Placement Office Needs More Adequate Facilities

By Anthony Boyd

The Career Planning and Placement office opened its recruiting season this week. However, the staff feels it has not been provided with adequate facilities to accommodate the over 1,000 interviewers expected this season.

The problem stems from a lack of appropriate furniture in interviewing booths and offices. According to W.I. Morris, director of the placement center, 12 beautiful interview booths from the baseboard up have been furnished, but that is all that has been done.

John Akerman, vice-president of the Branch Banking and Trust Company in Wilson, held an interview in one such booth. The booth was a small room. Inside were a few wooden straight-back chairs but no tables or desks.

Akerman and his interviewer were forced to improvise by placing a board between two chairs. The floors, worn and bare in some places and covered with old paint spots, have yet to be carpeted.

Since their move to Murphy Hall, questions have been raised concerning the lack of furniture and carpet in offices and interview booths. As of yet, the questions remain unanswered and the rooms bare.

"My supervisor, Dr. Jesse Marshall, vice-chancellor for student affairs, and I have requested the necessary furniture, carpeting and other materials; but, as of today, they have not arrived," said Morris.

The staff of the placement office is deeply concerned about tarnishing the beautiful image it has built through the years with these recruiters.

Bryant Addresses Legislature

By Larry Jenkins

"The SGA is the most powerful organization on campus," stated Warren "Toby" Bryant, vice-president of the Student Government Association.

Bryant spoke to approximately 20 student legislators last night at the second legislature meeting of the year. Although the turn-out was few, Bryant emphasized that he is going to work with the legislature representatives that are participating. He stated, "New dorm representatives will be chosen for those not participating."

Committee chairmen were selected and presidential appointees were approved. Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee is Elvira Mangrum; chairman of the Finance Committee is Larry Jenkins; chairman of the Rules Committee is Telana Felder; and, chairman of the Judicial Committee is David Gray. Also, parliamentarian is Dallas Miller, sergeant-at-arms; Gary Graham; and speaker pro tem, Allen Brickhouse.

Marie Monk was selected chairman of the Food Grievance Committee. "The responsibility of this committee will be to circulate a survey to find constructive problems in the cafeteria," stated Bryant.

Bryant said that T-shirts and bumper stickers will not be sold during homecoming week due to technicalities. Homecoming booklets will be sold at the information desk of the Student Union Tuesday thru Saturday from 8 5 p.m.

The 1977-78 budget of the SGA is $70,000. The legislature members approved this budget which was submitted by Tony Graham, SGA president.

"I was very pleased with the meeting tonight," Bryant said. "I will continue to work with the number of students that participate in the meetings in an effort to uphold the laws of the constitution of the Student Government," he concluded.

Queen Explains 'Class' In Homecoming Theme

By Catherine Speller

"Everyone has his own concept of class, and now would be the opportunity to display your particular idea of 'Coming Home with Touch Class'," said Debbie.

Miss A&T, Deborah Richardson, explained homecoming 77's theme "Coming Home With a Touch of Class." Throughout the past, homecoming A&T consisted of coronation, a pre-dawn show, parade on Saturday morning and the football game in the afternoon.

After the game there are usually various reunions amongst sororities, fraternities, alumni, many Aggie friends, and the Homecoming Show.

