Gibbs Hall Presents 'Reflections Of You'

By Richard B. Steele

The ladies of Gibbs Hall presented "Reflections Of You," a talent-fashion show in the student union ballroom this past Sunday night. The evening was divided into two parts: entertainment, provided by Angela Duckett, Gwen Franks, Audrey Statum, Ron Knight; and four scenes of fashion: casual, evening, wedding and disco.

The background music picks up by the audio department—thanks to Winston Barnes, and Yett? Harper; the commentator enters stage right. The lights are low and the spots are amid the silver backdrop, then running along the aisle decorated with planters, the spot diminishes across tables of candlelight, and champagne glasses. The stage is set. Enter then, the casual array of flowing dresses, tweed sports coats, trenches, and sweaters. A striking combination of grey two-piece, tight waisted sweater and matching pants with co-ordinating burgundy blouse and shoes are ideal for strolling across campus. While waiting for class to start, casually lean back and pose in eye-catching black flare leg slacks, black shirt and multi-color pullover V-neck sweater (red, white, gray, black) topped off in nicely-worn gray hat.

For those chilly days, step out in your favorite Levis, with leather jacket, vest, boots and shoulder bag. Accessories may include silver or gold jewelry, scarves, wraps, and briefcases for the business minded.

The evening wear is a dazzling variety of splits, ruffles, pleats, and pieces. A shimmering black flowing dress split up to the thighs is definitely a show stopper with black sandals teased with gold. Or ladies, the bare-shoulder look in navy blue tied at the waist, with matching free fall coat and pants co-ordinated with gold jewelry. The man of the evening compliments his lady in navy blue three-piece with co-ordinating tie and kerchief, or fall out in camel color formal matching bow tie and ruffle shirt with black tassle shoes.

Here comes the bride as the (See Fashion, Page 8)

UNC System Awards Professors

GREENSBORO, N.C.— Three A&T State University professors have been awarded study grants from the University of North Carolina system to complete work on their doctoral degrees, beginning next January 1.

The teachers, who are beneficiaries of a new program designed to improve the UNC system's faculty and racial balance, are Godfrey Gayle, Japhet Nkonge and Charles Evans.

Dr. Lewis C. Dowdy, A&T chancellor, said that the three will work full time on their degrees, at full salaries.

"We are pleased to have received these three grants which will enable us to continue our faculty development program," said Dowdy. "These are all teachers with a lot of potential and promise in critical academic areas."

Gayle, an A&T graduate, is involved in teaching research at the university. He said that he plans to pursue a doctorate in soil and water conservation at North Carolina State University.

Gayle already holds a master's degree in agricultural engineering from North Carolina State University.

Nkonge will pursue a doctorate in marketing from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. "I'm really pleased that I can finish my dissertation," he said. "It is very difficult to teach and (See Professors Page 2)

Journalism Jobs Are Abundant

Graduates of a developing mass communications program at A&T are finding that job opportunities in journalism are still abundant, especially for minorities.

In recent weeks, one graduate was offered a public relations position with a large firm in Boston. Another recent graduate has begun work as a reporter on a daily newspaper in Southwestern North Carolina, and another graduate won a prestigious journalism fellowship for graduate study at the University of Michigan. Also, an honor graduate is enrolled in the master's program at the University of Wisconsin.

Other recent A&T graduates are employed by newspapers in Charlotte, Greensboro, Richmond, Va., and Winston-Salem, while others are working for the major television and radio networks.

In less than two years, enrollment in the mass communications courses has increased by more than 300 percent. The more than 150 students in the program are taking such courses as reporting, radio and television production, announcing, feature (See Kellogg, Page 2)

12 Best Entries Receive $500

The National Student Educational Fund is sponsoring, for the second year, the Better Informational Project: Prizes in Education (BIPPIE), a national competition to encourage and recognize original student produced informational materials.

$500 awards will be given to each of the 12 best entries. Winners will give their award money to the student organization or project of their choice.

Individual students and student organizations are eligible to enter the competition. All materials may be in any media and must be aimed at improving the information available to students concerning campus programs, opportunities and experiences, such as orientation handbooks or guides for women reentering college. Materials must have been produced during the 1977-78 or 1978-79 academic years.

