WASHINGTON (AP) - The Department of Health, Education and Welfare is asking for 60 days to prepare desegregation guidelines for six southern states that still maintain dual systems of higher education.

Under a plan outlined by HEW Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr., in a letter to a federal judge, the states would be required to produce desegregation plans based on the government guidelines by this fall.

The states involved are Florida, Georgia, North Carolina, Virginia, Arkansas and Oklahoma.

Califano made his proposal to U.S. District Court Judge John H. Pratt, who ruled in Washington on Jan. 17 that the federal government must require new desegregation plans from the six states.

In his letter to Pratt, Califano noted he had been in office only two months. "In that time I have not been able to consider fully and carefully the far-reaching social and educational ramifications raised by this case. I need time to consider and decide department policy and to discuss this policy fully within the government," he said.

Saying he was "deeply concerned" to the enforcement of a provision in the 1964 Civil Rights Act barring discrimination in higher education, Califano proposed this timetable:

- Within 45 days of the closing of the comment period, the department would send the guidelines to the six states involved, which would then have 60 days to submit desegregation plans back to the government.

Califano said his proposal has the backing of Atty. Gen. Griffin B. Bell.

Under federal law, failure to comply with desegregation guidelines would result in a loss of federal funds.

The issue of guidelines arose under a 1970 suit filed by the man's defense and Education Fund. The suit calls for enforcement by the courts of the 1964 Civil Rights Act under which federal funds can be withdrawn from state universities if the systems are found to be discriminating on the basis of race.

"I have repeatedly stressed my intent to give HEW's civil rights efforts a renewed sense of purpose and a renewed sense of commitment," Califano wrote. "Most importantly, I want to implement the will of Congress in a manner that is understood and respected by the American people."

The secretary proposed a time schedule under which it would be seven months before the University of North Carolina Board of Governors would have to draw up its own revised desegregation plan of action.

Fall Preregistration
Will Begin April 4

Starting Tuesday, March 29, students will be able to pick up class schedule bulletins from their department heads.

In a memorandum released Tuesday, March 22, by Dr. Rudolph Arts, director of registration and records, it was noted that the necessary materials for pre-registration will be available early this year to "insure that all students may have an opportunity to meet with their academic advisors and select appropriate class schedules before pre-registration. Pre-registration will begin Tuesday, April 4, and continue through Friday, April 8.

Also effective this semester, a housing card will be provided for all students in each department. If a student desires on-campus housing, the advisor will then place the card at the back of the student's set of course cards. Those students not planning to reside on campus next year will not have to go through this procedure.

Each department chairperson is requested to see that each student who attempts to pre-register is provided an opportunity to get a complete schedule of classes consistent with his or her trial schedule. The class schedule bulletin contains detailed pre-registration instructions which appear on page six.

Students Give Opinions
Of SGA President

By Carol Holmes

Tony Tyson, president of the Student Government Association, will be leaving office soon. Various students on the campus were asked how they felt Tyson had fulfilled his position.

Clark Magoo McGriff, chairman of the Social Affairs Committee, said, "Tyson didn't go into the election with the idea of becoming president. He just wanted the position and was not prepared. Tyson had no credentials. He bit off more than he could chew. Tony was a big disappointment to the senior class and student body."

Cynthia Steward, an accounting major, said, "Tyson didn't have enough support. One man can't do the job for the entire student body. Students wouldn't come to the meetings."

Michael Byrd said, "I'm looking forward to the next person."

Mark Melvin, president of the Pottersville, said, "Tony tried hard to right the wrongs of A&T, but without the support of some aesthetic students, he was not able to do it. Thus many students say that he did a poor job. We've got to realize that he couldn't do it by himself."

Other than being a vice president of an insurance company, Robinson is also a noted producer of films on African and Afro-American history. He is the co-author of a book on Black history.

Students View Wedding

By Mary Cropps

Have you ever attended a wedding that began at six o' clock in the morning? Not many, but now A&T students and faculty got a chance to experience such an event vicariously, Wednesday night in the lobby of Zoe P. Barbee Hall.

An authentic Indian wedding was presented through slides as part of the International Week's festivities. Featured here this week were Mr. and Mrs. Zinod Doshi, both graduate students here. Mr. Doshi wore an Indian costume which consisted of a loin cloth, white shirt, and white trousers. The slides depicted what happens during the whole ceremony which begins early in the morning. After many rituals and several changes of attire for the bride, the couple is finally united at the end of the day.

The wedding presented was an elaborate affair. The bride changed her attire several times for different aspects of the ceremony. The bridegroom carried a coconut and they both had to be welcomed into each other's homes.

Those attending the Indian wedding seemed to enjoy this excursion into another culture. The bridegroom carried a coconut and they both had to be welcomed into each other's homes.

Producer David Wolper Hosts 'Roots' Reunion

LOS ANGELES (AP)-Chicken George and Kizzy didn't make it, but most of the other characters from "Roots" attended the reunion party for the people who created television's most-watched show.

The invitation for the dinner, hosted at The Bistro in Beverly Hills by executives producer David Wolper, said it was "the first opportunity for all of us and our friends to get together since that wild week we made television history."

