Republicans Came Short Of The Democrats In Race

RALEIGH, N.C.- Despite strong efforts by state Republicans in some districts, Democrats picked up most of the House and Senate seats in Tuesday's election.

Republicans fielded only 30 candidates for the 50 Senate seats and only 57 candidates for the 120 House seats.

But state Republican Executive Director Todd Reece said before the election that he expected the GOP to score dramatic gains in Tuesday's vote.

Former Christian Action League president Coy Privette lost his bid for a seat in the 23rd House district of Cabarrus and Union counties. Three Democrats, Dwight Quinn, Betty Thomas and Aaron Plyler, picked up all the seats in that district.

In Guilford County, Republican House candidates Howard Coble, who served as revenue secretary under Republican Gov. Jim Holshouser's administration, won one of the seven seats in the 23rd House district. Republican Margaret Keesee picked up another seat in the district.

Both Democrats and Republicans closely watched the 18th Senate district race in which Sen. Ralph Scott, D-Alamance, a 12-term veteran, was hotly opposed by Republican Cary D. Allred of Burlington. Scott's age and health were major issues in the campaign. But Scott managed to hang onto the one Senate seat in the district.

Republican Walter Cockerham was the only Republican winner in the 19th House district, which includes Bladen, Columbus, and Sampson counties. Three seats were available in the district.

One Republican, Mary Pegg, won in the 29th House district in Forsyth county. Anne Bagnal, a Republican from Winston-Salem, won one of two seats in the 20th Senatorial district. Democrat Marvin Ward won the other seat.

Democratic winners in the 4th House district, Carterst and Onslow counties, were G. Malcolm Fulcher, Jr., A.D. "Duke" Guy, and Bruce Etheridge.

In the 25th House district, Democrat T. Clyde Auman won the only available seat.

Democrat James O. Icenhour won a seat in Catawba County's 37th House district.

Paddling Causes Court Order

KINSTON, N.C.- A 14 year old boy testified about the paddling he said he received last April during the trial of a Lenoir County teacher Tuesday.

The teacher is believed to be the first in the state charged under the 1971 Child Abuse Reporting Law. Todd Jones testified that he and another boy, Bernon Kennedy, were running in the hall when they were caught by Charles C. Richburg, a music teacher at Woodington Junior High School.

Jones said Richburg paddled him three times while watched by another teacher. He said that after school his father took four pictures of his bruises.

A Kinston pediatrician, Dr. Stanley Rule, testified that Jones had bruises on his buttocks when he examined Jones two days after the paddling.

Lana Todd Jones, the boy's mother, filed the complaint against Jones after her son said he was paddled.

Educators are said to be watching the abuse case with interest because conviction of Richburg could mean the end of corporal punishment in North Carolina schools.

Richburg was earlier given a 60-day suspended sentence and fined $75 after being convicted on the child abuse charge in district court.

The Child Abuse Reporting Law makes it a misdemeanor to purposefully inflict injury on a child.

Superior Court Judge R. Michael Bruce of Mount Olive locked the courtroom twice Tuesday after complaining of too much noise. In the second incident two reporters who were late returning to the courtroom after the noon recess found themselves barred.

Buddy Howard of the Kinston Free Press said bailiffs refused to let him into the courtroom after the noon recess found themselves barred.

Erwin Becomes First Black To Win

RALEIGH, N.C.- Democratic Judge Richard Erwin of Winston-Salem Tuesday night became the first Black to win a statewide election in North Carolina, defeating Hickory attorney Joe Cagle to keep his seat on the state Court of Appeals.

In incomplete returns, Erwin had 58 percent of the vote to Cagle's 42 percent.

In a Supreme Court race, Justice David M. Britt, a Democrat, defeated Libertarian Party candidate Michael E. Read of Durham. Early returns showed Britt with 92 percent of the vote to Read's 8 percent.

In the race for the 18th district Superior Court bench, Democrat Edward K.

Washington won over Republican Darl Fowler. Washington took 60 percent of the vote in early returns. Fowler had 40 percent.

Two other Appeals Court judges, Burley Mitchell, Jr. and John Webb, both appointed with Erwin, faced no opposition in Tuesday's election.

Walter Brock was unopposed for a seat on the state Supreme Court.

Erwin, 55, was appointed to the Appeals Court bench last December by Gov. Jim Hunt to fill one of three new seats. He resigned a seat in the state House after two terms.