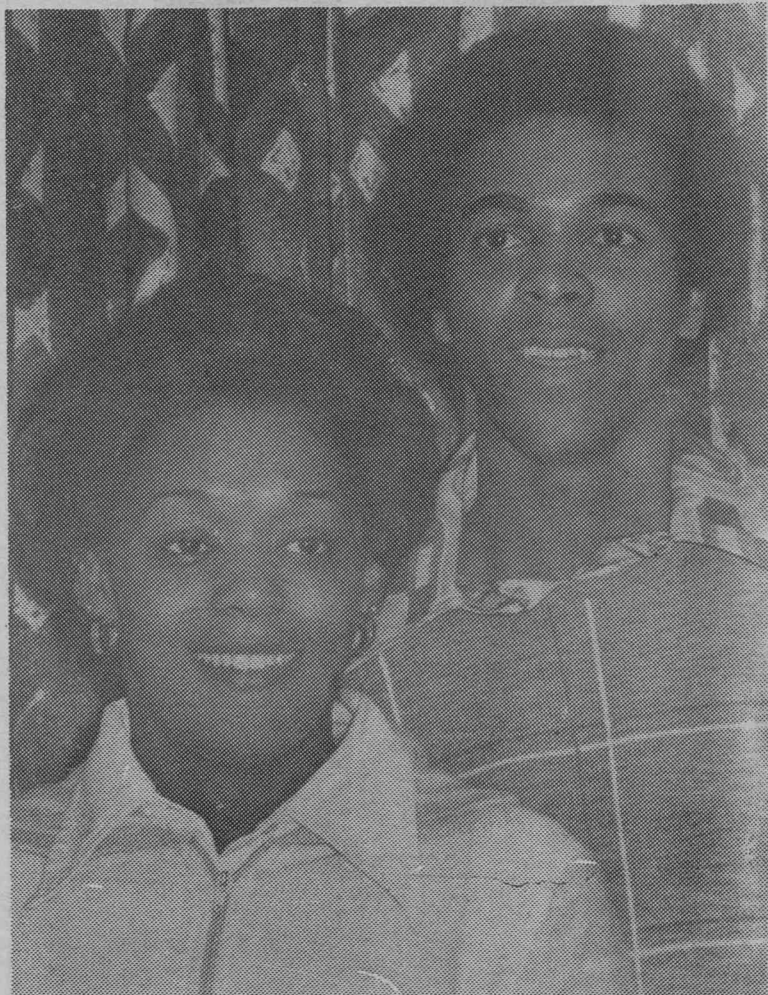

"Essentially, Homecoming '77' events will be the same as in previous years; however, working in this perspective why not add a "touch of class" to brighten this festive occasion" stated Debbie.

Another trip will also take place October 14 through 15. Constance Hammond and Clifton Murrell have been selected to go to Boston, Massachusetts for the National Students Broadcasters Association Conference.

The Mass Communication Program, in conjunction with the Kellogg Foundation is planning several trips for mass communications majors during the school year.

Council To Advise Foundation

WASHINGTON The National Research Council will advise the National Science Foundation in the selection of candidates for the Foundation's National Needs Postdoctoral Fellowships. Panels of scientists and engineers appointed by the Research Council will evaluate applications of all candidates.

Approximately 140 National Needs Postdoctoral Fellowships will be awarded for research and study on scientific problems related to national needs in the mathematical, physical, medical, biological, engineering, and social sciences, as well as in disciplinary areas.

Awards will not be made in clinical, education, or business fields, nor in history, social work, or public health. Applications may be made by those persons who will have earned by the beginning of their fellowship tenures a Ph.D. degree in one of the fields of science listed above, or have had research training and experience equivalent to that represented by a Ph.D. degree, and will have held the doctorate for no more than five years as of December 5,

All applicants must be citizens of the United States and will be judged on the basis of ability.

The basic stipend for Postdoctoral Fellows is $1,000 per month. In addition, the National Science Foundation will provide the fellowship institution, upon its request, with a cost-of-education allowance on behalf of the Fellow to assist the institution in meeting the cost of tuition and fees, and in providing the Fellow with space, supplies, and equipment.

The deadline date for the submission of applications is December 5. Final selection of Fellows will be made by the Foundation, with awards to be announced in March 1978. For further information and application materials, contact the Fellowship Office, National Research Council, 2101 Constitution Avenue, Washington, D. C. 20418.

Students Meet Professionals

In Major Fields

Workshops, conferences and seminars provide students with the opportunity to meet professionals in the fields of radio, television and the print media.

The possibility of job proposals, graduate school enrollment and internships could become evident as a result of these visits.

Other trips to take place in the fall and spring will cover a number of cities and states such as Houston, Texas, Washington, D.C., Las Vegas, Nev., Detroit Mich., Cincinnati, Ohio, and Chapel Hill.

20 or more guests.

The setting for coronation is in a first-class club scene and "with the after five look as the mode of dress," Debbie exclaimed.

Today's classic look will also be worn by Debbie's court which is composed of attendants from each class: Miss Freshman attendant, Gretta Shaw, Miss Sophomore attendant, Patricia Maye, Miss Junior attendant, Deborah Wiley; and Miss Senior attendant, Carolyn Ravenell.

