Russell Highlights Convocation

Margaret L. Brown
Attorney Patricia Russell, who is Deputy Chief of Industry EEO unit, of the FCC highlighted the Honors Day Convocation with a heart-moving speech entitled "Dare to be Different." She encouraged students to develop their minds to the fullest because to be leaders they have to have knowledge and be able to communicate within the American English.

Russell also stated, "We need minds that have logical reasoning and understanding." Russell said that high school students were dropping out of school although the teachers are dropping in.

Russell said we need to join ranks with all of society that is looking for employment.

Ms. Russell said to students it is nice to dress up the outside but the inside needs it also. She stated it takes courage to be strong and to know where you come from is not a ticket to where you are going. "You (the students) are the hope for tomorrow," she said.

Ms. Russell concluded with a quote from Mary McLeod Bethune "I leave you love, hope, service to education, faith and responsibilities to our youth."

In conclusion she said do not let your horizons become your boundaries.

Awards were given by departments, Alpha Chi, Alpha Kappa Mu, Pi Omega Pi, and the candidates of Who's Who.

Runoff Elections Take Place

By Maxine McNeill

Runoff elections were held Thursday for sophomore and junior class offices. Steve Lipscomb won sophomore class president over Bobby O. Henry.

Miss Sophomore elect is Carol Carr, and Rosaline Tucker became Miss Junior.

"I'd like to commend Laverne McKay for being chairman of the election committee," said Tony Tyson, SGA president. "She had a qualified staff."

Tyson said that more people voted last year than this year. He feels this is because a lot of other activities were occurring at the same time of the elections. Some of the activities Tyson listed were the protest rally, the termination of fraternity and sorority lines and students doing practice teaching.

Association Names Winners

Harold H. Webb, the first Black personnel director for the state of North Carolina, Milton Hilliard of Silver Springs, Md., and Ms. Arlene E. Bell, a teacher in Asheville, have been named winners of the annual awards of the A&T State University

National Alumni Association. The awards will be presented during the association's awards dinner in the Holiday Inn-Four Seasons Saturday, May 7, at 7 p.m. Speaker for the banquet will be Dr. Burleigh Webb, dean of the School of Agriculture at

A&T and a brother of Harold Webb. Harold Webb, who graduated from A&T in 1949, will be presented the alumni achievement award.

His role includes implementing policies of the State Personnel Commission as approved by Governor Jim Hunt. The system applies to approximately 60,000 employees. Hilliard has served as president of the Northeast Region of the A&T Alumni Association. The 1959 graduate will be presented the alumni distinguished service award. He has also been active as an officer of alumni chapters in Northern New Jersey, Baltimore and in Washington, D. C.

Hilliard received the national alumni achievement award in 1973.

Miss Bell, a former "Miss A&T State University", is a fifth grade teacher in the Asheville public schools. She will receive the young alumnus award.

Miss Bell has served as recording secretary and corresponding secretary of the Asheville alumni chapter. While at A&T, she was a band announcer, the Alpha Phi Alpha queen, and "Miss Junior".

Students Should Give SGA Officials Chance

By Charles L. Perry

"Students should give the newly SGA-elected officials a chance to prove themselves," stated Richard Gordon.

This is only one of the many different comments given by students on recent SGA election results.

Robert Simmons, a senior from Fairmont stated, "My candidate did not win, but I'm still going to be just as involved next year as if my candidate had won."

Edna Moore, a freshman from Newark, N.J., stated, "We should not criticize the results because we made the results."

"Evidently it was what the majority of the students wanted," said Calvin Kellam, a junior from Madison.

Leon Link, a senior, said, "I was not that much informed on who won the elections."

From the comments received the majority of the students are willing to do what students on A&T's campus have failed to do in the past, and that is to give the SGA-elected officials a chance.

State Says Wilmington 10 Must Await May Hearing

WILMINGTON (AP)-Defendants in the Wilmington 10 case must await their May 6 post-conviction hearing in jail following a state judge's decision Tuesday.

New Hanover County Superior Court Judge Russell J. Lanier denied bail to nine persons still imprisoned from their 1972 conviction in a firebombing and conspiracy case. The charges stemmed from racial violence in Wilmington in 1971 when a grocery store was burned.

Lanier said he did not have authority to grant bail as requested by defense attorney James E. Ferguson of Charlotte. Ferguson told Lanier that a third prosecution witness-Eric Junious-has recanted his testimony against the group.