Erwin is a graduate of Johnson C. Smith University and has a law degree from Howard University. He was born in Marion and has been a lawyer in Winston-Salem since 1951. He is a former member of the state Board of Education.

Cagle, 29, was making his first run for public office. A lawyer in the Hickory area since

President Carter Signs Billion Dollar Tax Cut Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)- President Carter has quietly signed an $18.7 billion tax cut bill passed in the final hours of the 95th Congress last month, White House sources said early Wednesday.

The legislation will reduce taxes for about 65 million couples and individuals next year, slash the capital-gains income tax and give a new break to older Americans who sell their homes.

Carter signed the bill at Camp David before returning to the White House Tuesday evening to watch televised election results.

Other bills he signed over the weekend will help rehabilitate handicapped people, overhaul bankruptcy laws and pump nearly $54 billion into the nation's highways and transit systems.

Congress completed action on the tax legislation Oct. 15, when the House stamped its final approval, 337-38. The Senate passed the legislation 72-3.

The new law would provide permanent reductions in individual tax rates and other changes which would result in personal tax reductions of roughly $12 billion.

Among the key features of the legislation is an increase in the current $750-per-person personal tax exemption to a new total of $1,000. The level of the standard deduction would be increased for single persons from $2,200 to $2,300 and for married couples from $3,200 to $3,400.

The previous individual tax credit of $35 a person, or 2 percent of the first $9,000 of taxable income, will be allowed under the new law to expire at the end of this year.

Another prime item in the bill is an increase in the so-called earned income tax credit which rewards poor working families with children for staying off the welfare rolls. The previous $400 top credit was raised by the new law to $500.

Bomb Team Remove Bomb Safely

CONCORD (AP)- A homemade bomb containing 10 sticks of dynamite was found and safely removed Wednesday from a Cadillac limousine owned by Jim Stacky, a NASCAR Grand National racing owner who was here for a court proceeding.

The bomb was discovered by Cabarrus County deputies on a routine patrol of the Holiday Inn here. They found a crude looking apparatus with a battery and wires attached to the right rear wheel of the car. The wires led to a device located on the pavement directly under the driver's seat.

Deputies said the apparatus was in clear view because of the way the car was parked.

Authorities said they found no note with the bomb which was dismantled by a bomb team from Fort Bragg. The team took the bomb out to a field near the inn where they detonated the caps on the dynamite.

One wing of the motel was evacuated and traffic on U.S. 29 was stopped briefly during the incident.

Authorities said Stacy, who lives in Scottsdale, Ariz., was in Concord to appear in court for a lawsuit concerning a loan. No arrests had been made in the case Wednesday afternoon.

Gamble Verifies The Decrease

By Johnny Thompson

A major question that should be on many Blacks' minds is why enrollment dropped among predominantly Black universities. W. H. Gamble, director of admissions, verified that enrollment most definitely is decreasing.

Like the other institutions of higher education, A&T has lost many students. There are several reasons for this decline. Surprisingly in many cases, it is the student, not the school, that is at fault.

"A large number of Black students are slow in applying for grants," said Gamble. "Black seniors in high school are also lackadaisical in taking the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT). Students really should apply for school in January rather than July," advised Gamble.

Gamble said that some students apply to A&T without having taken the SAT, or the necessary math courses.

Applications were not as fast last year as in previous years.

"Black senior high school students are beginning to take advantage of technical schools as well as community colleges which are less expensive. Competition is intense as far as recruiting young people goes. Predominately white schools are luring the blue chip Blacks away from the other institutions. They can do this because of their outstanding financial programs and it is hurting the smaller schools," lamented Gamble.

Guidance counselors and teachers in some high schools also advise Black pupils to go to a school that has a white majority.

Gamble advocates exposure (preferably television) to the public as a major means of (See Gold Page 11)

Democrats Take All Seats In 15th House District

Democrat John Covington was unopposed in the 27th House district.

Democrats took all six seats in the 15th House district, Wake County. Winners included Allen Adams, Ruth E. Cook, Aaron E. Fussell, Edward Ed Stallings, W. Casper Holroyd Jr., Joseph E. Johnson and Wilma Woodard.

Democratic winners in the 23rd House district in Guilford County were Ralph Edwards, Henry Frye, Byron Haworth, Jim Morgan and Gary Seymour.

