet, short story writer and novelist. She will be interviewing friends and relatives of Mr. Bontemps in Nashville, Tennessee and Huntsville, Alabama, as well as doing research at Yale University.

Conley Gets Life Sentence

OXFORD (AP)-Virginia officials are expected to seek extradition of Reuben "Sonny" Conley, sentenced Friday to life in prison in the shooting last November of a Virginia state trooper.

Conley was convicted of first degree murder charges in Granville County Superior Court here. He still faces kidnaping and assault charges in Virginia. Defense attorneys have filed notice of appeal.

Conley, 33, was accused of wounding trooper Garland W.

Fisher in Dinwiddie County, Va., then forcing Fisher at gunpoint to drive his patrol car south toward Atlanta, Conley's home town.

North Carolina troopers set up a makeshift roadblock on Interstate 85 just north of Durham and gunfire erupted when Fisher's car reached it.

When the shooting was over, Fisher was dead, and Conley was wounded. Testimony at his trial indicated Fisher was killed by bullets fired from Conley's gun.

Conley's attorneys tried to show their client was insane at the time of the shooting. Two psychiatrists said Conley was a paranoid schizophrenic with delusions of persecution and hallucinations.

Conley himself interrupted the trial at one point with complaints to the judge he heard voices.

If Conley is extradited and convicted in Virginia on the assault and kidnaping charges, he would have to serve his North Carolina sentence first.

French Club Plans Activities

By Johnny Hunter

Voila le Cercle Francais! The French Club is alive and preparing for the Foreign Languages Motivation Week, March 28 to April 1. Under the direction of faculty advisor, Joyce M. Woodbury, French students are rehearsing songs, poems, and short plays. These will be presented in the purest of the Romance languages—French. Their goal is centered around motivating the student toward greater communicative skills, said Mrs. Woodbury. Describing the student participation in the programs, she added that the "beginning French students will be responsible for songs and tongue-twisters. Advanced French students will be responsible for the one act playlets."

A schedule of Foreign Languages Week activities will be posted prior to the festivities, start. Looking ahead, Mrs. Woodbury promises an interesting and diversified presentation. Featured will be a French-speaking A&T student from Togo, West Africa, and a surprise guest whose special area of interest is sociology. "She (the surprise speaker) isn't known very well around here now; but she will be soon," predicted Mrs. Woodbury.

The Memory Will Linger On

By Maxine McNeill

The tragedies that have confronted A&T this school year could not have been foreseen by any of us. With the basketball team's losing, James Sparrow's ineligibility situation, the resignation of two coaches and a host of other problems, we needed the spring break to recuperate.

Hopefully, the aforementioned unpleasanties will work themselves out, but naturally their memory will linger on. At this point, the only thing left for us to do is what is rumored Aggies always do, that is regain our morale and retaliate.

Though the basketball team fell low of its esteem this year, it has next year to look forward to. We should stop placing the blame for its losing streak on certain people and just hope the team will improve next year.

These words seem easy to say since they are not being said from the perspective of a person whose life-long dream to play professional basketball was temporarily shattered. Hopefully, that dream was not abandoned. These words also are not being spoken from the mouth of a coach whose career at A&T is rumored to be over.

All of us have to realize that the white gloom which is presently shadowing this university will not be permanent. With our combined efforts, this white gloom can be removed. Then the university will be able to allow the forces of Black advancement and pride dominate.

It looks like Superfly is an Aggie.

Community Organizer To Speak At Institute

Donald Anderson, one of the nation's most successful community organizers against poverty, has been added to the list of speakers for the 8th annual Urban Affairs Institute at A&T State University March 30-April 1.

Anderson, executive director of the National Association for the Southern Poor, with headquarters in Washington, D.C., will participate in sessions on environment and the economy.

It was in 1967 that Anderson, the great-grandson of a Virginia slave, organized the Assembly, which later became hundreds of grassroots community organizations in Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Alabama, Mississippi, Arkansas and Tennessee.

