"COMPLETE AWARENESS FOR COMPLETE COMMITMENT"

VOLUME XIX NUMBER 9 NORTH CAROLINA AGRICULTURAL AND TECHNICAL STATE UNIVERSITY GREENSBORO, TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 26, 1978

Social Revolutions Today Not Black, White Battles

"There is a great social revolution going on in America today, and the wonderful thing about this is that it is not Black against white. It is simply right against wrong. The number-one problem today is not air and water pollution. It is moral pollution," stated Dick Gregory.

Gregory was born in the Black ghetto of St. Louis, Mo. While in high school he became a state champion in track and field and later expanded his honors on the track at Southern Illinois University in Carbondale, Illinois. He entered the entertainment field and rose quickly to the top, once more becoming a "champion" in American society. But society's definition of success was not in line with Dick Gregory's moral passion. As he has described it, "The real champion, I have come to understand, is the man who has risen to the crest of life's highest purpose singular and complete devotion to serving one's fellow man." Dick Gregory has ardently pursued his definition of championship by doing the thing he does best, making people laugh, making people listen, and ultimately helping them understand one another.

During the civil rights movements of the 1960's Gregory participated in every major (and most minor) demonstration for human rights in America. He devoted his time and talent to giving benefits to civil rights groups, peace groups, and other clusters of people devoted to human liberation. And though ironically, the doors he had opened in the entertainment industry began to slam in his face, he did not compromise with his ideals and his vision of a liberated humanity living together in peace.

He is the author of nine books, including his autobiography Nigger, Shadow that Scars Me, No More Lies: The Myth and the Reality of American History, Dick Gregory's Political (See Gregory Page 6)

Dick Gregory will be appearing Thursday night at 7:00pm in Moore Gymnasium.

Dean Craig Says

No Doubts About Accreditation

By Keith Butler

"Have no doubts about it, the School of Business and Economics will receive national accreditation," Dean Quiester Craig of the School of Business and Economics stated after returning from an accreditation workshop. Accompanying Dean Craig at the of the School of Business and Economics who seemed optimistic about accreditation.

The workshop was held in St. Louis, Mo., and was sponsored by the American Assembly of Collegiate Schools of Business (AACSB). Dean Craig stated, "The main purpose of the workshop was to review and give case examples of the eight standards which must be met by all schools seeking accreditation."

The standards to be met involve the recognition of qualitative standards more than quantitative standards. The faculty is reviewed on the terms of the percentage of teachers holding doctoral degrees, scholarly research (See Craig Page 5)

Organizations To Advertise On October 7 In Fair

There will be an "Organization Fair", Saturday, October 7, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. in and around the Memorial Union.

The purpose of this fair is to give the organizations a chance to display or advertise themselves to the student body and community. It would also serve as a day for the organizations to recruit for their protective club.

Each organization will be required to set up some type of booth [table] in and/or around the union or the union grounds to display scrapbooks, organization paraphernalia, and to distribute literature about the organization. (See Music Page 5)

Co-Sponsor Birthday Party

"Be kind to everybody and drink lots of 100 proof coffee," is the advice lovable Mrs. Lula Watson had for her public birthday celebration at A&T State University Monday morning.

Mrs. Watson, who lives in Siler City, is now 104 years old according to all available records in her family, and she was at her best as she entertained the more than 100 students who attended the birthday party in the memorial union.

Living Hall of Famers Await Oct. 27 Induction

Three former outstanding North Carolina A&T State University football players, two basketball players, a baseball star and a boxer have been selected for induction in the A&T Sports Hall of Fame on Friday, Oct. 27.

The living enshrinees are Dr. Ralph L. Wooden, a member of A&T's 1937 CIAA championship basketball team; William H. Blakely, Jr., a record field goal kicker for the Aggies in the early 1950's; Hubert Van Wyke Simmons, all-star baseball pitcher and outfielder in the late 1940's, and Roy Wesley Gearing, an All-CIAA end in the early 1940's.

Also selected was Roy William (Rocky) Wright, an all-conference boxer for A&T in the 1950's.

The two most talented former Aggies to be inducted posthumously are the Rev. Joseph Oscar Foster, who captained both the football and baseball teams in the early 1900's and Jack Holt Gibson, one of the most talented halfbacks ever to star in football for the Aggies.

Reading Is The Basic Study Skill Says Gore

By Jacqueline D. Pender

"You cannot succeed in taking any course without having reading. Reading is the basic study skill," stated Mrs. Ruth M. Gore, director of Academic Advisement. Gore stated that those students who are exposed to the seminars tend to do better on the N.T.E. [National Teachers Exam] than students who haven't been exposed at all.