Coronation which is October 10 will feature guest vocalist Melba Moore.

Debbie also hopes that this year's homecoming will be one of the most "euphoric experiences ever witnessed on A&T's campus. So join and add your touch of class to this unique festivity."

History Department Gets Three New Instructors

Robert Blackwell

Three new instructors are in the History Department this year.

Shelton Clark, a native of Hamlet, received both his B.S. and M.S. degrees at A&T. He is presently doing doctoral work at Rutgers University.

Clark taught for three years at Voorhees College in Denmark, S.C.

Clark's plans are to enlighten the students to the extent that they will have a comprehensive knowledge of history. "I would like to instill within students a knowledge of history that will enable them to cope with the changes in society," said Clark.

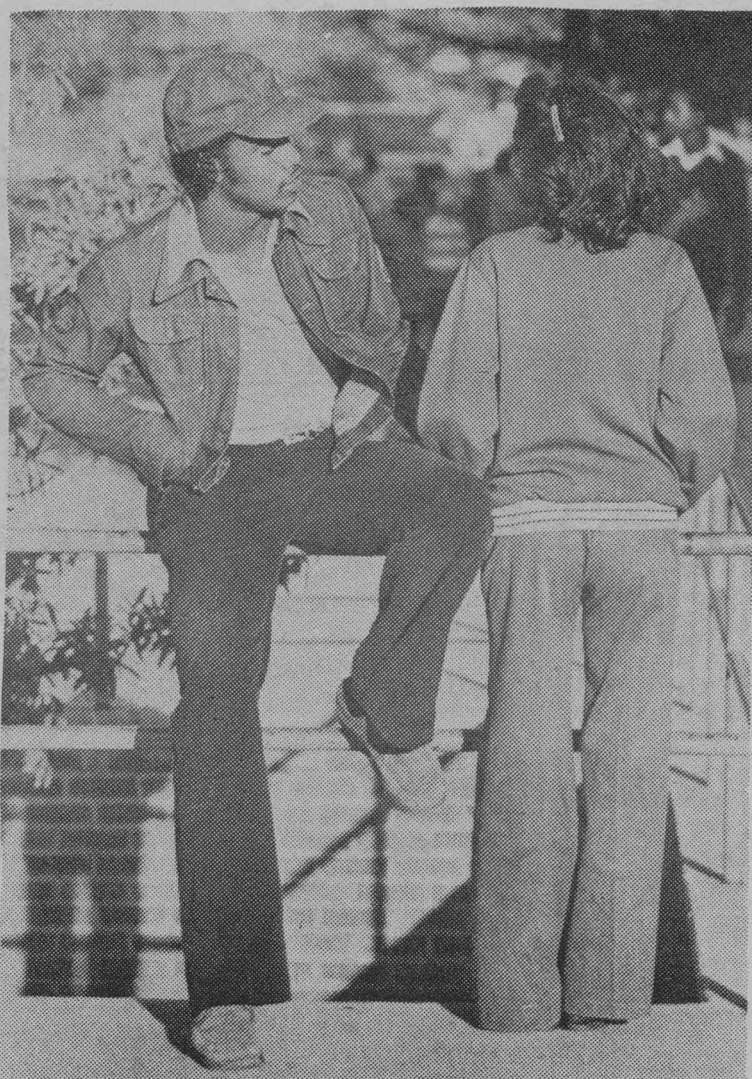

Dr. Elizabeth Murphy, a native of Greenville, received her B.A. degree from UNC-G and the M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from Duke University. After completing her doctorate she taught at Wake Forest University. Dr. Murphy conducted numerous research projects at Duke University and also worked for the Microfilm Corporation of America where her work "The Socialist Party of America Papers" was published.

Dr. Murphy hopes to learn from the students as well as to teach them. "I hope to increase students' knowledge of the different civilizations of the world," said Dr. Murphy.

"I'd like to generate new ideas and become more involved with the students in the History Department; then I feel I will have started out in the right direction."

Dr. Olen Cole is a new instructor in the History Department. The Berkeley, California, native received his B.A. and M.A. degrees from California State University and his Ph.D. from Howard University where he taught for one year. Dr. Cole also worked as a research assistant with the Smithsonian Institute and the National Archives.