Each of the 12 winners will win a trip to Washington, D. C., at which time the prize money will be awarded at a national Information Celebration.

Application packets are available from the National Student Educational Fund, 2000 P Street, NW, Suite 305, Washington, D.C. 20036.

Over 330 students entered the 1977-78 BIPPIE contest. Information from last year's competition is currently being compiled into a Project Research Report, and will be available in late 1978. (See NSEF, Page 6) writing, advanced newswriting and such complementary courses as media law, history, and broadcast management.

The A&T program is being supported by a special grant from the W.K. Kellogg Foundation in Battle Creek, Mich., and a smaller federal grant the AIDP project.

A major component of the program is the internship course, which requires that each student spend most of a semester receiving on-the-job training at a newspaper, radio, or television station or a public relations organization.

Ernest Parbhoo, the current coordinator of the student interns, says the response of media organizations in the state has been highly favorable. "The attitude has been very positive," said Parbhoo, "and many of the employers are pleased to learn about the program."

Last summer, A&T interns gained experience at several newspapers and one co-ed spent the entire summer in public relations for the Voice of America, in Washington, D.C.

The internship program and lectures are supplemented by classroom visits by prominent journalists from the media and professors representing such major universities as Ohio State, the University of Wisconsin and the University of Kansas.

"We try to provide our student with role models," said

Richard Moore, one of the journalism teachers. "We want them to get to know minorities who are successful in the practice of this profession."

Dr. Frank White, dean of the school of arts and sciences, points with pride to the facilities available to the mass communications students at A&T. These include a bi-weekly campus newspaper whose operations are completely computerized, a new 10-watt FM educational radio station, scheduled to begin operations in a month or so, and a complete closed-circuit television studio.

Protestant Denominations Discuss Unification

INDIANAPOLIS - Executive bodies of two major Protestant denominations—the United Church of Christ and the Christian Church Disciples of Christ—met Oct. 28 to explore unification, but the session ran into trouble over race and sex.

Several Blacks and women joined in a protest by the Rev. Marvin Morgan of Brooklyn, president of the United Church of Black Ministers, that major presentations at the meeting all were by white males. He suggested females and minorities "go and be the body of Christ" and leave the 'white males' to their methods.

Despite the flareup, however, further union talks were planned and presidents of the two churches pledged that here-after the 'rich diversity' of women and minorities would be evident. The Rev. Dr. Kenneth L. Teegarden, Disciples' president, speaking both for himself and the United Church president, the Rev. Dr. Avery Post, said:

"We have been reminded forcefully today that white male dominance cannot exist in our conversations, if we are ever to achieve our goal of being one people in Christ."

write at the same time."

Nkongé holds a B.S. degree in economics from A&T and an MBA degree in marketing from Rutgers University. He is an assistant professor of business administration.

Evans, also an assistant professor of business administration, is enrolled in the doctoral program at Syracuse University. He is seeking a doctorate in marketing. He holds a B.S. degree from A&T and the MBA degree from Syracuse.

In all, 17 faculty members of the UNC system were selected for the new program. All but two of them are minorities, and the two whites that were selected teach at predominately black colleges.

Dowdy said the new program will greatly enhance A&T's faculty development program. The university recently reached its goal of having more than 50 percent of its faculty with doctoral degrees. He said that 54 percent of the current faculty had terminal degrees also.

GRADUATING?

We'll be on campus to talk about CAREERS IN ENERGY.

The challenge of using our energy resources effectively can lead to a rewarding career with Carolina Power & Light Company. We're developing the latest technology, initiating new computer applications, seeking better ways to protect the environment and working on innovations in the production and distribution of electricity to serve the needs of 700,000 customers in the beautiful Carolinas. If you are graduating in one of the following areas, come to discuss your future with us.

AIR FORCE ALWAYS NEEDS MORE LEADERS.

We're looking for pilots... navigators... missilemen... engineers... math majors... people managers... doctors... scientists... journalists... and more. And the Air Force ROTC program is a great way to get into a job like one of these which can help you improve your leadership ability and your professional competence.

