Danforth Grants Emphasize Improvement In Learning

The Danforth Foundation, established by the late Mr. and Mrs. William H. Danforth in 1927, is a national, educational, philanthropic organization, dedicated to enhancing the humane dimensions of life. Activities of the Foundation emphasize the theme of improving the quality of teaching and learning. The Foundation serves the following areas: higher education primarily through sponsorship of programs administered by the Staff, precollegiate education through grant-making and program activities, and urban affairs in metropolitan St. Louis through grant-making and program activities.

The Danforth Graduate Fellowships, are to be awarded by the Danforth Foundation of St. Louis, Missouri in April of 1978. The Danforth Graduate Fellowships are open to all qualified persons who have serious interest in careers of teaching in colleges and universities, and who plan to study for a Ph.D. in any field of study common to the undergraduate liberal arts curriculum in the United States.

Approximately 60-65 Fellowships will be awarded to college seniors who are nominated by Liaison Officers. Another 35-40 awards will be made to post baccalaureate persons who apply directly to the Foundation.

Applicants for the baccalaureate awards must be college seniors and may not have undertaken graduate level programs of study beyond their college-level work. They must be nominated by Liaison Officers of their undergraduate institutions by November 15, 1977. The Danforth Foundation does not accept direct applications for the baccalaureate fellowships.

HEW Secretary Unsure Of UNC-CH Reaction

RALEIGH (AP) - Joseph Califano, secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, said yesterday that desegregation quotas handed to the University of North Carolina system are not "unyielding" goals.

"In some cases, I hope the goals will be exceeded and in some cases they may not be met," Califano said at a Washington news conference.

Califano did not indicate how HEW would react to a UNC Board of Governors plan, approved and submitted by Gov. Jim Hunt last week. The plan includes a goal of 32 per cent increase in Black enrollment at predominantly white schools.

"An HEW plan proposed a 150 percent hike in minority students.

"The goals are not unyielding quotas," the secretary said.

"It's something we shoot for"

However, he emphasized the federal government stands by affirmative action programs.

North Carolina and five other states were required to submit revised desegregation plans to HEW last week after a federal judge ruled the states' previous plans were ineffective.

McDaniel Is Department Head

By Maxine McNeill

Dr. William T. McDaniel, former chairman of the Music Department at Morehouse College in Atlanta, Ga., has been appointed chairman of the Music Department at North Carolina A&T. Dr. McDaniel has served on the faculty at Morehouse since 1968.

A professional arranger, Dr. McDaniel has arranged music for colleges and universities as well as several professional groups. Dr. McDaniel who is a woodwind specialist has worked with Motown Records backing up such professional groups as the Temptations and Supremes.

Dr. McDaniel achieved his BA degree from Morehouse and his PhD. from the University of Iowa. His research areas were in Afro-American Music History and Jazz, Physical Acoustics of Woodwind instruments and Experimental Research in Music Education.

"I love to conduct bands and orchestras and I like to write music, both concert and jazz," Dr. McDaniel said.

When he was asked about the controversy concerning A&T's Marching Band, Dr. McDaniel simply said, "I fully intend to support all of the department ensembles at A&T State University, in an effort to upgrade and improve the quality of the music performances as well as enrich the cultural and esthetic experiences of the (See McDaniel, Page 2)

Three Seek Freshman Office

By Anthony Boyd

George Waddell, Johnny Wallace and Dennis Ward are candidates seeking the position of freshman class president for the 77-78 school term. The candidates expressed definite goals they'd like to see their freshman class reach.

"I would like to make the freshman class a part of what's going on, on campus. I would also like for this class to set a standard academically and socially higher than previous classes," said Johnny Wallace, a business administration major from Charlotte.

Ward, an accounting major from Wilson, says, "In past years the freshman class, to me, didn't do all it was capable of doing, and it's about time that this freshman class did something about it."

Both candidates expressed high hopes for their class if elected.

The need to help his class and school prompted Wallace to run for office.

Ward's ambitions for the year are to create a strong sense of "unity among the members of the freshman class."

The third candidate, George Waddell, was unavailable for comments.

Campaign speeches will be given Thursday, September 15, in Harrison Auditorium at 8 p.m. Elections will be held the following day.

Band Members Not Responsible

By Maxine McNeill

The North Carolina A&T student body has done a lot of speculation as to the problem with the Marching Band since its performance during the game against Winston-Salem State University. The band members say students blamed them for something they had no control over.