Anderson is a lawyer and attended the London School of Economics. He patterned the Assembly after the British Parliament.

The sessions of the Assembly are held in rural churches, homes and schools, and the participants discuss problems of concern to their localities. The organization has been effective in promoting recreation and public recreation and public health facilities, in seeking increased tobacco allotments and in protecting small farmers against land swindles.

Other panels in the conference will be on employment, the energy crisis, housing and community development, education, criminal justice, the mass media and transportation.

Mayor Jim Melvin will address the opening session of the conference March 30 in the Hilton Inn, community development

Owner Seeks Removal Of Sign

SMITHFIELD (AP) — Thousands of motorists traveling through this Johnston County town will recall the tall sign which says, "Join and Support United Klans of America, Inc." It also says, "Help fight communism and integration" and "KKK Welcomes you to Smithfield."

The new owner of the property says the sign is coming down.

Jimmy Roger Flowers recently acquired the property on which the sign is situated. He says he will have the sign removed but, first, he wants to find out who owns it.

"I don't want to take a 'dozer and tear down something and get sued for it," said Flowers.

The sign, which has provoked controversy for 10 years, stands beside heavily traveled U.S. 70 at the Smithfield city limits. Blacks and others protested when the original sign was erected in 1967. Five years later, someone chopped it down.

The Klan erected the more strongly worded sign that is now on display. "It's been more talk than anything else," says Town Manager Hugh Talton. "There have been but a very few people that have liked the sign."

Talton says he will be glad to see the sign go.

Flowers says he might make the sign into a "Welcome to Smithfield" sign or use it to advertise his new realty firm.

"I'm sure it belongs to the Klan," says Flowers, but he doesn't know whom to contact about removing it. There currently is little Klan activity in the area.

For Football And Basketball

A&T Will Name New Coaches

By Craig R. Turner

A press conference has been scheduled for Friday afternoon at the Cosmos I Club and Restaurant at which A&T will announce its new head coaches in both football and basketball.

Speculation and inferences have been drawn about who the new successors will be. The release has been expected since the resignations of football head Hornsby Howell and basketball mentor Warren Reynolds earlier this month.

Appalachian assistant Gene Littles has been the foremost mentioned candidate for the basketball post according to published newspaper and television stories. Littles had stated as late as this week that he had applied for the job but had not had direct contact from the institution.

No names had been circulated through press circles as to who the new head football coach would be. However, the replacement is expected by the university's athletic officials to immediately begin an already delayed spring practice.

It was also learned that A&T is beginning its final phase of fund raising in its quest for a new football stadium to be located on campus at the present practice field.

It was learned that A&T had accumulated donations from alumni and friends totaling nearly $51,000 with a commitment for $1.8 million more on the 16,000 seat structure which is to be completed in 1978.

All of the events take place in the aftermath of the surprise resignations of both Howell and Reynolds. Howell stepped down in favor of his new post as assistant athletic director and a desire to leave coaching.

Reynolds' situation was somewhat different as his resignation came in the wake of the school's worst basketball season in its history at 3-24. Reynolds maintained then, as he does now, that his decision was based solely on professional and family considerations.

A most thorough and deliberate search for two new head coaches is expected to come to an end Friday. A&T will make its announcement on that day as to who will succeed Coaches Hornsby Howell and Warren Reynolds.

No one is sure at this particular moment who the selectees will be although the media has speculated over the last three weeks that Gene Littles of Appalachian State University will be the new basketball man.

No matter who moves into the jobs, there will be a lot of eyes pointed in their directions. A&T has had a long history of athletic excellence in all of its sports endeavors. It rates second to none.

Although miracles are not expected, it is anticipated that some degree of new-found success will be forthcoming. After watching the adversity that the Aggies encountered in both sports this past year, an establishment of a winner would almost be paramount to the longevity of each coach's career at A&T.

That is not undue pressure but a statement of fact. The new men won't have the luxury of stepping into a situation where the ingredients for winning are present. They will have to build it from scratch and that is a job in itself.