Ferguson also had argued that he needed time to prepare for the case and said it would be almost impossible since his clients were in eight different jails in North Carolina. At the hearing next month, the defense will ask that the group's convictions be overturned.

Tyson said his biggest accomplishment was that he kept the students informed about the things happening at A&T.

Judge Orders Findings Released

In another development, U.S. District Court Judge John Larkins, Jr., ordered the U.S. Justice Department to release information from federal grand jury investigation to defense lawyers. The decision was expected by both sides in the case.

Senior Recital

By Fenice Boyd

By Lynelle Stevenson

Sunday afternoon, April 17, in Harrison Auditorium at 2 o'clock Fenice B. Boyd will perform her senior recital.

Boyd is a senior music major from Warrenton. She is an active member of the Music Educators National Conference (MENC) and a charter member of the professional music sorority, Mu Phi Epsilon.

The program will consist of contemporary music for piano beginning with Prelude and Fugue in C Major by Bach and ending with Scherzo Op. 16 number 2 by Mendelssohn.

The performance of a senior recital is mandatory for all music majors to graduate.

attacks in this coastal city in 1971.

Lanier did not allow Ferguson to read an affidavit which the attorney said contained a statement by Junious recanting his previous testimony. Ferguson said that Junious and two other prosecution witnesses—Allen R. Hall, 23, and Jerome Mitchell, 22—all claim now that prosecuting attorneys and police investigators used marked photographs to help the witnesses identify the defendants.

"He (Junious) says he gave them (The prosecutors) what he knew they wanted because he could tell by their questions what they wanted to hear,"

Ferguson said before the hearing.

In telling Ferguson not to read the affidavit, Lanier said that it had no bearing on the bail issue. However, the judge did accept some 100 affidavits into the court record, which Ferguson said testified to the defendants' characters.

The defendants, still in prison, acknowledge as their spokesman the Rev. Ben Chavis, 29, who was head of the Commission for Racial Justice of the United Church of Christ. Chavis and eight other Blacks were given sentences ranging from 29 to 4 years. A white woman convicted of conspiracy has since been paroled after receiving a lighter sentence.

Company Recruiters
Search For Talent

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) - As many major American corporations return to college campuses in 1977 in search of management talent, recruiters are finding students aggressively seeking entry into the business world, college placement officers report.

The storm of protesters who greeted some of the recruiters in the late 1960's has turned into a flow of polite, neatly attired young men and women who are packing placement offices to get on interview schedules, the officials note.

Mary Harrison, who took an accounting position in international tax tuition after graduating from the University of North Carolina in December, describes the competition among students for job interviews as "fierce."

"It was ridiculous. I had to get up at 7 a.m. and wait in line for an hour just to get on the interview lists," Miss Harrison

Nelle's Corner

By Lynelle Stevenson

I have three new books for you from Ballantine Books, A Division of Random House, Inc., for this month.

The first is entitled The Sword of Shannara, by Terry Brooks. In a distant world of elves, dwarfs, gnomes and wise men, the story unfolds of an epic quest for the only weapon capable of stopping a wicked warlock Lord who threatens mankind—the magic Sword of Shannara.

Author Terry Brooks is a young lawyer who lives with his wife and daughter in Sterling, Illinois. The Sword of Shannara is his first novel and he is currently working on a sequel.

The second book is entitled A Man Called Intrepid, by William Stevenson. Applauded for both its historical documentation and its real-life thriller narrative, A Man Called Intrepid is the authentic account of most decisive intelligence network of World War II—a closely guarded secret for 35 years.

Written with the express consent and cooperation of its subject, A Man Called Intrepid also reveals the previously unknown roles of such public figures as Nelson Rockefeller, King George VI, Greta Garbo, Noel Coward, Fiorello LaGuardia, Alexander Korda, Lester Pearson and Hitler's own brother Alois in the secret war that led to allied victory in 1945.

Lastly, there is Let Our Children Go! by Ted Patrick with Tom Dulack.

Ted Patrick, the controversial man who has rescued over 1,000 teenagers—including Patty Hearst—from dubious religious cults, tells his own shocking story of what he does and why alarmed parents hire him to "kidnap" their children in this book.

Let Our Children Go! describes in graphic detail the "kidnappings" and the "deprogrammings" where, in both

Carter Is Hypocrite

President Jimmy Carter who has been speaking out on human rights recently decided to commute the 20-year prison term of G. Gordon Liddy. Liddy was one of the master-minds behind the Watergate break-in. Carter has shortened Liddy's term by 2 years, bringing the number of years of his prison sentence to eight. Liddy will be eligible for parole on July 9.