"All of the tests have five objectives, only one is right. Students don't take time to see the logic in this. We try to help them see the logic," stated Gore.

"Our office of Academic Advisement was born last year. The goals and objectives of the Academic Advisement component are to [1] coordinate the total university-wide academic advisement program, [2] strengthen the comprehensive academic programs and [3] assist faculty, departments and/or schools to improve the quality of institution and services to students.

This has been done by compiling and updating an 'Undergraduate Manual For Academic Advising' which was distributed to academic advisors at the beginning of the school term," stated Gore.

"We like to give the seminars to the students during their senior year, just before they go out to do their student teaching time. At the end of the seminar each student evaluates each seminar because they are recipients", Gore commented. "Dr. Dorothy Prince Barnett, chairman of Department of Secondary Education and Curriculum and a committee in the seminar classes are in charge of the evaluation," stated Gore.

"Our next project will be to provide the faculty members with various academic discipline confidential inspection copies of the N.T.E. area examinations. Consultants in those different areas will be here from E.T.S. [Educational Testing Service].

"We change each semester according to the material that fits the purpose that is to be served. We constantly pay attention to the trends so that we can equip our students with the knowledge and skills and competency needed to compete in our contemporary society," stated Gore.

The seminars are held Tuesday and Thursday for three hours in Room 302, Hodgkin Hall. "The seminars are not just lectures nor is it a teaching class; it is a laboratory. Students come in and work in groups or individually. The faculty as well as the students are highly motivated about the seminars and this is gratifying," stated Gore.

"You can be in any major, and you don't have to be interested in teaching. Students interested in teaching take it as a credit.

This is good experience for student teachers before they go out practice teaching. This gives them some experience for performing in the classroom, by developing skills in the seminars. This way they will have more self-confidence," she said.

"I enjoy working with the faculty and students. My primary concern is the student and his success academically. Gore concluded, "Verbal abilities which the student must be able to do: [1] grasp the main idea in a passage, [2] grasp the secondary idea and sub theme, [3] be able to apply the secondary ideas in a particular instance, [4] be able to make a generalization about the main idea, [5] it demands that the student be able to approve the logic and [6] must have some appreciation of the tone of the reading passage.

These seminars are conducted by faculty members here at A&T. The seminars are based on schedules, topics in connection with professional development for student teachers. The seminars cover areas from "Measurement and Evaluation", to "Psychological Aspects of Test Taking."

Today's contemporary, pop, rhythm and blues, and funk offer many solutions on how to move, groove, make love, or cope with life's pitfalls. In essence, many tell a story; sometimes happy, sometimes a sad one.

Rose Royce has a story to tell in 'Love Don't Live Here Anymore.' The title is self-explanatory but what was the problem? The one she loved and cherished left her with memories of the good times they once shared. She speaks of loneliness, abandonment, pain, and hurt. As a result 'love don't live here anymore.'

Switch debuts with a single that tells of love unlimited and fulfilling, summing up in the words of the title 'There'll Never Be A Better Love'; need I say more?

Quincy Jones takes us to the 'joint' where anything you can name is done with no shame in 'Stuff Like That.' This song tells us what happens when 'evil gets in the air.' The question is what makes you feel like doing stuff like that? Chaka Khan, lead vocalist, says "it feels so good" and the lady gets off.

Let it be known that there is a message in the music.

President Urges Opposition

The 1978-79 president of the Student Government Association at A&T State University believes that predominantly Black colleges should oppose the elimination of any of its programs.

Richard Gordon, who recently assumed A&T's highest student office, said:

"The administration should be fighting any kind of elimination of any programs. The colleges should be allowed to exist the way they are. There will always be a predominantly Black college and a predominantly white one. Let integration come naturally."

Gordon, a senior agricultural business major, is a native of Bowling Green, Virginia.

"With the HEW decision, there is going to be a lot of pressure on Black colleges," he said. "The duplication study might be a direct way of eliminating programs at A&T, for I don't believe that programs at other colleges will be eliminated."

Richard Gordon

Gordon said one of the objectives of his administration this year is to restructure the Student Government Association so students can become more involved in the process of achieving university policy.

"Sometimes students can be too much involved just with entertainment," he said. "We would like to motivate students so they will be concerned with what's going on."

Gordon said before the acceptance of the state integration plan by HEW last semester, many of the students were concerned about the future of Black colleges. Since the acceptance, he noted, many of the students have not been quite as concerned.