In the 19th Senatorial district, Guilford County, Democrats Rachel Gray and Catherine Sebo won two of the seats.

Four Democrats won seats in the 29th House district in Forsyth County. Democrats elected include Dick Barnes, Judson DeRamus, Ted Kaplan and Margaret Tennille.

Democrats A Neal Smith and Robie Nash won both seats in the 20th House district, Rowan County.

In the 22nd Senatorial district, Cabarrus and Mecklenburg counties, Democrats picked up all four seats. Winners included Cecil Jenkins, Fred Alexander, Craig Lawing and Carolyn Mathis

Dowdy Pleased About Drive

By Karen F. Williams

"I am very pleased about the results of the blood donation program and I think the Pershing Rifle Team did an outstanding job in this drive. We should be grateful to all of the persons who donated blood," said Chancellor Lewis C. Dowdy.

Dr. Dowdy made these remarks at the presentation ceremony given in his office Tuesday morning.

The blood drive was sponsored by the ROTC program, and Cadet Captain Robert V. Clay was presented the award for the group.

Out of the 12 Pershing Rifle members on campus, 11 members gave blood. Their donation was a total of 91.6%.

"I am pleased that it turned out the way it did," Captain Clay responded, and was glad that the Pershing Rifles could help. I hope that we can help in the future," he added.

The Arnold Air Society

came in second place, with a donation of 88.8%. Kenneth Cole, cadet second lieutenant, was one of the coordinators. "I thank all the officers in the Air Force ROTC program for giving a helping hand," Cole stated. He also extended his congratulations to the Pershing Rifles for an outstanding job. The Pan-Hellenic council came in third place with a donation of 75%. Kevin Jenkins, cadet first lieutenant, was also a coordinator. "I would like to recognize Captain McMillian, our advisor, for preparing me in bringing this blood drive to the attention of the students at A&T, and I was pleased with the outcome of its success."

Three years ago when the blood drive was held, only 39 pints were received. This year a total of 165 pints were donated. "Who knows, this blood may save a life that is very close to one of us," Dr. Dowdy stated.

Bennett College presents "Plantation" by Ted Shine, a Black playwright. "Plantation" is a satirical comedy concerning a racist plantation owner who tries to prevent integration in a school near New Orleans.

Shown on TV the racist is excommunicated from the Catholic Church and loses his rites after returning from New Orleans, his own Blacks have tried to integrate; and, to his surprise after 20 years, a male child is born to him, his only child. After the birth, many startling events take place...

The play will be presented in the Bennett College Little Theatre, November 17, and 18. Admission is $1.

For further information call Ms. Denise Troutman at 272-4431.

Who's To Blame

Recently this writer was informed of an event that happened on campus last Friday, November 3, around the noon hour.

As it was reported to this writer John Ingram was scheduled to speak in Harrison Auditorium at 12:00 and that only around six or eight students showed up to hear the speaker.

As a result of this small turnout, statements were made to the press and television station that "students at A&T are very unpolitical." The only legitimate reason that this statement was made is that students did not attend Ingram's lecture.

There was no mention of Ingram's upcoming visit to campus in the school paper, nor were there any posters up in the dorms and in other buildings on campus.

A&T's students should not be blamed for not attending this lecture because they had no way of really knowing in advance that there was going to be a speaker on campus at all that day.

If a student organization sponsored this program, which I'm positive they were involved in the planning stages, why in the world did they choose 12 noon as an appropriate time to sponsor a political speaker?

The reasons that I feel the noon hour is so wrong is that there are some classes which start at that time, it's the lunch hour, and it was Friday, a day that most students leave early to go home, especially on a weekend when there isn't anything planned for on campus that weekend.

It seems like Ingram's campaigners would have advertised his coming to A&T to speak, especially to a predominantly Black school to speak.

Those Important Carbohydrates

By Lanita Ledbetter

Rice, potatoes, and other forms of starch are sure to be served at each meal eaten in the cafeteria. These foods are probably provided because they make excellent fillers and are moderate in cost. Grated potatoes and rice are indeed filling; but, whether the price is moderate or not varies from individual to individual.

For those who are weight conscious and are prone to gain weight very easily one should try to eliminate some of the starches, which are a source of carbohydrates.