As a commissioned officer in the Air Force, you can be proud of the role you play in your community and the contribution you make to your country's security. You can know that you're doing a job of importance, a job with responsibility.

The Air Force ROTC program offers a way to help you achieve these goals. As an AFROTC cadet, you'll learn about leadership, management, and more. You'll learn about benefits of being an officer later on, like an excellent salary, medical and dental care, housing and food allowances, and 30 days of paid vacation each year. You'll discover a whole new world open to you in the Air Force. And you can get there through AFROTC.

Look into it right away. You'll be glad you did.

Gateway to a great way of life.

The Elements of the Universe have brought joy and happiness into the lives of many. Earth, Wind, and Fire through the years have enjoyed success and platinum albums one after another. In recent years, the mighty elements have had a message in their music describing our daily lives in songs like "On Your Face", "Saturday Night", and "The Way Of The World."

Other songs expressed emotions and moods of love, such as "Can't Hide Love", "Love's Holiday", "I'll Write A Song For You", and "Be Ever Wonderful".

Still, another type of song from this versatile group is the kind when all else fails and problems mount. One has to "Getaway", or maybe "Sing A Song" to make it better. Even jammimg to the message of "Jupiter" helps and especially the catchy tune of 'ba-yahs' from "Brazilian Love Theme."

Now the masters of music present to you, "The Best Of EWF" with a single cut from the LP entitled "September" that's already grabbing people by the ear, soon to be released in local record stores.

The Student Union Avisory Board presents "An Evening Of Entertainment" in the ballroom, this Thursday from 8-10 p.m. It's absolutely free with student ID. The evening includes a jazz band, backgammon, pokeno, checkers, bingo, prizes, and trophies; sponsored by Cultural Affairs-Games and Tournaments.

John Houseman (l) is the tough law professor and James Stephens the leader of the student study group in 20th-Fox TV's "The Paper Chase" airsover CBS-TV.

'Paper Chase' Airs Tuesday

The most critically acclaimed television show of the current season is 20th Century Fox TV's "The Paper Chase" airing Tuesdays over CBS.

And probably the most in demand interviewee is the star of that series, 76-year young John Houseman, reprising his Oscar-winning role as the dominating law school professor.

Houseman, a towering figure in American theatre for more than 50 years, co-founded with Orson Welles, the Mercury Theatre; movie producer whose pictures include "Julius Caesar" and "Lust For Life;" producer of TV's "Playhouse 90; and Professor Emeritus at the USC Department of Drama, among other positions.

The dream of every actor is to create a role with such dynamism and force that forever after the two are remembered simultaneously.

Clark Gable as Rhett Butler; Marlon Brando, the Godfather; Judy Garland as Dorothy; Mickey Rooney as Andy Hardy, and Lucille Ball as Lucy are prime examples.

Add John Houseman to that distinguished list as the creator of the memorable character, "Professor Kingsfield,;" in the 20th Century Fox feature motion picture "The Paper Chase." Now Houseman recreates the same role in the 20th Century Fox Television series premiering over CBS-TV during the 1978-79 season.

Between the movie "The Paper Chase" and the start of the television series, Houseman appeared in such motion pictures as "Rollerball," "Three Days of the Condor," "St. Ives," "Old Boy Friend" and "The Cheap Detective."

His television acting credits include "Fear on Trial," "Six Characters in Search of an Author," and "The Displaced Person."

A&T Graduate Is Top Salesman

Joe Dudley, A Greensboro and Chicago businessman, and graduate of A&T State University, has already established himself as one of the nation's top door-to-door salesman.

Now Dudley is using his talent to sell Black citizens on the idea that they can help themselves if they really want to. That includes building churches.

The millionaire businessman last Sunday took it upon himself to conduct an impromptu fundraising drive for a Black Baptist church in Charlotte.

"I don't want anybody to leave. We must support our churches. We must build our churches. The biggest thing that Black people have is the church," he said.

When the collection was counted, the church had raised more than $1,100. They had already had two regular offerings that same day.

Dudley launched his highly successful career in Greensboro, where he still operates several branches of the Dudley Beauty and Barber Supply, Inc.