Dr. Cynthia Wedel To Lecture At UNC-G

By Albert Leach

Dr. Cynthia Wedel, one of the six presidents of the world council of churches, will deliver the first annual Thomas J. C. Smyth Lectures October 11th and 12th.

The lectures will be presented at the Alumni House at UNC-G. The lecture is scheduled to begin at 8:15 p.m.

Dr. Wedel's overall topic will be "God, the World and Us", with the first lecture being entitled "Faith and the Challenge of Change". The second lecture will be entitled "There's a World Out There".

Dr. Wedel served as president of the National Council of Churches from 1969 to 1972. She has also served as national president of the Ecumenical Church Women United.

In addition to her experience in church work, Dr. Wedel has been active in the Red Cross, Center for Voluntary Society and the Girl Scouts.

The lectures are being sponsored by St. Mary's House, the Episcopal Campus House at UNC-G and Greensboro College.

from Burlington. In songs, testimonies, and brief messages the evangelistic/gospel group captured the attention of a large crowd Friday afternoon in front of Williams Cafeteria.

Under the leadership of Rev. J.R. Williams, executive director, Duffy Robbins, associate director, the group's mission is to reach campus and community with the message of the Christian Gospel.

New Direction was the University Religious Life Committee's fall project.

The group is "one means of drawing attention to the purpose of improving the moral and spiritual tone of the campus," said Rev. Cleo McCoy.

Students participated in a number of the songs by singing and handclapping. As a young lady sang "Jesus is the Best Thing...", this reporter noted tears and a general atmosphere of togetherness among the students.

"When You Say Lord," in the tune of the famous beer commercial, was a fun-filled, yet meaningful experience. "I won't Last A Day Without You," "Things Are Gonna Get Easier," and especially the closing song seemed to be exactly what the audience needed to realize that things are going to get brighter.

The Leach Line

By Albert Leach

There was a lot of excitement in Aggieland this weekend, not only did A&T demolish J. C. Smith 44-20 but the A&T Blue and Gold Marching Machine started on the right track again.

J. C. Smith's band marched on the field with precision drills playing to the tune of "O-H-I-O." The band also performed a few dance steps.

Then it was the A&T Blue and Gold Marching Machine's turn. The Aggies stepped onto the field to the tune of "Fanfare to Star Wars," which was performed near the end of the football field.

After their first selection, the band moved to the 50-yard line where they performed "Brickhouse," and "Easy."

The Aggies really started to get down to the tunes of "Devil's Gun," and "We Don't Wanna Sit Down (We Wanna' Git Down)."

Now it looks as if the marching machine will be ready for homecoming.

The A&T Top Ten suggestion box will soon be located in the lobby of the F. A. Williams Cafeteria. This is your opportunity to choose the records you feel should be tops. Look For It.

The Program of the Year isn't on TV. It's in the Air Force ROTC.

Look into Air Force ROTC. And there are 4-year, 3-year, or 2-year programs to choose from. Whichever you select, you'll leave college with a commission as an Air Force officer. With opportunities for a position with responsibility... challenge... and, of course, financial rewards and security.

The courses themselves prepare you for leadership positions ahead. Positions as a member of an aircrew... or as a missile launch officer... positions using mathematics... sciences... engineering.

Look out for yourself. Look into the Air Force ROTC programs on campus.

Homecoming

Make The Most Of It!!!

With homecoming less than a week away, there still seems to be no real excitement felt in from the student body. In fact, most students act as if they could care less about the event.

Maybe the quickly approaching homecoming celebration took some students by surprise. Whatever the reason, students don't seem as enthusiastic about it as they were in the past years.

Last year, students complained and said that they did not enjoy the homecoming events. Complaints have dominated these celebrations for the past three years.

It's strange; but, when you are a freshman or sophomore, homecoming doesn't seem too important. That could be because you have other homecomings to look forward to. When you become a (hopefully) graduating senior, however, you realize this is the last homecoming you will ever celebrate as an undergraduate student. Therefore, you have to make the most of the event.

Oh, sure, some of you seniors may say that, if you don't graduate this year, you'll be around to celebrate another homecoming. It won't be the same, though; all of your classmates will be gone and you'll probably feel awkward.

The only thing this reporter has to say to you seniors is make the best of this homecoming.