Carbohydrates are very important to the body because they provide fuel for energy, but excessive amounts of carbohydrates store themselves and turn into body fat. So in the morning let's remember this when we reach for two bowls of grits, 30 carbohydrates, two slices of toast, 27 carbohydrates, jelly 4 carbohydrates, two boxes of raisin bran 54 carbohydrates, and two glasses of juice, 50 carbohydrates.

It may be good at the moment, but you have two more meals to go. At that rate one could easily add an extra 25 pounds in a year's time. So let us eat for nutrition, beauty, and moreso health.

Don't Give Up Hope

By Sheila A. Williams

Many students who are in the non-technical areas are often worried that there is really nothing for them out there in the career world. Quite a few even become frantic when most of the companies who come here for career day are looking for only business majors or engineers.

All of us do not have the same talents; for, if we did, it would be one boring place to live. Everyone would have to either construct houses or cars and count money. Technical majors enjoy the luxury of food, which is studied by biologists and food scientists. Better yet, if you are looking for a job, personnel would be the place where you would have to start. And if you consider clothes important, then one would have to begin in clothing and textiles.

Well, this is where the liberal arts majors fall in line. According to a recent "Insider" article, top companies are expanding their recruiting staffs and are increasingly seeking out promising liberal arts majors. They are even using them in marketing and administrative training programs. Why? Because liberal arts majors, or those in the non-technical field, are more flexible to adopt to changing demands in the job market.

The liberal arts majors areas, is broad and not concentrated; therefore, they have more of a choice than if they are trained in one specific area.

So don't become frustrated and give up hope; there's still a chance.

USDA Hires Three As Majors

Three recent graduates from the A&T Department of Animal Science were employed by the United States Department of Agriculture Federal Meat Grading Service, September 23. They are Patricia Ann Cannon, Dover, Jan Denise Mills, Trenton, and Wayne Bond, Elizabeth City. Jan and Patricia both are graduates of Jones Senior High School, Trenton; and Wayne, the John A Holmes High School, Edenton.

They will spend an intensified training period at Chico State College, Chico, California, after which Patricia and Wayne will be assigned for duty at Chicago, Ill., and Jan, at St. Paul, Minnesota.

During the summer of 1975, both Jan and Patricia were employed as student interns at the United States Department of Agriculture, Agricultural Research Service, Plum Island Animal Disease Center, Greenport Long Island, New York. They worked as technicians with research microbiologists engaged in studies on microbiological agents of foreign animal diseases in Diagnostic Investigations.

In 1975 Patricia was elected to membership in the North Carolina Academy of Sciences.

Jan and Pat chose to major in Animal Science, a field that has been traditionally dominated by men. However, a growing number of women are being attracted to it to train for careers as animal scientists, veterinarians, research, and related areas of food science and technology.

Of the many A&T Animal Science graduates in recent years who have pursued advanced studies, three have been young women. Ceile Washington received her Doctor of Veterinary Medicine degree from Tuskegee in May 1978. Trudy Wade is a junior veterinary student at Tuskegee and Delilah Robinson is pursuing studies for the Ph.D. in Animal Science at Ohio State University, Columbus, Ohio.

SAC To Sponsor Conference

The Southern Africa Coalition of Duke University will sponsor a regional conference on university involvement in southern Africa this coming Saturday and Sunday, November 11 and 12.

The conference focuses on the strategies available to Americans for bringing human rights to Blacks in southern Africa.

Registration occurs between 8:30 and 9:30 on Saturday at the Baldwin Auditorium of Duke's East Campus ($5 registration fee) with conferences throughout the day and a dinner for all at 6:00 in the Baptist Student Center.

Saturday conferences include an opening session on the anti-apartheid movement, a session on media misinformation, a workshop on university involvement in southern Africa, and a final session on methods of changing government and corporate policy on the southern Africa issue.

Sunday will see an opening conference on new methods of disseminating information on southern Africa. The last session on Sunday will attempt to join conference participants in a network of southerners concerned about southern Africa as a complement to the networks already solidly established in the west, midwest and north.

Major speakers and session leaders at the conference include George Ndanga, professor of political science at Allen University; Jim Sessions, Southerners for Economic Justice; Christine Root, The Washington Office on Africa; and Karl Seidman of the New England Catalyst Project.

More information on the conference may be obtained by calling a representative of the Southern Africa Coalition at 286-3016.