Turner Battle, junior baritone saxophone player with the Marching Machine, said "As far as the band is concerned, it's not the band members' fault. The band director came to A&T from a high school and he wants the band to play songs which relate to a concert band." He also said a lot of the senior band members did not perform this year because they did not want to be subjected to this their final year.

Calvin Jackson who is also a junior saxophone player said that the band director is killing the spirit of the band by not letting them perform in their traditional method. "Out of the three weeks we've been back, we've only marched to the field twice and back once," Jackson said. "Our old tradition is leaving. The band director wants our music to be educational; A&T Students don't agree with that."

Kenneth Jones, senior, chose not to be a member of the Marching Band this year. "I don't have anything against the man personally, but as a band director his concepts are out-of-date. He doesn't belong to the same line of thought as the band members," Jones continued. "He promised us one thing but we got something else. He has hurt the band members and destroyed their momentum."

Silas Hall, freshman saxophone player, said he wanted to join the band because he thought A&T's band was supposed to be "bad" but said it seems as if this band's performances are comparable to his high school band. "We play concert music instead of soul," said Hall.

Katrina Platt, senior clarinet player said, "Most band members are unhappy because they don't feel like playing that type music. We're not being treated fairly by the students because of the article in the newspaper," Katrina said. "We didn't have any pep because we didn't have a reason."

Hugh Privette, sophomore drummer, said the problem between the band director and band members is that the director is directing on the high school level. Privette said the band members do not have any input into the selections they play.

Bennie Mack, sophomore trumpet player, said the band members were not enthusiastic about their performance during the Winston-Salem game because they knew what the performance would look like. He said they practiced only four days before the Saturday performance. "People don't come to hear the band for education; they come for entertainment," Mack said. "The director wants to cut out all dancing."

Privette and Mack said they have not quit the band because they take pride in being members of the Aggie Marching Machine.

Dr. McDaniel said he is glad to be at A&T and that he is looking forward to a good academic year.

Ray Charles Performs On Campus

Albert Leach

The show began with performances by Harry and his dummy friend Freddie doing various comedy acts that were thoroughly enjoyed by the audience.

Ray Charles' Orchestra performed an introduction selection for Charles. The appearance of Ray Charles as he entered the gym drew a standing ovation from the crowd.

Although the crowd was not as large as expected, Ray Charles put on one of the best shows that have been in Moore Gym for quite some time.

The security for the show was almost doubled to what it has been in the past.

The Raylettes, five female singers, also performed with Charles.

Except for too much makeup on Ray Charles, everything was in order. During the Press Conference, when asked why he decided to be a musician, Charles said, "I was a blessed man. Ever since I can remember, music was a part of me or I was a part of it."

Charles also said "The first person that influenced me was a man you won't find in any music annuals, Wally Pittman was a plain old guy that lived next door to me. He had an upright piano and he played the boogie woogie."

Walter Carlson Is Not New At Post Of Band Director

By Delilah Perkins

Walter F. Carlson this years band director is not new to his job. He has held the position as band director here at A&T in the past.

Carlson stated that the band had to start from stretch and build a new foundation all over again. He said, "The first performance of the band should not be judged as the total expectation or performance of the band to come."

Carlson admits that the band has its problems but, with better organization, the band will excel as the year goes on. Many changes have occurred within the band including problems with the new freshmen and the old band members adjusting to each other, instruments repairs, refunds, accommodations and the major problem was no roll or register of students was left from the previous year to work with. He stressed that the membership of the band this year is due to (See New, Page 5)

Harry and his dummy, Freddie also starred in the show.

The Greensboro Coliseum announced the completion of a joint venture agreement with Belk Department Stores and sister stores in Piedmont consumer area.

The agreement is a move to provide ticket outlets for most events in the coliseum starting September 12.

The agreement will permit residents within a 100-mile radius of the coliseum to purchase tickets to events such as Holiday on Ice, Ringling Circus, music concerts and wrestling.

The residents of nearby cities have been required to purchase tickets through the mail, by phone reservations, by driving to the coliseum or one of its Greensboro agencies prior to the day of the show.

The massive Belk Area Ticket Service (BATS) will be comprised of 18 Belk Stores in a 12 city network.