Gordon was active in the Future Farmers of America, football and track at Bowling Green Senior High School where he graduated.

A son of Mrs. Ann Gordon, he first ran for a student office his sophomore year and lost. Then he became president of the Men's Council and later president of his dormitory for two years.

"I felt the way I could do the most was to run for president, and that's what I did," he said.

Gordon said he looks forward to serving as the student representative on A&T's trustee board.

After graduation, he said he would like to earn a master's degree in agricultural economics and work as a consultant in community development.

Other student officers are Kevin Buncum, vice president; Ann Murray, secretary; Preston Barnes, treasurer and Paulette Breeze, "Miss A&T State University."

Media Students Attend Radio News Conference

Two A&T students attended the Radio News Directors Associations' [RTNDA] 33rd International conference September 20-22 in Atlanta, Ga.

Kathy Anderson, a junior mass communications major, and Bonnie Newman, a senior mass communications major, visited various workshops and seminars while at the RTNDA conference. The conference was held at the Atlanta Hilton Hotel.

Over 700 members of RTNDA were in attendance in addition to keynote speakers such as Phil Donahue of the syndicated talk show

"Donahue, Max Robinson of ABC News in Chicago, and Harry Reasoner of CBS News, New York.

Though the conference was mainly geared towards news directors and other professionals in the media markets, it also afforded Anderson and Newman the opportunity to take a glimpse into the working world. According to Newman, being surrounded by the glamour of the Hilton's decor and some of the big names in the news media could almost dispell the serious aspects of the business and conference.

We Need Full Support

Campus oriented events include things such as concerts, lecture series, sports events, guest speakers, dances, movies, gospel events and other activities other than classes.

But how many things do the students actually attend and give their full support?

Not many; students don't even support the sports events, even when the teams are having a winning season. This writer once talked to a senior who said that she had never used her activity sticker to attend any event during the whole four years at this institution. I'm sure she was just one out of many students who are uninformed about things that are happening around campus or that A&T does not sponsor a wide variety of events to keep its student body interested.

It seems that everyone is interested in the groups lined up for Homecoming and no one is thinking about the present.

The student body is being neglected; there aren't enough things on campus to do on weekends or weekdays.

When was the last movie sponsored on this campus and whoever sets the starting times for speakers is not thinking about when the majority of our students are have classes.

This writer is not really knocking the student government or the administration, but it is felt that they are both very busy and are forgetting that the students need more things to do on campus.

A&T, over the last three years that this writer has been here has become the place that you leave on the weekend.

Students have often gone to North Carolina Central and Winston-Salem State for entertainment on the weekends. How are the Aggie pride and student morale going to grow if we have to seek other institutions for enjoyment?

Social Revolution Is Still On!

By Sheila A. Williams

"There is a great social revolution going on in America today, and the wonderful thing about this revolution is that it is not Black against white. It is simply right against wrong. The number one problem today is not air and water pollution. It is moral pollution."

There are the words of Dick Gregory, an entertainer, composer, lecturer and civil rights leader. He will be here Thursday, September 28, in Moore Gym at 7:00 p.m. to talk to you, the student.

Many Black lecturers have appeared on campus to talk to the students on pride, dignity, and respecting yourself and your morals. But the crowd is so sparse, in that a majority of the students, the ones who really need to listen to the message, are not even present. They are somewhere in their rooms or in the halls trying to figure out how to "get over" in their class, or why they didn't get their phone call. These are the same students that, when something goes wrong around campus or in the community, are the first to complain and the last to take action.

Times are changing for the Black man, and it slowly seems as if that freedom which the 60's brought to us is slowly being taken away. If you think about such things as the rise in Ku Klux Klan membership, and the Allan Bakke reverse discrimination case, by no means are we on a free and easy street in achieving what we sometimes call "what is rightfully ours".

It is about time, that you really think about what you as a minority are really going or getting out of education and life. For as this writer heard an instructor say in a class, you should be here for more than just a career but for acquiring knowledge.

This writer urges everyone to go out and listen to Dick Gregory when he comes to lecture Thursday night in Moore Gym. I'm sure for just an hour you can set aside your studies or that "serious page". Use this time as a breather, to listen to a message which could help you to better understand yourself as an individual.

We Are Part Of The Team

By Lanita Ledbetter

It is becoming quite an every week thing to hear the football team catching excessive amounts of criticism from their peers and so-called "fans".