Leslie Uggams, who played Kizzy, and Ben Vereen, who had been Kizzy's son Chicken George, were absent, but everyone present from author Alex Haley to LeVar Burton, who played the young Kunta Kinte, shared the joy.

Before the dancing, Wolper conducted what resembled a witness session at a gospel meeting. Actors, writers and directors took the microphone to testify what "Roots" had meant to them.

The most moving speech was by author Haley, who told of his 12-year quest for his origins and how the TV dramatization evoked "a national galvanic response." He concluded: "The Lord may not come when you expect him to, but he will always be on time."

A reporter asked several participants the question: "How did 'Roots' affect your lives?"

Here are the responses:

Wolper: "I had expected to have an easy year after selling my company to Warner Brothers. Now I'm busier than ever trying to keep up with the response to 'Roots,' including thousands and thousands of letters. And I'm starting on 'Roots II.'"

Levar Burton, Kunta Kinte: "It has assured me that I can do anything I want to do for the rest of my life creatively or otherwise." Chuck Connors, who played Massa Tom Moore: "After 23 years in the business, producers are telling me, 'Hey, I didn't know you could act!'"

George Stanford Brown, Tom Logan: "I was involved in a tragedy, the suicide of Freddie Prinze, his fellow actor in "Chico and the Man.""

Scatman Crothers, Mingo: "I suppose the show brought more notice to my career, I didn't see it. I was involved in a tragedy, the suicide of Freddie Prinze, his fellow actor in "Chico and the Man."

Committee Makes Study

By Maxine McNeill

The ad hoc Committee, a temporary addition to the University Senate, was appointed in September to study and draft a report concerning the deficiency study entitled, “A Comparative Study of the Five Historically Black Constituent Institutions of the UNC System.”

Dr. William DeLauder, chairman of the Committee, presented its counter report at the University Senate meeting Tuesday. The Senate will study the committee’s report and respond to it at its April Senate meeting.

The deficiency report, which was sent to the five historically Black institutions of the UNC system from the office of Dr. William Friday, president of the UNC system, contains two major statements the Committee felt it should address.

“Therfore, no discrimination in the patterns or levels of State budgetary support that is adverse to the historically Black institutions is the first principal conclusion of the deficiency study Dr. DeLauder commented on at the Tuesday Senate meeting. He argued that the deficiency study did not prove Black students are discriminated against by the State with regard to the allocation of funds. He said that is one of the flaws in the study. Also, the second statement made in the study read, “The dominant, distinctive characteristics of the traditionally Black institutions is that they are now.”

The administration must be able to demonstrate leadership—ability to lead. It must be willing and ready to meet reasonable student demands.

It all boils down to total cooperation between the university administrators, the student leaders and the student body. The only way the student body can reverse the trend of the past four years is through active cooperation.

SGA Needs Support

The past four years of student government leadership can best be termed as sub-par productivity. However there have been moments of success. The leaders of the student government cannot accept all the criticism for the bad nor all the praise for the good.

A working student government is based on the ability of those persons seeking responsible offices. Those persons selected by the student body should be able to live up to the responsibilities they have accepted.

A working student government is based on the ability of all on the ability of the student body to stand behind its student leaders. The lack of support of the student body has been a major factor these last four years. If this lack of support continues, then all factions of student life will remain as they are now.

As elections for student government positions near, one can’t help but wonder who will take on the responsibility of running the university community. It will be a long, uphill journey for anyone desiring to become president of the SGA or for any position. That journey can be made a lot easier if there is active support from everyone, including the administration.

The administration must be able to demonstrate leadershipability by being flexible. It must be willing and ready to meet reasonable student demands.

Attend Founder’s Day

By Mary Cropps

A&T will have its 95th Founder’s Day observance Sunday. This is an occasion that occurs every year and commemorates the founding of this university.

Founder’s Day is also an opportunity for students’ parents to come to visit A&T. Dr. Edward Robinson, vice president of N.C. Mutual Life Insurance Company, will be the guest speaker for the occasion.

Founder’s Day is a day dedicated to A&T and consequently to us, the students. We make A&T and this is our day. In the past, students have not attended the Founder’s Day activities very well. Let’s make this Founder’s Day different. Let’s get involved.

Dr. Robinson’s talk will center around Black culture, our culture. We owe it to ourselves to encourage each other and our parents to attend his address. Dr. Robinson is a well-known speaker and everyone should enjoy his address.

It is time for A&T students to realize that programs of this sort are just as much a part of their education as going to class everyday. Our culture and our past is an important part of our education.

Founder’s Day is our day and we should take advantage of the opportunity that it gives us.

Participate In The Drive

By Maxine McNeill

A drive has been underway for sometime now to establish Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. in his birthplace as a national holiday. We all should support this drive for any purpose.

There is no protesting or rioting involved in this drive. All you have to do is take a few minutes and sit down or stand. If you prefer, and write a short letter to Congressman Charlie Rose. Ask him to vote "yes" to Bill HR 1665. The address is: Congressman Charlie Rose, 201 Cannon HOB, Washington, D.C. 20515.