Spring Brings Increase In Intramural Sports

By Dennis Bryant

With the coming of the warm weather, the intramural sport activities are in the picture.

On Wednesday, there will be a Rifle meet. Ernest Gaskins wants all persons who signed up for Rifery to meet at Campbell Hall on Wednesday at 6:00.

With the increased interest in softball, the rosters for softball are now ready. If you want to have a team to compete, pick up the rosters at the intramural office. The deadline for these rosters is Monday, March 29, at 5:00 p.m.

There will be a swimming meet coming in two weeks. All persons who are interested in competing are asked to see Kevin Willis in the Student Union. The Office hours are from 8-5 in Rm 103.

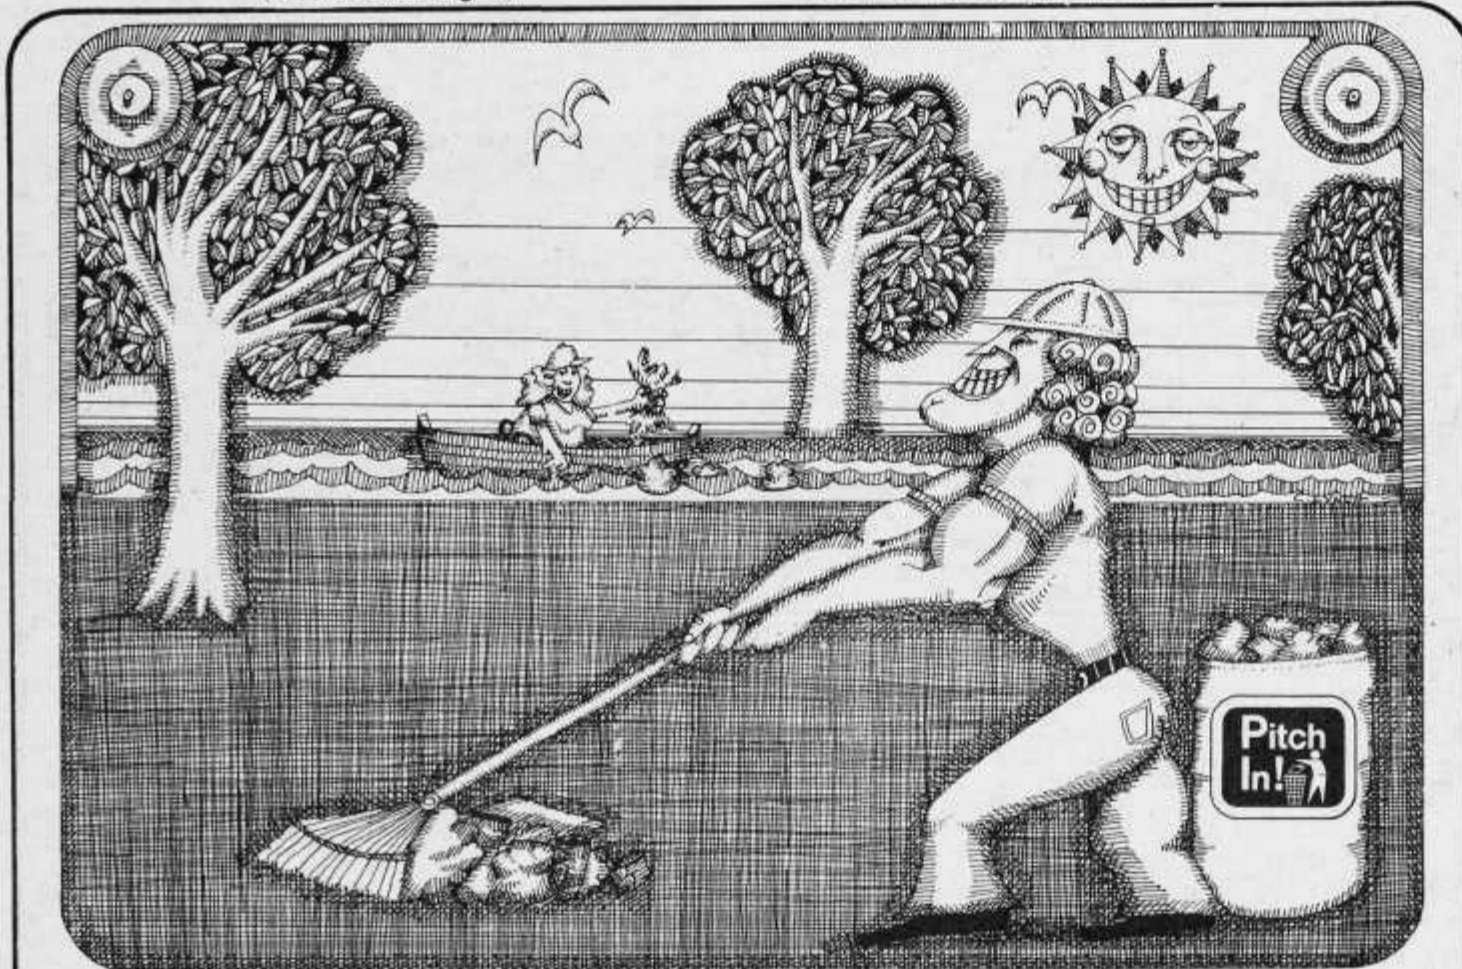

Coordinator Gaskins feels the students will have more time to participate in the spring sports. The biggest area is in softball. Last year almost 15 teams participated. This number should increase to 25 this year.

Gaskins also stated that the females weren't competing in the intramural program as they should. "This program is for both males and females. The university provides the intramural program for all the students. So, if the girls want a softball team, we are looking for them to come by" said Coach Roger McKee.

The intramural program would like to have a representative from each female dorm. From the large dorms, it would be nice to have two or three teams. For more information contact anyone in the intramural office.

On Saturday from 12-4 p.m., there will be a new program starting. The intramural department will rent out bicycles. There will be a small charge of .45 per hour with ID's to rent the bicycles Gaskins said. Bike riding can be more fun when there are people around who want to ride on a Saturday afternoon. We hope to have a successful program.