Carter's decision to commute Liddy's sentence has angered many, especially those persons who wanted him to take immediate action on the celebrated case of the Wilmington 10.

This writer, along with many others, is very concerned about Mr. Carter's decision. Why is it that he has not given the Wilmington 10 the same consideration as he did Liddy who was guilty beyond a shadow of a doubt? Recent testimonies regarding the innocence of the Wilmington 10 have thrown light onto the subject of their being 'rail roaded.' Carter's stance is a complete farce!

Surely he can not say he was unaware of the plight of the Wilmington 10. The Soviet Union's official newspaper TASS has criticized Carter for being a hypocrite. If a Communist country, such as the Soviet Union, can understand the plight of the ten victims of injustice, then it shouldn't take too hard a look on the President's part to see it too.

Carter should intervene in the case of the Wilmington 10 since officials in North Carolina have said they see no reason to grant a new trial. It appears to this writer that a new trial is needed. Two key witnesses who could testify to the innocence of the ten, especially that of Rev. Ben Chavis, have avoided coming back to this state for fear of being prosecuted.

The crime committed by Liddy was far more serious than the one supposedly committed by the Wilmington 10. Yet, by mid-summer, Liddy will most likely be out of jail, and touring the country making a fortune on telling people about his crime. The rest of the Watergate conspirators that have been let out have done it, and he is sure to join the bandwagon.

If Carter can let a man of Liddy's character go free again, then why not ten people who were fighting for the same thing Carter is advocating—human rights?

Letters To The Editor:

The Show Went Too Far

Editor of The Register:

Every semester the fraternities and sororities increase memberships in their prestigious societies. To many students it is an honor to be called a big brother or sister and to be considered an "in" person on campus. It is thought by many people that to belong to any of these groups, a person must be a lady or a gentleman of the highest standing. If this is so, why aren't pledges made to respect the few ladies that attend this university?

In their final week of pledging, pledges are required to put on shows for big brothers and sisters and for the student body. The humiliation is only a minor part of becoming a member of their prospective societies. Some of their outlandish antics one could go along with.

The obscene and vulgar acts the pledges perform should be kept out of the eyes of the public.

A situation which occurred approximately a week ago was going a bit too far. The wearing of long johns in public was not as obscene or vulgar as some of the language, both verbally and bodily, used. Three young males dressed in their underwear, told a small crowd of people, male and female, to kiss their privates and even went so far as to grab them and point to some of the females present. A female witness recalled that one of the young men grabbed a young lady by the breast and shoved her to the ground. All was done in fun and the young men received plenty of laughs.

If this is the way members are inducted, then any student or even an outsider should be allowed to pledge regardless of grades or status. It doesn't take much to be vulgar. The females in the crowd that evening enjoyed that show as much as the males did.

Student Resents Implications

Editor of The Register:

While at A&T, I have noticed a phenomenon that I was aware existed, but it never really hit home until now. Because of the immaturity of some men on campus, it seems to be taboo on this campus as well as on many others for young ladies to carry on a conversation with whomever she pleases. The young men have conceptualized that every man that a woman speaks with, she has to go to bed with. They misinterpret that person or the friendship with that person into something which suits them or the image that they carry.

Recently, I have been involved with more than enough such situations. I am a very friendly person and will talk to anyone who wishes to listen or listen to anyone who wishes to talk. That is the backbone on which I was reared; it bends easily but cannot be broken; the same is true of my personality.

Some men have a tendency to exaggerate or fabricate some fantastic story to prove their manhood. If they were truly men at all, they wouldn't have to tell anyone, for their actions would.

For these men and the rising ones who will model after them because of the coolness that seems to emerge, I have only one thing to say. One day you will look back and relive your life and in that moment of reminiscing you will feel every emotion you've ever felt; and if you should look back and find that the "boys" have grown up to find something more, remember you danced to the music, now you have to pay the band.

This is one pair of hands that will not reach out to embrace everybody 'cause they happen to be Black, attractive, or men. Nor will this mouth of mine open to discriminate against those who do. I'm interested in finding and being with good people, people I can turn to and depend upon. My definition of life and how it is to be lived is still being developed, but one thing is sure—it's about humanity, the caring and commitment to the value and worth of all humankind.