You've journeyed through three years looking forward to becoming a senior. You deserve to enjoy yourselves. Since this is (hopefully) your last one, you'd better make the most of it.

Pre-Law

Trend Distrubs Groves

Editor of the Register:

My attention has been called to what is a disturbing trend in some of the predominantly Black colleges and universities, as far as pre-law curricula are concerned. We are sufficiently troubled to feel that the situation warrants calling the matter to your attention, with the hope that you will convey our concerns to counselors and pre-law advisers on your campus.

The view has long prevailed on many Black campuses that the only appropriate major for the student interested in law was political science; and now we find that on some campuses students are being channeled into even more narrow and vocationally oriented majors, such as criminal justice. For many students this is a serious mistake.

While political science is certainly a satisfactory pre-law major, it by no means represents the only one. What the student interested in law needs from his college is a broad education as a generalist, with enough courses in English to be able to use the language skillfully. His major could be as varied as accounting to physics. He should be counseled to major in the area of greatest interest to him, provided it is sound, challenging, undergraduate major. Law schools teach all the technical and vocational courses necessary; and they have no particular interest in building on a special base of political science, criminal justice, or any other.

Register Presents Facts

Many students have confronted this reporter with the question why does the A&T Register criticize the football team, the SGA, the band, students and the administration in general?

In answer to the many questions this reporter feels that The Register staff tries to present the facts as they are, unbiased to any group, organization or the faculty and administration.

The motto of our school paper is "Complete Awareness for Complete Commitment," and in order to live up to our motto which is our greatest goal we report events or news as we see it when it happens.

Some of you may say that not all campus news gets reported, but we are only a small organization of approximately 60 people and this includes the entire staff and the editorial board.

We can't do the job alone of covering all of the student activities, faculty changes, cultural programs, administrative policies without your help. This reporter feels that a university of this size and with the enrollment of 5600 should have more student participation on its school paper than 60.

Fellow students, remember that you are students also who have just as many classes to study for as any of you.

You make the campus news each of you faculty, students and any member of the Aggie community. It is your paper; help us to make it the best paper possible. Contribute weekly to the A&T Register.

Will You Be Ready ?

By Margaret L. Brown

Many of you will be graduating from A&T soon. When you accomplish this, will you be ready to cope with the world?

As you may notice, A&T is being attacked from every direction... starting with the Nursing Department and now the accounting system. With the public listening and reading these accusations, it will affect our (the students') future.

How can we show the public that A&T is a top rate university? We can start by spending more time in our library, studying and reading to make ourselves more knowledgeable. By going to the library, the reading room and the learning lab, we can help to reinforce what we learned in class

Many say why should one want to make a high score? Well these tests are supposed to show the public what type of students that A&T is producing to measure the verbal, analytical, and quantitative abilities of college seniors. If students don't perform well on these tests, that's another point for the merger of A&T and UNC-G, which is not what true bred Aggies want.

Study sessions for the NTE are being held every other Thursday in Bluford Library auditorium from 5-7 p.m. The next one is October 6, and there are books you can buy at the bookstore showing what type of questions the GRE may have on it.

The university's reputation does not rely on one individual but on all of us. Let's show the world that A&T has produced and always will produce some of the best graduates in our university system.

Some people can sleep anywhere.

Survey Shows Students Prefer UNCF Colleges

A survey of more than 1200 United Negro College Fund undergraduates concludes that contrary to a widely-held myth students at Black colleges prefer to attend a predominantly-Black school.

They said they would choose to go to one over again if given the choice and they would choose so even if financial aid was not a consideration.

These findings are reported in a study of the needs and resources of students enrolled in UNCF member institutions, just published by the College Fund.

Its authors are Alan H. Kirschner, director of research for the UNCF, and Dr. Jerry S. Davis, an educational consultant to the Fund.

A majority of the respondents, 57.1% said their primary reason for choosing their college was that they wanted to attend a Black school. The second popular reason, 38.3%, was the school's academic reputation. And 35% said the opportunity for financial aid was a prime consideration in choosing their college.

"These documented findings reinforce the assertion that UNCF colleges are fulfilling a deep-rooted need in Black America," said Morris B. Abram, UNCF Chairman of the Board and former President of Brandeis University. "They are doing this while also maintaining a high quality education."