If you do not want to write Congressman Rose, there is an alternate address you can write. That address is: U.S. House of Representatives, Post Office and Civil Service Comm., Washington, D.C. 20510.

This method of request is, in fact, what Dr. King himself advocated. It is a peaceful means of being heard. If you believe in Dr. King and his quest for equality for minorities, do something in honor of him. Tell yourself, you owe it to his memory.

Festivities Provide Culture

By Johnny O. Hunter

"The biggest criticism of last year's festival was the number of American students who didn't...in their dorms." At least one of the international students will end Saturday, March 26.

Festivities Provide Culture

With the concerted efforts of the Council, The National Endowments of the Arts, along from the North Carolina Arts Council, the festivities have set aside to present the many facets of the students' cultures which make their lives different from Americans'.

When the questioning was turned to the hopes of the International Students Office, Mrs. Graves confided that she would like the office to "serve as a cultural resource for American students. The students served (by the office) could be the best educational resources for the Aggies to learn of other cultures besides their own." Mrs. Graves believes that, if students participated in and attended this week's festivities, they would learn something from their association with the international students that "We're really more alike than we are different."

Can you find the hidden operas?
In the past, A&T squirmed, twisted, and buried its head in the sand when it came to hiring competent persons for key positions. Perhaps history was made today as the announcement came that Jim McKinley and Gene Littles would head the two key programs within the athletic department.

It is not often in these days of strife, shortchanging, and passing the buck that you find an honest, down-to-earth, hard-working individual. Qualities such as integrity and loyalty are often referred to but rarely show up in day-to-day routines.

It’s far too early to judge each of these men professionally because neither man has placed a team but on the floor or on the field. But I doubt seriously that anyone can find fault in the characters of these men.

After surveying coaches, personalities, attitudes, and the ethics of former coaches both at A&T and other institutions, it can safely be assumed that A&T has found a couple of winners. It was a good choice.

I very seldom answer rumors, insinuations, or insults, but I think there is a need to set some things straight now that A&T has found its new coaches.

There has been a great deal of whispering about the motivation of the writer of this column as to what exactly lies behind the opinions expressed. I will address this question for the first, last, and only time.

The opinions expressed in Sports Notebook are solely my own. Any comments or conclusions I draw are not influenced by off-the-record conversations, hearsay, or idle gossip. I deal in specifics. No true journalist can afford not to.

The rumors stating that this column is being written to influence the opinions expressed in the A&T Register are false. Is there a need to set some things straight now that A&T has found its new coaches?

support of the students and administration. He needed to sponsor more activities.
Diermonie Dunn, from Greensboro, said, "Nothing was evident or obvious. I didn't see anything productive done by Tyson. The slogan that he chose, 'Unity Conquers All' didn't correspond with the actions."
Toddie Arnt, Whos, said, "He is a nice person. He gets along very well with people and he's very broad minded. Tony listens to suggestions. Within his power, he did all that he could."
Anthony Fox, political science major, said, "The office of the Student Government Association is a serious and highly demanding one. It is a position that requires hard and diligent work. Therefore, to be critical of the man who holds the number-one position of the students is somewhat easy to do. Yet some actions merit criticism and this is one. To think that this administration is one that promised the world, but failed to deliver."
However, the blame doesn't lie entirely on the shoulders of Tony Tyson, but on my fellow Aggies. It is time for us, the Aggies of A&T, to become more involved in the political activities of the school. Lastly, as a community approach, I think that we should select the next president on the job that he can do rather than the realms of popularity."
Rachel Thrower, editor of the yearbook, said, "In an attempt to evaluate and criticize, one should be fully aware of all surrounding circumstances that affected the overall finished product of the SGA this year. Standing on the outside looking in, I could say things could have been better, but that is true in any situation."
"I can, however, be appreciative of the hard work, effort and time exhausted by members of the SGA and Tony Tyson. The SGA is only as good as we make it."
"Sitting in dormitory rooms, being critical and apathetic will not move the SGA in any positive way. So, before the student body says that Tony Tyson did not do anything, remember he is only our elected representative. If he stands alone, what can be accomplished?"
Madeline Clagston, nursing major, said that she believes that Tony Tyson and other officers of the SGA have indeed short changed the student body. "There seemed to be a lack of concern or better more concern about oneself. An SGA should be geared toward serving the students, their wants and needs, not self interest."

The Aggies were the surprise unit in the track events as three meet records fell by the wayside. Jill Bargiron placed second in the 100-yard dash at 11.9, while Peggy Bullard ran third in the high jump with a leap of 4'11". She had a time of 27.00. The mile relay brought a great deal of excitement as the A&T contingent grabbed third with a time of 4:37. In each of the field events the Aggies broke the meet record despite not finishing first.

Weiss we are somewhat content with the meet and what lies ahead for the women. "They did well considering the adverse conditions they have to practice under. We had only one practice before the meet so I guess we are somewhat content for the time."

Coach David Miller said, "I see steady progress each day and I'm looking for bigger and better things. But, we scored a lot of points because we had only eight entries in 13 events."