The Good Old Days

By Maxine McNeill

"You know, everybody talks about the good old days" is the first line of a very popular song. Some of our parents tell us, however, that the days commonly thought of as "the good old days" were not necessarily good.

Some seniors at A&T have a tendency to reminisce about some good old days which, according to them, were actually good. These good old days were their experiences of eating in Murphy Hall.

The 1974-75 school year was the year our present eating facility, Williams Cafeteria, opened. Before then, the freshmen and sophomores ate in Murphy Hall and the juniors and seniors ate in Brown cafeteria. The school's prized product, its athletes, ate in the basement of Murphy Hall.

Some past seniors said it was not uncommon to see roaches crawling on the floors of Murphy Hall; but, because the food was so good, they overlooked the roaches.

Some of the present seniors said that the atmosphere was better when they ate in Murphy Hall. They said that, since Murphy Hall was so small, they were forced to eat with people they did not know. Therefore, they got a chance to meet more people than we meet in Williams cafeteria.

Oh, there is one aspect of those good old days which should sound familiar. Some females said that, as they entered and left Murphy Hall, the athletes would be standing on both sides of the door waiting eagerly to do the only thing some of them seem to do well, harass people.

Though some of us never experienced the pleasure of dining in Murphy Hall, we do know what being harassed by athletes is like. That seems to be their favorite pastime during warm weather.

Oh, well, Murphy Hall is presently being renovated to become the new registration center for students. It is supposed to be utilized starting this fall.

In reminiscing about his past experiences, in Murphy Hall, one senior said, "Yep, those were the good old days."

During the Spring Convocation the audience was full of familiar faces. Here Dean Gamble looks on.

Simon Says Students Want Jobs

says.

After interviewing with 12 firms on campus she decided to return to Winston-Salem, her hometown.

"I've seen a radical change in the past few years," says Dennis G. Simon, manager of employment of R.J. Reynolds Industries here. "Students today are a lot better prepared for the initial interview and are dead serious about trying to land a job after graduation."

Simon cites one example to illustrate the attitudes of today's college graduate.

After a day of interviewing at Washington University in St. Louis he was intercepted on his way to a taxi by a student he had interviewed earlier that afternoon. The young M.B.A. candidate had waited more than two hours to make a few more points he thought he had left out during the interview.

As in previous years, the degrees that are in the greatest demand are in engineering, the sciences and business, especially accounting, finance and marketing, says Simon of his own company. He adds that liberal arts graduates and education majors may find the job market more difficult.

"For example," Simon says, "we have openings in entry-level jobs for undergraduates and advanced degree graduates. Most of the openings are for accountants, financial analysts, computer programmers, engineers and other specialized degrees. None would suit a history or sociology major."

Cal Atwood, assistant dean for recruiting and placement for the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, said that at least 10 per cent more firms are expected to recruit there this year than in 1976. And the companies are coming from "farther and farther away" he adds.

"This May we will graduate 110 people with M.B.A. degrees," Atwood said. "By the end of summer, we expect all but two or three per cent to have jobs nailed down." Most graduates will have the luxury of considering two or three offers.

Dr. Leo Eason, placement director for Washington University, says that offers range from $13,000-$14,000 for graduates with a bachelor's degree to as much as $20,000 for top-ranked M.B.A. students.

Minority students are in great demand, according to Eason. Washington University participates in the Consortium for Graduate Study in Management—a business-sponsored program to help minorities get M.B.A. degrees—and those students are heavily recruited.

THE EFFECT OF MARIJUANA SMOKING ON MEMORY

SPORTS NOTEBOOK

By Craig R. Turner

Saturday afternoon will be the beginning of a new era as far as A&T's football future is concerned.

The Aggies will hold their first full scale scrimmage on the university's athletic practice field at 3 p.m.

Coach Jim McKinley hasn't really revealed just what extent the Aggies had improved. He has attributed that to the early stages of spring practice.

But, if anyone has followed A&T football closely over the last two weeks, a few things stand out. Those are, that this upcoming edition of the Aggies is going to be young, fast, and very large.

Saturday's workout will almost certainly prove to be interesting in determining just who has progressed the most over the winter.

Yesterday marked the signing date for national letters of intent in collegiate basketball circles.

Duke put the end to rumors that the heralded Gene Banks would defect from a previous conference contract. He did not.

The only other area school who grabbed players of worthwhile attention was UNC-Charlotte. The 49ers grabbed 6-8 All-Stater George DeVone of Newton Grove and 6-10 George Jones of Tampa, Fla. Both corralled 17 rebounds apiece.