Ticket outlets will be located in the Belk Department Stores in Greensboro, Winston-Salem, High Point, Thomasville, Asheboro, Siler City, Durham, Chapel Hill, Lexington, Burlington, the Belk-Leggett in Danville and the Leggett Store in Martinsville.

Coliseum manager James Oshust stated, "Customer service is the primary reason for this project. We must increase the accessibility of our building by putting tickets into the areas where the great majority of our customers live."

The first tickets to be sold through the new outlets will be for Holiday on Ice and will go on sale Monday, September 12. Holiday on Ice will appear in the Greensboro Coliseum October 11-16.

Don't forget that the A&T's Top Ten envelope is located on the front door of the A&T Register's Office. Please have all selections in by 12 noon Thursday.

The New Jerusalem Interdenominational presents "The Love Alive Gospel Celebration" starring Walter Hawkins and Family, September 16. Special guest will be The Angelic Gospel Singers, Gospel Keynotes, A&T Fellowship Gospel Choir, Frank Williams Chorale Ensemble, Revelations Quartet, New Light Young Adult Choir and others.

Walter Hawkins and Family are best known for the selections "Goin' Up Yonder," "I'm Going Through," and "Changed."

Hawkins is the husband, father, composer, singer, minister and musical patriarch of the family. Tramaine is Walter's wife, and the lead singer. Edwin, Walter's brother is pianist, singer and speaker. He is also known for the award winning recording of "O Happy Day." Carol,

A&T Party School

Prior to enrolling at A&T a lot of students were told by relatives and friends that A&T had a reputation of being "the party school." These students soon learned, however, that that was a misconception.

Although there are parties occasionally on the weekends, they do not compete with the impression some of us were given about students partying every night of the week. Where these ideas arrived is a mystery to a lot of students.

Granted, A&T students might have once had a reputation of excessive partying. A long time ago that reputation may have been true. These past years those students who enrolled here solely for that purpose have been disappointed. It appears that the students these days have too much studying to do.

A lot of explanations have been given which try to explain the reason the party image has vanished.

One student said he believes a lot of people were frightened because of the publicity concerning A&T and UNC-G's merging. He said these Black students began to realize that, if A&T was to merge with UNC-G, the entrance standards would rise and not many Blacks would be accepted for enrollment. He also said that a lot of the students already enrolled at A&T would be forced to leave.

That is an interesting theory. Who knows? There may be some truth in what was said. Well, for whatever reasons, just as some of the other traditions have faded away, the partying image has also ceased to be in existence.

The atmosphere permeates the campus these days is one of a serious mood. This atmosphere has already been felt this semester, even though it has just begun.

Don't Start Shoplifting

By Margaret L. Brown

Now that things are in full swing in Aggieland, let's not start out giving the university an undesirable reputation this semester.

With pledging and homecoming just around the corner, don't start the so-called childish crime of shoplifting. This reporter believes an ounce of prevention is worth years of rehabilitation. Sure, it has been said that, if it's your first offense, the judge won't be too hard on you but you will still have a criminal record.

This will and can affect your future more than you realize. For example, would you want to hire an ex-offender of the law or give one a scholarship to graduate school?

Some say, "I never get caught at home;

I'm good at it." But, most of the stores in Greensboro have plain clothes police people watching you, photo cameras in fitting rooms and various other invisible devices attached to clothes that will set off an alarm if you leave the store with concealed merchandise.

Some say they shoplift for kicks because things on campus are so boring. If you're bored, then we have a remedy which is joining The A&T Register staff. We guarantee you will not have a dull moment!

Even if you're not a shoplifter come by and pay us a visit. We're sure you'll find something "exciting," "captivating" and mind boggling to do. See you Wednesday at 7:30 p.m.

Participate In SNEA

By Catherine Speller

In preparing to become professional educators, we as students should seek out all available help to aid us in our teacher training programs.

The Student National Educators Association (SNEA) is a pre-professional organization which has a very prominent chapter right here on campus. The organization is designed to prepare its members to be quality teachers by providing educational experiences through involvement with other students and professionals in the organization.

It's vital that we take part in this student organization and others to promote education and the advancement of the Black race. This reporter encourages all education majors at A&T to participate in this worthwhile organization which could very well aid you in your chosen profession.

freshmen being advised by the department chairman of their commitments and responsibilities of participating in the band. "Our goal is to have new uniforms in time for the new stadium," stated Carlson.