"If you are rich in the spirit, you have to be rich in the pocketbook," Dudley says. "My Bible says, 'Ask and it shall be given unto you. Seek and ye shall find.' It didn't say 'might' or 'maybe.' We have got to stop playing our God cheap."

Dudley is now president of the Chicago-based Fuller products, a company which employs about 3,000 persons

Curiosity Hums

Curiosity, they say is what released all the evils into the world, and recently a lot of curious things have been humming through the campus pipelines about things happening around the yard.

It seems like some improvements that were attempted aren't panning out for the betterment of the university at this time.

Often we are all quite busy with the chores of a day-to-day job, an at times some take the liberty to shirk a few hours when the opportunity is made available.

It seems that this shirking attitude has been, and still is, an ailment of many people here at A&T. It's not just the students who skip classes when it's too cold or when the warm weather sets in, it's members of every area of campus personnel.

If one's job is to answer the legitimate questions of the students, then those questions should be answered in a way that those it concerns can understand without delay.

This writer can't possibly understand why simple things that would take only a matter of minutes somewhere else, take days and weeks to get done at A&T.

What's even worse than that is when the old outdated procedures are questioned, they act like you have committed a crime and then things take twice as long to get done.

Many things that go undone or are improperly done at this university could be corrected much quicker if we all tightened up and did the jobs that we were hired to do.

The First Amendment

By Sheila A. Williams

Freedom of the press reigns on our campus through The Register, official organ. Since its inception thirty years ago, the staff through proper guidance has maintained a liberal editorial policy, "Print all the news our students want."

Ayantee yearbook edition, voicing what the A&T Register stands for. To this day, the feeling still remains among the staff members.

Our purpose is to work as a unified body, to bring to the students, and the faculty membes the events which occur on or off the campus.

Often we are criticized because we don't cover every event, but this is your paper just as much as it is ours, and seldom do we receive any response from the students.

Complaints are heard by this reporter many times, but the threats or accusations are never acted upon. Keeping the problem to yourself will never be solved unless you speak up.

This is why the first amendment of the constitution was written for and about you, a citizen of the U.S. which includes freedom of the press and the freedom of speech.

Nothing will happen until you make it happen, for every student must work together as a bonafide unit in order to bring about a change.

The fourth estate, the campus newspaper, is the watchdog of the government, the SGA, and the administration.

Don't Over Do It

By Karen Williams

Stress is something that all of us experience at one time or another. It could be emotional or physical. According to Alvin Toffler's Future Shock, everyone has an "adaptive range". That is each of us has a maximum amount of stress we can bear.

Some students may feel comfortable with 20 hours and work study, while for another student, 16 hours is more than enough. However, often times for the sake of pleasing others or even trying to outdo someone, we overload ourselves. At that point we sometimes tend to blame others or even God for our poor performances. Therefore it is important for us to know the capacity of stress that we can withstand. Don't overload yourself, for this can lead to ulcers, nervous breakdowns, and even suicidal attempts. Life is too precious and good health a blessing.

NEH Expands Research Program

Washington, D.C.- The National Endowment for the Humanities announced that it is expanding its program of research and study fellowships to put new emphasis on helping undergraduate teachers further their own scholarship and strengthen their teaching abilities in college humanities courses.

The Endowment will continue to offer fellowships enabling scholars, teachers and others to undertake fulltime independent study and research in their fields and to offer them the opportunity to produce works in the various areas of the humanities.

The National Endowment, established by Congress in 1965, is the government's principle agency supporting scholarship in a wide array of academic pursuits and aiding projects designed to foster broad public participation in cultural and educational programs.

A new division of the fellowship programs (known as category "B") is aimed at scholars primarily engaged in undergraduate teaching, in the early stages of their careers. The fellowships, offered for periods of six or twelve months, are designed to free those scholars to pursue studies that will broaden their abilities in teaching humanities courses and, at the same time, enable them to make their own contributions to scholarship in the humanities.

The stipends for this category range up to $10,000 for the six-month fellowship and a maximum of $20,000 for the twelve-month study period. The application deadline for the 135 fellowships expected to be available in 1980-81, is June 1, 1979.