The finding that 35% of the students were attracted by the opportunity for financial aid relates to the findings of an earlier UNCF study. In this previous survey, 80% of the UNCF students were found to come from families earning less than $10,000 annually.

The latest report asserts these additional findings concerning students' economic conditions: "more than nine out of 10 UNCF students (92.8%) reported they had applied for aid from their current colleges. Over 95% of the students who applied for aid said they received assistance.

Court Upholds State Law

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Supreme Court Monday upheld as constitutional the way North Carolina funnels financial aid to private colleges in the state.

The justices, on the same 6-3 vote, also affirmed a similar program in Tennessee.

Dissenting Justices William J. Brennan Jr., Thurgood Marshall and John Paul Stevens said the cases should be reviewed before decision.

A three-judge federal court in North Carolina ruled that the state's three separate funding programs do not violate the constitution's ban against a state establishing or promoting any religion.

The North Carolina programs were challenged by several state residents and Americans United For Separation of Church and State, which centered its attack on two church-affiliated colleges, Belmont Abbey and Pfeiffer.

The three-judge court ruled that the scholarships and financial aid distributed by the state legislature under the three programs were non-religious in nature. "There is no excessive entanglement of the state with religious activities," the lower court said.

One of the programs challenged was established in 1971, when the legislature voted to grant funds to private colleges in the state based on the number of North Carolina resident students who were enrolled on a full-time basis.

Under the program, the individual colleges must use the funds for scholarship assistance to financially needy North Carolina resident students. Seminary and Bible schools are excluded.

The second program involves a $300 credit for all state residents attending private state schools. It does not include the state's public colleges and universities and, Americans United said, "the primary effect therefore is the advancement of religion at least at those schools which are church affiliated."

The third program involved state and federal aid for students showing substantial financial need, and is available to all college students.

In the Tennessee case, the Americans United and several state residents raised the same issues. Their challenge to the state program centered on funds made available to students attending David Lipscomb College. A three-judge federal court in Tennessee ruled that the funding program enacted by the state legislature was constitutional.

Program Aids Students

By Mary Partlow

"I have not encountered any students failing any courses since I started working with the tutorial program," said Charlie Williams.

Williams, a counselor for special services, began his present job as counselor for the tutoring program in January, 1976. He explains that Special Services offers students tutoring in general college courses such as Math, English, Biology and Reading.

"Math and reading are the two basic courses in which students have the most difficulty," Williams stated.

"There is a strong correlation between the students and the tutors," he stated, "because the students pass with the aid of the tutors."

"The tutorial program began September 19, but only 130 students are being served because there is a lack of funds," he explained. "However, a minimum of 250 students need to be provided with the tutorial service."

The tutors hired by Special Services are usually seniors that are recommended by faculty members in every tutoring area.

Hurrah-Hurrah-Hurrah!

It finally happened for Jim McKinley as his dreams of victory that had been agonized by dreadful defeats finally became a reality.

"It seems like it has been forever," he said, following his first victory at A&T as the Aggies clipped the Golden-Bulls of J.C. Smith 44-20.

Saturday afternoon was pay-back time for McKinley and the Aggie gridders, but McKinley chose to "call off the dogs."

"We've been waiting to put some points on the board and we could have gone over 50 if I hadn't used the second unit the whole fourth quarter. The players have seen that we can score if we're consistent and our defense really went after them," said a happy McKinley.

A crowd in excess of 6,000 fans cheered joyously to the trouncing victory.

"We're ready to roll now."

"We finally turned the corner!"

"Well, one-out-of-four ain't bad!"

Those remarks were over-heard after the game from several fans.

The game had figured to be a low scoring contest but tides were reversed, which waved 208-yards offensively for the Aggies and 294-yards offensively for J. C. Smith.

Without knowledge of the two teams' winless records, one possibly would have visualized the game as "the battle" of the MEAC-CIAA.

But, we all know better.

This writer had reported after the S.C. State slaughter that Jim McKinley would welcome others to North Carolina before it was over.

Running up the score looks good on the scoreboard but it produces the question -why? J. C. Smith was a weak, low caliber team that just couldn't stand up to the talent of the Aggies.

In judging class, McKinley certainly has it as he chose not to score 50 points. After the starting units were taken off the field, they didn't return for the afternoon evident of a coach who seeks performance from the entire squad and not from two units.