Odell Shoffner is the new band assistant and is in charge of directing the band. He is a former Aggie and he has taught in the Greensboro school system at Page and Smith high schools. Shoffner explains that he is not merely directing the band but he is the assistant to the director.

Pam Feaster and Madeline Young, two band members, feel that being a member of a traditional Aggie spirit is a distinct honor. These young ladies stress their commitment to the "Marching Blue and Gold" and not solely the glory they receive from the fans. They believe that Carlson and Shoffner should not be condemned on their first performance but the band, with practice and working together as a uniformed group will achieve their reward as the traditional "bad Aggies band."

Tribunal To Begin In October

By Anthony Boyd

The university tribunal of the A&T court system will be in operation beginning in October. The tribunal consists of students and faculty members, who hear trials and decide verdicts for the various cases which appear before them.

Struggles between attorney generals and faculty members along with student misconceptions of the tribunal caused many difficulties in the past, according to Michael Davis, attorney general. Davis has begun making plans for a complete reorganization of the university court system. The plan involves doing away with many of the courts now in use. "These courts work fine in theory but not in practice," he said.

Davis also plans to use a student supreme court. The supreme court will consist entirely of students. These students will hear minor cases, and their decisions can be appealed to the university tribunal.

According to Davis, a more balanced judicial system will be achieved with the two courts.

Brown Hall Gets New Equipment

By Linda Freeman

For those of you who have been wondering when Brown Cafeteria will open, the answer is soon, according to Mrs. Laura Thornton, acting food services director.

The delay preventing the opening of the cafeteria is due to remodeling and the installation of new kitchen equipment.

The basic remodeling includes repairing the floors and updating the system of roof ventilation in Brown Hall. Most of the work has already been completed and the building is awaiting certification by the State Health Department.

Upon completion of Brown Hall, any one who wishes to eat there will be permitted to do so by signing up. However, once assigned to Brown Hall, no one will be allowed to switch back to Williams Cafeteria.

All breakfast and weekend meals will continue to be served in Williams Dining Hall.

The students who choose to eat in Brown will be served lunch and dinner five days a week at regular posted times.

Carter Recruits USAF Students

By Sheila Williams

Captain Hugo Carter an Air Force Admission Counselor for the State of N.C., recruits students with college potential to become candidates as Air Force officers. As a North Carolina admission counselor he works directly for the Area Commandant, Colonel Lindy Gunderson, in the Middle Atlantic Region which is responsible for recruiting these students.

Captain Carter received his commission from the officers Training School, Lackland Air Force Base, Texas, where he was reassigned to A&T from Langley Air Force Base in Virginia.

Captain Carter is replacing Captain Larry G. Siler because he was reassigned in Washington, D.C.

He works with high school and college counselors throughout the state, and his program includes a trip to every county in North Carolina. Also there will be workshops and visits to the placement office. He assists in advertising in all the media and works with the ROTC program.

Home Management House Gets New Look

By Vanessa Spells

While walking along Nocho Street near Murphy Hall, one is sure to notice the structure that sits directly in front of the Mattye Reid Heritage House and maybe wonder exactly what is its use.

This structure is called the Garrett House and is used in the course, Home Management, for home economics majors. The course is designed to give students experience in applying the principles of management and interpersonal relations to group living.

His wife is the former Miss Rebecca L. Parker of Durham, N.C. He has two sons Hugo Jr. and Eric and he now resides in Greensboro.

During the course of the year persons and the instructor, take up actual residence there and live as a group. The house is not in use now because it is undergoing renovations. These renovations include rewiring, repainting, wall papering, carpeting, heating and an air conditioning system, new kitchen, bathrooms, and other details. While the house was not in use, students did other field assignments to equal that of staying in the Garrett house.

The house is about 35 years old and when finished will meet living conditions of a modern house in size and structure. The department chairman, Harold Mazyck, stated the only thing lacking in the house would be the furniture, beds and other items of this sort which he hopes to receive.

The house has a living room, den, kitchen, dining room, utility room, study, four bedrooms and 2½ baths.

The Garrett House was named in honor of Florence Garrett who was among the first women students to attend the university. She bequeathed her small estate as an endowment.

SPORTS NOTEBOOK

By Archie Bass

Even though the Aggies were idle this past weekend, practice was conducted Thursday and Friday in the rain, as if S.C. game were Saturday.