The Humanities Endowment is also continuing its Category "A" fellowships which are designed to provide study and research time for scholars, teachers and non-academics whose work seems "likely to lead to significant contributions to humanistic thought and knowledge." These fellowships are also for six- and twelve-month periods with maximum stipends of $10,000 and $20,000, respectively. It is hoped that 135 fellowships in this category will be available in 1980-81. The deadline for applying is June 1, 1979. Forms should be available in early 1979.

A third category of continuing Endowment fellowships, Category "C", provides opportunities to undergraduate teachers to participate in seminars with distinguished scholars and undertake further work on their own beyond the seminars. Preference is given to applicants who have been teaching at the college level for three years. This is a year-long fellowship with a maximum stipend of $20,000. Approximately 65 such fellowships will be available in 1979-1980 with an application deadline of November 13, 1978. The deadline date for applying for 1980-81 awards is November 12, 1979.

Further information and application forms are available from the: Division of Fellowships, Stop 101, National Endowment for the Humanities, 806 15th Street, NW, Washington, D.C.

Courlander Sues Haley

NEW YORK (AP)- Author Alex Haley is defending himself in another lawsuit which claims he "largely copied" from another author to complete his historical novel, "Roots".

The story is about the Haley family's African origin and their generations of American slavery.

The new trial for alleged copyright infringement resulted from a suit by Harold Courlander of Bethesda, Md., a novelist and folklorist, and began Monday in U.S. District Court in Manhattan.

Courlander was among the early witnesses at the non-jury trial before Judge Robert Ward, who listened to numerous segments of Roots as the trial opened.

Courlander testified he wrote "The African" after years of studying African ritual, dance, song and culture in the United States, Haiti, the Dominican Republic and on the African continent. He submitted into evidence a long list of his works.

in Reidsville, to supply thermostatic and clad metal strip and devices to a variety of industries, according to an announcement by GTE Precision Materials Group, a part of General Telephone & Electronics Corporation.

John W. Anderson, president of the group, said the new operation is located in a modern 240,000-square-foot steel and concrete building in (1704 Barnes St.) Reidsville. The structure, which is almost twice as large as the former Chace facility in Detroit, will permit the division to utilize fully its continuous bonding and electron beam welding capabilities. This will enable it to better satisfy increasing customer requirements for these products in automotive, electrical, appliance, heating, air conditioning, television, and battery applications.

The GTE executive also announced the appointment of J.W. Sullivan as Vice President and General Manager of the new division.

Sales of the Metal Laminates Division's products will continue to be the responsibility of the combined field marketing staffs of the former W.M. Chace Co. and the Sylvania Gibson Electric subsidiary, a manufacturer of electronic contacts.

Sullivan, who formerly had overall responsibility for the Chace operation, joined that company in 1975 as vice president marketing. Earlier, he was products manager, thermostatic and specialty metals for the Metallurgical Division of Texas Instruments, Attleboro, Mass.

Sullivan received a degree in mechanical engineering from the University of Massachusetts in 1960. He will relocate to the Reidsville area in the near future.

SOPHOMORES! IS THERE LIFE AFTER COLLEGE?

You're aiming for a college degree. And with that in hand you'll be looking for a job offer. You may find it won't be automatic. For that reason it's important for you, as a sophomore, to make the most of your last two years in college. Whatever your career choice, you'll want to become competitive and marketable. The Aggies will have all of their injuries healed by Saturday. The team practiced four days to keep from getting lazy. Most of the early season injuries have healed and the team will be close to 100 percent sharp by this weekend.

The defense worked on a lot of Delaware's plays and how to defend against them. There was a lot of hard hitting, but not so to bring about anymore injuries. The defense should be even better this weekend.

One defensive player who has been in the shadow of Dwaine Board, Lucien Nibbs, and George Small is lineman Glenn Inman. Inman leads the team in tackles and is only a junior. When there were a lot of injuries on the defense, he still made up for all the others. So, when you go out Saturday look at that player in the shadow, no. 33, Glenn Inman.