It would be nice to have an 11-0 record, but to go out on the field and strive to do the best is the most you can ask from anyone.

William Watson, starting quarterback, has probably received more biased criticism than any other player on the team.

Perhaps there is something that is wrong; but who is to blame? The team? Thereferrees? The coaches? Or maybe we should realize that no one can be a winner all the time, and we are the biggest losers, the unfaithfullest fans, and the poorest friends when we turn our backs and withdraw our support from our schools, because in a great sense "we" are the team.

Craig Says No Doubts About Accreditation

performed by instructors, and size.

The admission standards of the School of Business and Economics are viewed in the nature that admission requirements are not less than admission standards for other schools at the university.

The library is looked at from the standpoint of its budget, library resources for academic purposes, and the effective utilization of the resources by the students of the School of Business and Economics.

The AACSB examines the curriculum to insure the courses cover a common body of knowledge for the quality preparation of students for management positions. The curriculum should not cover more than 60 percent business courses.

The operation budgets for the School of Business and Economics are also viewed to determine if they are consistent with the needs of the unit. The AACSB looks at the percentage of the total University budget that the Business School gets, and then compares it with the percentage of the total credit hours taught to the students in the School of Business and Economics, and the total credit hours taught students at the University.

Other standards examined by the AACSB are the innovation of teaching techniques, facilities from the standpoint of adequacy of classroom space, faculty space, the number of buildings that the business classes are located in, and the equipment with emphasis on computers.

"There are over one thousand schools with business departments in the country and approximately 25 percent are accredited. The School of Business and Economics, when nationally accredited, will offer documentary evidence of the capacity of our programs to efficiently prepare students and enhance their marketability and competitiveness," Dean Craig stated.

Lula Watson Celebrates 104th

The party was sponsored by A&T's Department of Sociology and Social Services and was replete with birthday cakes and gifts for Mrs. Watson and on hand to share the occasion were a daughter, Mrs. Mamie Davis, a granddaughter, Mrs. Lula Lowery, and a great grandson, Alonzo Rucker, an A&T student.

She recalled being born in Sanford and later moving to Chatham county, where she lives now.

"I went to school about a month and I remember getting a blue back speller," she said with a big grin. "After that I had to go to work."

Mrs. Watson's birthday guests also included the youngsters of the A&T child development center and the Sunshine Band, composed of residents of the Alonzo Hall Towers.

Mrs. Watson, bandied with ease the questions put to her by the students.

Accompanying herself on the accordian, she sang if "These limbs of mine keep on aching, I'm going to move to a better home."

Then she refuted that by saying, "I just might stay here like Methuselah, I just can't tell."

Mrs. Watson received several gifts, including a new hat, a bouquet of carnations, a dress and fine shawls.

Same Place Last Season

By Dennis Bryant

Last year, the Aggies were 1-3 exactly at the same time of the season. The Aggies equaled that mark Saturday night with a very unimpressive 16-12 loss to Bethune-Cookman.

For the Aggies, nothing seemed to work on a misty, muggy night. The Wildcats of Bethune scored on their first possession to take a 7-0 lead. The two teams battled back and forth down the field.

The Aggies got on the scoreboard with a touchdown on a pass from quarterback William Watson to tightend Brett Fisher for an 11-yard touchdown. The extra point by Nolan Jones was no good as the Aggies trailed 7-6.

Bethune scored another touchdown on a halfback trick play to take a 13-6 lead. The Wildcats fumbled five times in the first half. Three of those were recovered by A&T. The Aggies were not able to generate any offense against Bethune.

The second half was played mostly with each team punting the ball away. Watson was not able to hit his wide receivers. Receiver Frank Carr was overthrown on two very poorly thrown passes. The offense of the Aggies never got on track.

Late in the fourth quarter, the Wildcats added a field goal to up their lead 16-6. The crowd, well under 4,000, began to leave early in the fourth quarter.

The only substantial drive the Aggies were able to generate was quarterbacked by Freddie Freeman. Freeman eluded tackles time after time in the drive and drove the Aggies 82 yards to score their only touchdown of the half.

The Aggie defense was hit for 292 yards by the offense of the Wildcats. Offensively the Aggies were showing a lot of weakness. They were never able to generate any offense on the big plays. After recovering fumbles deep in Wildcat territory, the Aggies found themselves giving the back back on turnovers.

Coach Jim McKinley said, "It was just like it was down in Florida last year. We found ourselves in the same situations." The Aggies were plagued with a number of injuries on the bench.