"Whenever you lose - rain, sleet, or snow you gotta' go," said one of the assistant coaches.

And, since we were brutally crushed by the Rams, practice drills were held to avoid another embarrassing slaughter.

Despite the rain, however, I saw signs of the gridironers getting "mean". There was slipping and sliding; but, it didn't distract from the massive, blood-aimed forearms that were swinging.

Looking back at the Winston-Salem game, we weren't as brutal as we are capable of being or let's say, the players didn't have blood in their eyes.

If the rain caused the players to hit that rough last Thursday and Friday, it makes me hope for rain Saturday against S.C. State.

Unfortunately, the rain couldn't have started a week ago right before the Aggie-Ram clash!

Meanwhile, speaking of those same Winston-Salem Rams that forced the Aggies to workout in the rain, they invaded Hampton, Virginia Saturday and bombed Hampton 34-6, preseason favorite to win the CIAA.

So I guess the Rams are for real; if not, arrange an appointment with Jim McKinley.

In other football action involving Black schools across the state, this past weekend saw Lenoir Rhyne over J. C. Smith, Norfolk State and North Carolina Central over Livingstone and Elizabeth City State.

A&T Travels To South Carolina

A&T will take the proverbial journey into Death Valley as the Aggies face South Carolina State in Orangeburg, S.C., this Saturday night.

Coach Willie Jeffries enters his fifth year as head coach and has compiled a 34-10-2 record. In that short time, the Bulldogs have gone to four consecutive bowl games, won three MEAC championships, one runnerup, but most importantly captured its first National Championship in 1976.

Jeffries received his initial start in college coaching at A&T, where he was the defensive coordinator for five years, before going to South Carolina in 1973.

S.C. State has had nine players join the professional ranks, the most notable of which was Harry Carson, now the starting middle linebacker for the New York Giants.

Winston-Salem Beats Hampton

The college football season got underway last weekend under a full slate of games and there were surprises in the first week. The biggest surprise was the convincing 34-6 victory by Winston-Salem over highly rated Hampton.

Last week the Rams stymied A&T 33-14 and used the same style of attack on the Pirates. All-CIAA quarterback Russ Seaton completed only six of 19 passes for Hampton.

Elsewhere, North Carolina Central evened its record with a come-from-behind 16-13 triumph over Elizabeth City State. Maryland-Eastern Shore led most of the way but finally succumbed to Towson State 13-12.

Florida A&M went all the way to New York City to battle upstart Howard in Giant Stadium. Coach Rudy Hubbard's Rattlers made short work of the Bison with a sound 28-7 win.

Morgan State continued its winning streak from a year ago with a solid defensive effort and a 118 yard rushing performance from Lloyd McCleave to upend Virginia State 19-0.

Virginia Union remained the top club in the CIAA with a 55-0 rout of helpless Fish in Richmond, Va., Saturday night.

In the SWAC, Mississippi Valley destroyed Lincoln 55-0, Jackson State thumped Tennessee State 17-7, and Grambling blasted defending champion Alcorn 42-17. It was Alcorn's second straight defeat.

Central State, minus Jim McKinley, squeaked past Morris

Brown 21-20. Texas Southern upset Bethune-Cookman 14-0 in Houston, Texas, Norfolk State bumped off Livingstone 14-13.

The defending national champions South Carolina State, used a crushing ground game, a stout defense, and only five passes in shutting out Delaware State before 9,000 fans in Orangeburg, S. C. This week the Bulldogs entertain A & T, the only team to defeat them a year ago.

George Small To Be Outstanding Player

When A&T Head Football Coach Jim McKinley and his staff were reviewing plans for the 1977 football season in April, they were concerned about strengthening the defensive unit.

McKinley informed linebacker coach Ron Beard that he could pick any player he wanted from the offensive or defensive line to play the important position of middle linebacker. Beard's choice was George Small.

Small stands 6-3 and weighs 245 pounds. Last season he saw action at offensive tackle, tight end, and scored two touchdowns as a full back. Pound for pound he may be the most talented player on the team.

"George is an outstanding football player and he will certainly be one of the outstanding linebackers in the MEAC this season. We feel that he will lead our big play defense capably this year."

Coy Holland Quits Team Because Position Changes

By Archie Bass

Coy Holland, a 1976 All-Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference tight end, has quit the Aggie football team because of position changes.