'A Night With The Champ' Not Sufficient Tribute

By Will Grimsley

AP Special Correspondent-They're calling it "A Night With the Champ." It's a fancy soiree Thursday evening in the lavish ballroom of Caesars Palace in Las Vegas - black tie, dinner $500 a plate, celebrities up to your eyebrows and gorgeous women in slinky satin sashaying to the tune of ringing slot machines.

Nice. But even that is not sufficient tribute to Joe Louis. They ought to declare a national holiday.

As time passes, as heavyweight boxing champions come and go, as the nation's mores and social structure continue to undergo radical change, the image of the Brown Bomber grows in stature.

He was one of the greatest if not the greatest.

His life shall always stand as a beacon for those who come after him - a quiet, simple man who faced up to the severest pressures of an ugly era in American history, degraded by fans, betrayed by associates and ultimately abandoned by many of his friends.

The world's champion, he gained a fortune, then lost it through his own naivete and bad advice. He was harassed by the Internal Revenue Department. His once staunch heart began to give way under strain and his health deteriorated.

He never publicly complained. Throughout his trials and the turbulent civil rights uprisings of the 1960's, he never lost his national pride. "Don't do it; you ought to compete for your country," he told Black athletes, threatening an Olympic boycott in 1968.

Joe Louis Barrow was born in a sharecropper's cabin in Lexington, Ala., May 1914. He was a strapping teen-ager when his mother, Lillie, and a second husband, threw the family of 18 into an open-bedded truck and headed for a new life in the thriving auto capital of Detroit.

Young Joe fought as an amateur, winning the Golden Gloves light heavyweight title, and worked on the Ford assembly line to help keep bread on the table of the burgeoning Barrow brood. He turned pro in July, 1934.

This was not the most propitious time for a young Black heavyweight with thunder and lightning in his fists to appear on the boxing scene.

As Gerald Aster, Louis' biographer points out, the country still had a bitter taste in its mouth over the experiences of Jack Johnson, the Black man who won the heavyweight title and married a white woman.

Booker T. Wahington said, "I have never seen the colored people so discouraged and bitter." President Wilson had segregated government agencies. A bill even had been introduced in Congress to ban mixed marriages.

National Parks Service Recruit For Employment

By Charma Kinney

Friday, November 3, in Barnes Hall Seminar Room, representatives from the National Parks Service located in the Great Smokey Mountains National Park were here to recruit for employment. This was sponsored by the Co-op Education Department.

Three recruiters talked with students in science backgrounds, mainly biology, but students in any field may apply.

Job openings with the park include working as a tour guide and also working in the publications department. This will begin in January. Mainly sophomores and juniors are being sought for the positions so that they may be able to work several terms.

John Heyward, a senior biology major, said that he would like to have a job just for the experience in his field, but, because he is a senior now, he would not apply.

All applications are to be turned into the Co-op Education office located in Dudley Building. These applications should be turned in no later than the last week in November.

If you are interested in writing to one of the recruiters who were here last week, your letters should be sent to Ms. Susan Bartlett, Great Smokey Mountain National Park; Gatlingburg, Tennessee 37738.

Cagle Serves As Research Assistant

1965, he served as a research assistant to former state Supreme Court Justice Clifton Moore for a year. He has degrees from Olivet College, the University of New York and Goddard College. He received his law degree from Wake Forest University.

Cagle said his decision to challenge Erwin rather than one of the other two judges was not because of race, but because Erwin "is one of the most liberal." In his campaign, Cagle called himself "a Jesse Helms conservative."

Erwin said, he did not think race was an issue in the campaign.

SOPHOMORES! IS THERE LIFE AFTER COLLEGE?

You're aiming for a college degree. And with that in hand you'll be looking for a job offer. You may find it won't be automatic. For that reason it's important for you, as a sophomore, to make the most of your last two years in college. Whatever your career choice, you'll want to become competitive and marketable. Battle Will Determine Bid

By Dennis Bryant

When Delaware State and A&T meet each other in Greensboro Saturday, each team will have one main goal on its mind. The Hornets will like nothing better than to knock the Aggies out of second place and the chance at a Gold Bowl bid. The Aggies will have the Bowl bid back in their minds somewhere.