The game between UMES and South Carolina State was more of a rout than a good matchup. The game was played in South Carolina State's backyard and everyone knows how that turned out. Once again, Coach Willie Jeffries let his Bulldogs run like wild dogs.

The Bulldogs won the game by a 54-0 count. Quarterback Nate Rivers came off the bench to lead the team to a 31-0 halftime lead. The Hawks gave up over 30 first downs and a considerable amount of yardage.

To run down the situation as to whether or not the Aggies will get a bowl bid, it stands like this. South Carolina State has to beat Grambling State to have a chance at a Division I-AA bowl bid. There are two other teams in the running for those bids. They are Florida A&M, 9-1, and Jackson State. There will be two bids from the South Region.

Those three teams are ranked one, two, and three, respectively, in the Division I-AA poll. If South Carolina State should get a bid to go, the second place team in the MEAC will get to go to the Gold Bowl against the second place CIAA team.

The basketball season officially begins next Friday in the New Gymnasium. The Annual Blue-Gold Intra squad game promises to send ten of the team's top players into the lineup. I'll have more information on who will be starting for both teams.

Last Saturday, NCCU met Tennessee State in Washington, D.C., at RFK Stadium. The game was played for the United Negro College Fund (UNCF) With Shaw University in trouble with its funds, the game was played mostly for that school. It's nice to have people to devote their time to worthy causes. By the way, Tennessee State demolished NCCU 41-7.

The MEAC has a bad taste when it comes to non-conference foes. The MEAC teams have lost 19 of 26 games to outside opponents. That makes everything look a little bizarre or the conference. If the conference expects to exist, it will have to fare better against teams outside the conference.

Senior gridioners remember the good ole' days.

Seniors Play Last Home Game

GREENSBORO—When the dust clears from the football game between the Aggies and their Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference rival Delaware State College, it will mark the end of playing careers for eight A&T athletes.

Thomas Warren, Calvin Hawkins, Smitty Davis, Bruce Black, Jeff Jackson, George Small, Lucien Nibbs, Wheeler Brown, Dwaine Board and Nolan Jones, mainstays through the years with their exciting displays of talent at their respective positions, are expected to graduate in May.

Each had some memorable experiences wearing the Blue and Gold which could probably be summed up best by Board's recent analysis of his A&T career. "I don't think I could have played against any better competition at another school than I faced here at A&T," he said.

"It's been four great years for me and I'm sure the other seniors feel the same way. Football on the college level is very serious but we have been able to make it enjoyable and interesting."

"Winning the MEAC championship was a great feeling but it would really be difficult to pick a single event or happening as the one thing that meant the most to me during my career," continued Board.

Board has been subjected to large amounts of publicity since his sophomore season when he was named to the first team Mutual Black Network All-America team.

However, Calvin Hawkins, a seldom used running back from Grimesland, North Carolina, is also happy about his decision to enroll at A&T.

"What has meant the most to me is the friendships I have made over the years and just being a part of the A&T tradition," he said.

"The coaches have been great and, if I had to do it over again, I still would come to A&T."

Nolan Jones will probably get a shot at the pros, because of his kicking ability. A native of Greenville, South Carolina, he recalls the A&T-South Carolina State battles as the highlights of his career.

"I get up emotionally for every game, but I think I go out a little extra when we play South Carolina State," Jones recalled. "It seems as though every time we played them the MEAC championship was at stake and that alone, is enough to get you up."

Thomas Warren, a native of Greensboro, transferred to A&T after spending a year at Livingstone College, Salisbury. Playing at home gave his relatives and friends the opportunity to follow his career more closely.

"Like most people graduating from high school I wanted to get away from home, but, after a while, I decided it was best that I return to a school closer," Warren recalled. "It has been great for the people who mean

Annual Blue-Gold Game To Tip-Off In New Gym

The anticipation of the 1978-79 North Carolina A&T basketball season expected to reach a peak on Friday, November 17, when the Aggies tip-off the season in their new 7,500 seat Health, Physical Education and Recreation Building on the university's campus with the annual Blue-Gold game.

Second year head coach Gene Littles returns a nucleus from last season's 20-8 squad which won the Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference regular season and tournament championships.