"I was given an alternative to play offensive guard or nothing," declared Holland.

According to Holland, the coach needed a replacement for the injured Wheeler Brown and "since I played offense last year, they figured I was the likely candidate."

Holland, 6-6, 245 pounds, was the fifth leading pass receiver in the conference last season. This season Holland was switched to defensive tackle in an effort to strengthen the Aggie defensive front wall.

"I don't think that I can show the greatest amount of my ability at the offensive guard position compared to the defensive line position or as a tight end," stated Holland.

"My goals are to play professionally at the defensive end position; pro scouts don't look at offensive linemen at Black schools," said Holland.

Holland's replacement at defensive tackle will be 6-4, 242 pound senior Greg Smith.

"I would go back to play tight end or at the defensive end position; and, if not, then I'll transfer to another school," said Holland. "I hate not playing and being out there with the players, but, I have to do what's best for me," concluded Holland.

So, as it stands, the Aggies will journey to Orangeburg, S.C. to play defending conference champion South Carolina State on Saturday without the services of Coy Holland.

Teams Have Disagreement Over Game Schedule Time

RALEIGH (AP) - Both teams are claiming they won, and the game was never even played.

Shaw University was supposed to play Knoxville College last Saturday, and Shaw officials said their contract was clear that kickoff time was to be 2 p.m.

Knoxville officials tried several weeks ago to change the time to 7:30 p.m., but Shaw said they would play at 2 p.m. or not at all.

The Shaw team waited on the field until 3:30 p.m. and then left. Now both teams are claiming a forfeit victory.

"We had already made our arrangements and couldn't change them," said Shaw acting athletic director J.E. Lytle as he explained why he refused the request for the switch to 7:30 p.m.

"We probably won't play them again in my lifetime," Lytle said.

Bulldogs Open With Big Win

The Bulldogs opened last week with a big 21-0 league win over Delaware State, but that victory proved to be a costly one.

All-MEAC quarterback Jesse Prather suffered a dislocated shoulder and will not dress for the upcoming battle with A&T.

Instead Nate Rivers, the junior reserve, will lead the Bulldog veer. With him will be fullback Ricky Anderson (6-3, 215) and leading ground gainer Charles Burgess (180).

The blocking assignments will belong to Art Prescott (6-1½, 248) and Al Lester (235). The center is (5-11, 225) Robert Holden.

The defensive unit lost seven starters a year ago but the difference is hardly noticeable. After leading the nation in defensive statistics for three straight seasons, Jeffries has shoved up most of the leaks.

The big plus is a tough front four led by massive Walt Sullivan (6-5, 260). The ends are All-MEAC Bobby Moore (225) and Tony Clay (230).

The linebackers are the one area which worries Bulldog followers. It is composed of three unfamiliar names.

Mike Washington (200) is the leading returnee along with Gene Grant (220) and James McCoy (225).

The secondary led the MEAC last year in interceptions with 22 total. Tommy Brown and Rufus Bess are capable seniors.

The kicking chores belong to always accurate Malcolm Montgomery who was All-MEAC as a punter and placekicker.

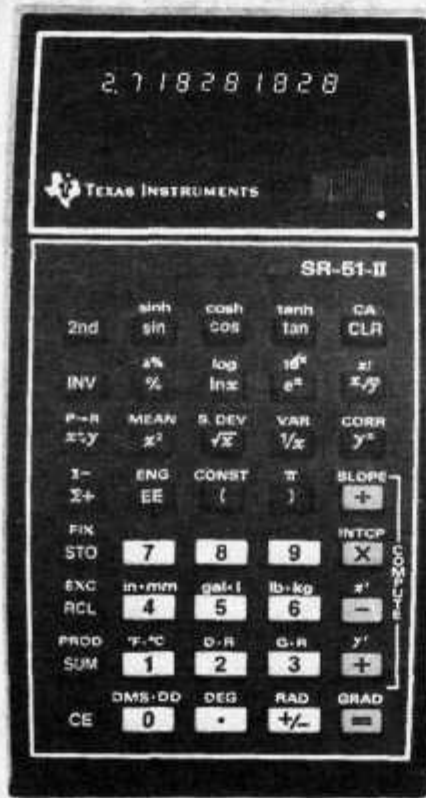

Game time is set for 7:30 p.m. in Orangeburg, S.C.