Gaskins also said the students would sign the roster and then not participate. He feels the students must put forward an honor system if they want us to trust them. "We reach a hand out to help the students and get little or no hand in return. So we would like for the students to participate when they sign up. We would appreciate that."

team in Michigan, and advanced to be one of the NCAA's final four teams.

The University of North Carolina, a slightly more publicized sister institution, has also advanced to the final four under some of the most incapacitating circumstances mentionable.

After losing starting center Tommy LaGarde to an injury, guard Phil Ford to a hyperextended elbow, and having Walter Davis with a makeshift shooting hand, the Tarheels slipped past powerful Notre Dame and second ranked Kentucky.

One has to wonder just what these two clubs have working in their favor. Maybe it's a root doctor or some magical hex that allows these two to defeat the giants of college basketball. I believe it's more of an invention called the four corners that gives that advantage while UNCC has a fellow named Maxwell who performs miracles. One more will be needed this coming Saturday.

The institute luncheon speaker will be James Wilson, director of housing and community development for the county of San Diego in California.

The institute banquet will be addressed by Mel Davis, director of urban affairs for the National Council of YMCAs.

The final speaker on April 1 will be Dr. Louise White, director of the housing consumer Individual workshops during the conference will be held on the energy crisis, housing and urban development, criminal justice, transportation, impact of the mass media, health and welfare, role of the artist in the urban community, and education.

The A&T Urban Affairs Institute was initiated as a student class project in the Department of Sociology and Social Services. The institute has grown each year and generally attracts more than 2,000 participants from across the state.

Persons interested in participating in this year's institute are asked to contact Dr. Dorothy Williams, at 379-7795 or Sampson Buie at 379-7840.