Patron tickets for the contest are on sale at $1 for adults and fifty cents for students. All North Carolina A&T students with an identification card will be admitted free.

"We have been practicing in the new facility since the latter part of October and we are really just acquainting ourselves with the floor," Littles said.

"We have the talent to be an outstanding team, however, we have a demanding schedule and we are going to have to come to play every night. No one is going to take us lightly."

James "The Bird" Sparrow, a 6-6 guard from Brooklyn, N.Y., enters the season just 138 points away from becoming the all-time leading scorer in A&T basketball history. L.J. Pipkin, a 6-9 forward from Laurinburg who has been getting a watchful eye from the pro scouts, enters the campaign just 62 points away from a career total of 1000.

S.C. State Wins Fifth Straight MEAC Title

The Bulldogs of South Carolina State clinched their fifth straight Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference championship this past weekend with a convincing 54-0 win over the University of Maryland Eastern Shore.

The victory now clears the way for the Bulldogs to accept a bid to the NCAA IAA playoff bowl, allowing A&T to represent the MEAC in the coveted Gold Bowl game, scheduled for December 2 in Richmond, Va., should the Aggies win their two remaining conference games.

The Aggies are currently in second place in the conference with a 3-1 record, with two remaining games left in the season against Delaware State (2-3), this Saturday in Greensboro, and November 18 against North Carolina Central (2-2) in Durham.

"We don't want to look too far ahead because we still must win our remaining games to be considered for the Gold Bowl," A&T Coach McKinley said. "We have been playing well both offensively and defensively the past few games, and some of our key players who were playing with injuries early in the year are beginning to perform at the top of their game."

The Aggies were idle last week while Delaware State dropped a 17-7 decision to Bethune-Cookman College in Daytona Beach, Fla. The Hornets are led offensively by quarterback Andre Brown and running back Anthony Beamon.

The Hornets have been strong against conference teams on the rush led by the charge of defensive tackle Gregory Wright and linebacker David Crockett.

Fashion Show Is A Success

wedding scene proceeds with the groom and best man toggled down in white tuxedos and shoes. The best man is fitted in nicely worn ruffles that accent the bridesmaids' carolina blue gown with keyhole cut outs in the chest, sweetened by a chiffon capulet. The bride is given away by a grey combination formal wear accented with coordinating tie and black shoes. As the bride strolls down the aisle in traditional bridal gown of virgin white, the collarless neck glistens with pearls and the long chiffon train also dazzled with pearls flows behind.

Enter the disco, freaking to "One Nation..." flowing gowns that cling in black and maroon dance across the floor. Funking on, tweed pants, black shirt, white scarf and suspenders, along with black shoes step into the beat, only to be followed by a together navy blue vest and slacks, light blue shirt, and red skinny tie to get it in the groove. To complete the disco scene a revealing low cut satin blue dress, criss cross thin straps in the back, glides across the stage followed by the ever popular white shirt rolled at the sleeves, grey hat and baggy pants, co-ordinated with black pants, skinny tie, and shades to cool out.

Proceeds for the evening were presented in the form of a donation from Cheryl Branch (representing Gibbs Hall) to the Sickle Cell Anemia Foundation. Ms. Dara Murphy, executive director accepted the donation.

Co-ordinators of the show were Cheryl Branch and Ms. Brenda Isaac. Models were Steve Cassell, Carolyn Gains, Lamar Herndon, Michelle Huntley, Kevin Jenkins, April Jeter, Brenda McNeil, Joe Murphy, Yolanda Murray, James Pitt, Jackie Roberson, Audrey Statum and Lynn Woods.

Sponsors included Brooks, Casual Corner, J. Riggins, Gingiss, T. Edwards, Bernard Shepard, Inc., Iris' Bridal Boutique, and Jarman Shoe Store.

Senior Players Will Be Missed But Not Spirit

the most to me to be able to watch me play just about any Saturday. It really has meant a lot to me."

George Small, Lucien Nibbs, and Wheeler Brown have been named to the ALL-MEAC team while Jeff Jackson has been a regular throughout his career.

These outstanding student-athletes will be missed but their spirit will be carried over to A&T teams of the future.