DeVone averaged 26 points per game while Jones ushered out 24 each outing.

The ghost of Cedric Maxwell should not linger long in the Queen City.

The rumors that several football players have been kicked off the team by Coach McKinley have been grossly overplayed.

McKinley stated, in a recent interview, that the boycott by several veterans was over as far as he was concerned.

He also said that no players had come to him with any gripes as a group. McKinley made it plain that he did not believe that coaching allowed for democracy on a team.

The code word here is discipline. It is discipline of the strictest sense. Those that can adapt will probably continue to play in the Blue and Gold. Those that don't will probably just slide on out from the athletic arena altogether. That's just the way it is, a fact of life.

Lady Tracksters Please Coach

"I am pleased with the performance and effort by the lady tracksters."

Intramural

Softball Season

Draws Spectators

In the mist of the perfect weather, the intramural softball season entered its second big week. A crowd close to 200 spectators watched the games on Wednesday.

The crowd, one of the largest ever to watch an intramural game, watched on as the Ques and the Kappas battled. The game was very much like a championship game. The Kappas and Ques battled inning after inning.

The Kappas took a quick lead in the third inning, only to have the Ques battle back in the fourth and fifth to win. The Big Red Machine was put down by poor infielding, and numerous mistakes in the outfield.

In the game, the Kappas committed about five errors in the fourth inning alone.

And the saying goes, "you can't win on too many mistakes." Ask the Minnesota Vikings, New York Yankees and Jimmy Connors. Errors killed all these potential champions.

The Archery tournament will be held next week. Persons who signed up for Archery are asked to contact Ernest Gaskin or Coach Roger McKee in Room 103 in the Student Union. The last day to participate is Wednesday.

There are rosters in each dorm for the tennis doubles tournament. If you haven't signed the fosters, the last day is Monday, April 18.

David Miller, Aggiette track coach.

Those words were in reference to the April 9 meet at Chapel Hill where the lady speedsters finished fourth in a field of seven schools.

"This was a high quality meet with no push-over schools," stated Miller.

According to Miller, participants were Carolina, N.C. State, Virginia State, William and Mary, VMI, and the Richmond Track Club.

Gail Barger was the stand-out for the tracksters, placing third in the 110-yard hurdlers. She also finished third in the 100-yard dash.

Donna Scott turned in a fine performance finishing fifth in the 110-yard low hurdlers, and third in the high jump at 4'6".

Patricia Hardy placed third in the shot-put, tossing the steel ball 39 feet 9 inches. "This was Patricia's first meet of the year participating in the field events, but I knew she would place high after watching her in practice," said Miller.

Beverly Young exemplified her excellent track ability finishing third in the long jump at 16'8" and tied for fourth place in the high jump at 4'6".

The 440 relay team composed of Beverly Young, Gail Barger, Diane Williams, and Gail Deloney, showed tremendous signs of beating any opponent.

"We could have easily won the 440 relay, but we were halted by the exchanges," stated Miller. "If there is any positive certainty in winning any of the events this season, I feel confident that the 440 relay team will come through," he said.

This weekend the lady speedsters will travel to Norfolk, Virginia, for the Norfolk Relays.

"The girls are doing what they are capable of; and with this in mind, we should make a very good showing," concluded Miller.

SGA Sponsors Fun Day Tomorrow

By Catherine Speller

The third annual Fun Day sponsored by the Student Government Association and the Intramural department will be held Saturday April 16 from 1-6.

This year's Fun Day will include several new activities and, in the competitive events, trophies will be given out to the winners.

First, on the agenda, is bike racing which will start at 12 noon at Moore gym. For the competitive events, students must show their identification cards. They must also register for each individual game.

Wheelbarrel racing, sack races, relays, chess games, card games, frisbee throwing, horse shoes and pie eating contests will be open to everyone. The softball and volley ball games will be open for intramural teams only and the football passing events, will be closed to all football players or prospective players. Judges will decide on the winners of each event.

Non competitive events will include a well planned obstacle course, tug of war, egg tossing and palm reading by a professional palmist.

A booth will be provided for hypnotic feats. The band, Electric Express, from Winston-Salem will also perform during Fun Day activities.

Dinner will be served by the campus food services.

All events will be held on the football practice field. Student identification cards will be required to enter the area and when registering for events. The trophies will be awarded from the Intramural Department and the Student Government Association.