The Aggies are currently 1-3 on the year after back-to-back losses. The Aggies will attempt to get back on the winning track next week against an improved Johnson C. Smith team. Smith is coached by former A&T assistant Wyle Harris.

In other action around the league, South Carolina State shutout Howard in New York 27-0, Livingstone College slipped by Maryland-Eastern Shore 37-36 and Grambling defeated Morgan State 21-0.

In non-conference action,

Elizabeth City State defeated Norfolk State 23-9, Hampton shaded Johnson C. Smith 19-6 and Winston-Salem State remained undefeated with a 23-7 victory over Virginia Union.

A&T To Meet Golden Bulls Saturday, Nonconference

The Aggies of A&T will travel to Charlotte N.C. this Saturday night to play the Golden Bulls of Johnson C. Smith University in a non-conference football game.

The kickoff for the contest is scheduled for 8 p.m. at the War Memorial Stadium.

Both teams are hoping to pick up some momentum after getting off to a slow start. A&T, under the guidance of head coach Jim McKinley, is 1-3 on the campaign losing to Winston-Salem State, South Carolina State, and Bethune-Cookman while defeating a much improved University of Maryland-Eastern Shore team.

Johnson C. Smith is coached by former A&T assistant Wylie Harris and the team is winless after three starts losing to Lenoir Rhyne, Virginia Union and Hampton Institute.

"This will be a big game for us because we have to get our confidence back and the only way you can do that is by winning games," McKinley said.

"I know that Coach Harris will have his players up for this game."

One of the brightest spots of the young season for the Aggies has been the play of little Lon Harris, who is the number two kickoff return man in the NCAA IAA. Harris is a threat anytime he has the football.

A&T backs William Joyner, Cleotis Johnson, and Charlie Sutton have the speed and power to break open a game. On defense the Aggies are paced by All-America defensive end Dwaine "Pee Wee" Board, tackles Ulysses Thompson and Lucien Nibbs, linebacker Glenn Inman and Roland Wooten, along with the "Greensboro Gang", defensive backs Tony Currie, Thomas Warren and Gerald Johnson.

Another Love

Quarterback William Watson found himself being booed very heavily in the second half of Saturday night's game. The main reason seemed to be his inability to move the football. Or maybe the crowd doesn't know that Watson does not make the decisions on which plays to run.

For two consecutive weeks, the Aggies have lost games against supposedly tough teams. Both Bethune was no where tough. The Wildcats just cashed in on mistakes made by the Aggies.

As for the status of Watson, he was never able to move the Aggie offense downfield with the plays he was given. A&T recovered four fumbles in the first half. Each time, the Aggies were in good field position. On most of those possessions, the Aggies ended up punting the ball or fumbling back to the Wildcats.

Receiver Frank Carr remained in open field most of the night, but Watson either over threw him or was sacked. Once again, Watson tiptoed away from the offensive line, only to be hooked for losses. The Aggies were killed by their own mistakes.

Late in the third quarter, the crowd began to chant, "Where is the other quarterback, Freddie Freeman?" With a sparse crowd on hand, the offensive unit found themselves being booed heavily.

With a little more than three minutes to go in the fourth quarter, Freeman appeared in the game. The crowd roared approved and rose to their feet. They were actually cheering Freeman as he came onto the field. But, when Watson reappeared for one play, the crowd began to boo him.

Freeman responded to the cheering of the crowd. Mainly to his ability to elude Wildcat tackles, the Aggies drove 82 yards in less than two minutes. In that drive the offensive line seemed to block a little more at ease. The game was still out of reach because the Aggies needed two of those drives to win the game.

Unfortunately, the Aggies lost the game before about 1,000 people. Yes, that's the right figure. The fans seemed to have given up on the Aggies. This is the first time I have seen the Aggies get really booed. But the defense was superb. They were the big benefactor in the game. Without them, the game would have been a complete rout.

It seems as though the Aggies are on their way to a below .500 year. I just don't see them winning any more than four to five games. It will be the first time in a number of years that the football team has gone below that mark.

Let's face it; it is going to be a long year in football. The fans are beginning not to support the team and those that are there really express how they feel. When the Aggies face Johnson C. Smith, I honestly hope there are some new faces in that Aggie offensive lineup. Who knows, with both teams being about equally as talented, we could see a big upset.

***** This goes to the females. The intramural department needs your participation. Coach Joyce Spruill told me that she is now conditioning women for the 1978-79 basketball team. Shape-up females and show everyone you can help; it's your turn to help out around the campus.