Luckily for J. C. Smith they weren't in Orangeburg. We know that Jeffries won't "call the dogs off," even if one is down 52-0.

The jinx has definitely been shaken for the Aggies as the offense is point hungry and the defense is blood thirsty.

Where are Billy Hayes and Willie Jeffries?

McKinley wants revenge and so does the entire Aggie team.

Unfortunately, you only get to play a team once, but Willie Jeffries and others are on the list.

Pay back is murderous!

A&T Trounces J.C. Smith

By Dennis Bryant

When two teams meet with identical 0-3 records, who says there will be little if no action? The A&T Aggies won their first game of the young season, thrashing Johnson C. Smith to raised their record 1-3.

The game began slowly before fullback Ron Scott broke loose on a 48-yard run to begin the excitement. It took the Aggies just eight plays to score; and, for the first time this season, A&T led 7-0 on Scott's run.

Early in the second quarter, A&T recovered a fumbled punt; and it was first-and-goal on Smith's seven-yard line. Quarterback Ellsworth Turner fumbled on the next snap to give J. C. Smith the ball back at its own 10.

The Golden Bulls, aided by two 15-yard penalties and a 23-yard completion to Roland Green, scored in 13 plays to pull to within one at 7-6. The extra point was blocked by linebacker George Small.

With over three minutes to play in the second quarter,

Gerald Johnson returned a Smith-punt 35 yards to the five-yard line. Ron Scott scored his second touchdown from two yards out to make it 14-6 to end the half.

A&T drew first blood in the second half on a 46-yard field goal by Nolan Jones. Three plays later, Smith's quarterback Curtis Johnson fumbled at his own 11-yard line; and A&T was within striking distance once again.

Two plays after the fumble, Turner hit Lon Harris for a 20-yard touchdown to give A&T a 24-6 lead with 6:15 left to play in thirdquarter.

Roland Wooten gave A&T the ball back on an interception of a Curtis Johnson pass. A&T, having scored on every possession in the quarter, took only one play to strike again. Turner passed to Allen Thomas for a 36-yard touchdown, and A&T led 31-6 with 5:12 left in the quarter.

The Aggies failed on their next possession only to have J. C. Smith fumble a punt once more. A&T recovered it on the seven-yard line. Calvin Hawkins scored three plays later, and A&T led 38-6. The quarter ended with the Aggies scoring 24 points; and for the first time in quite a while, victory was in sight.

JCSU, aided by three more A&T penalties, scored on a 17-yard Johnson to Roland Green touchdown. The score stood 38-14, after J. C. Smith added a two-point conversion.

On the next play, Lon Harris, a 5'7" freshman from Dayton, Ohio, broke loose 95 yards on a kickoff return for a touchdown.

Harris, starting at his own five, received blocks from a host of Aggie defenders. The speedster raced untouched down the sideline to bring the Aggie crowd to their feet.

The run by Harris broke the old school record set by Gerald Fitzgerald in 1965 of 92 yards. Coach McKinley used several new faces in the game. The freshmen played the final quarter for needed experience.

Smith scored last on a 15-yard touchdown by Roland Green, his second of the game.

team enroute to a 95-yard kickoff return for a touchdown.

The diminutive Harris, a native of Dayton, Ohio, had come close to breaking other runs this season but the run against JCSU was by far his most exciting of the young season.

"We've always known what Lonnie could do," said a very composed Jim McKinley, first year A&T head coach. "We weren't holding our backs; earlier this season and, consequently, he wasn't getting the yardage that we anticipated he and get in the future."

"One-on-one, he is almost impossible to stop. In fact, in most of those situations the man trying to tackle him can only slow him down and hope for the help."

In four games, Harris has returned 10 kickoffs, good for 259 yards and a touchdown. He has also rushed 24 times for 59 yards and has caught four passes for 41 yards and a touchdown.

The Aggies' opponent for this week will be the Spartans of Norfolk State College. Norfolk dropped a narrow 21-14 decision to CIAA leader Winston-Salem State which defeated A&T in the season's opener for both teams 33-14.

"Norfolk State has a tremendous passing game and we are going to have to improve our coverage to beat them," McKinley said.

"I was pleased with our defense against JCSU but we started to relax after we got the big lead."

Now comes Miller time.