The Hornets, 2-7 overall, and 2-3 in the conference have won two of their last three games after starting the season with five straight losses. There are 36 returning lettermen back, with 12 starters returning. Ed Wyche, Jr., last year's MEAC "Coach-of-the-Year", recruited 19 freshmen and faces a rebuilding period.

Delaware is led by senior quarterback Andre Brown (6-1, 180). Brown is third in the conference in passing with a 39 percent completion percentage for 694 yards. He has been plagued with interceptions, having thrown for 15 this year.

In the backfield are two outstanding backs, Anthony Beamon (5-11, 180) and Ronnie Shaw (5-9, 180). Boston Cram (5-11, 215) will anchor as the fullback along with senior Kelley Williams (6-0, 185). At the tightend slot is (6-2, 205) Jerome Culbrest.

On the line, are center Donald Fields (5-11, 225), offensive guard, Gregory Coleman (5-10, 240) and offensive tackle Steven Edward. The split end will be (5-11, 185) DeCosta Brown.

Brown is third in the nation in receptions with 43 for 488 yards and three touchdowns. He is averaging 11.3 yards per average. Beamon also is the key to the Hornets passing attack. He has caught 11 for 93 yards.

Defensively, the Hornets are led by defensive back Thomas Douglas (6-0, 190). Douglas has three interceptions for 114 yards and one touchdown. Halfback Ronnie Shaw leads the team in kickoff returns with seven for 139 yards.

David Crocker (5-11, 220) was an All-MEAC selection last year and returns for another great year. Senior linebacker Anthony Jones (6-4, 225) and defensive tackle Connie Hilliard (6-4, 260) lead the line. Hilliard led the team in tackles last year.

Other key defensive standouts are defensive end Donald Robinson (6-2, 215), slot back Larry Rudd (5-7, 180), defensive end Michael Smith (6-1, 200), defensive back Shelton Smith (6-0, 200) and linebacker Ronald William (6-0, 195). The Hornets also have the conference's number one punter in Phil Jackson. Jackson averages 39.9 yards per kick followed by Nolan Jones of A&T with a 38.0 average.

The Aggies are led by its defense. The keys are Dwaine Board, George Small, Lucien Nibbs, and Thomas Warren. These four are playing their last home game at War Memorial Stadium. Other key defensive stand outs are Leon Byrd, Gerald Johnson, who is second in the conference in punt returns with a 14.4 yard average, and Anthony Currie.

Offensively the team is led by Wheeler Brown (6-3, 251) and Smitty Davis (6-1, 223), both seniors. Quarterback William Watson directs the team with the backfield consisting of Charlie Sutton (6-2, 220) and William Joyner (5-11, 196). The receivers will be Frank Carr (6-0, 174) and Victor Elliott (5-10, 165).

The tightends are Billy Mims (6-5, 225) and Brett Fisher (6-2, 225). Lon Harris, who leads the conference in punt returns (14.6 yards per run) and second in kickoff returns (26.8), is a threat to score every time he gets the ball. The opposition finds it hard to punt with Harris, Johnson and Thomas Frazier (5-8, 170) returning the ball.

The game promises to be a thriller. A crowd of close to 20,000 is expected as the Aggies prepare for NCCU. Kick off time is 1:30 p.m. at War Memorial Stadium.

Crucial Conference Game To Determine Second Best

With South Carolina State reigning as the 1978 MEAC champions, the crucial contests still go on in the conference. There are two important conference games on tap this weekend where the results will be instrumental in determining second best in the MEAC.

Delaware State will test A&T in Greensboro, and NCCU will travel to Washington, D.C., to battle Howard. In non-conference contests, S.C. State goes to Grambling in a big divisional game, UMES plays at Frostburg, and Morgan will tackle Jackson State.

The Aggies who finished next to S.C. State last year will be shooting for that spot again this time. A&T, rested from an idle week, will be waiting on a disappointed Hornet team that's on its fourth straight road game.

North Carolina Central has a chance to finish in second place but will have to avenge last year's shut-out. The Eagles are 2-2 in the conference. Morgan State is fresh off a big win last week over Virginia Union, 10-6. They will have to be in excellent shape against a tough Jackson State team.

The Bulldogs, who appear to be back in championship form, should make this a tremendous confrontation. With a victory, S.C. State could possibly get a bid to the Division I-AA playoffs. UMES will be trying to prove it has some offense in this contest against Frostburg for the bragging rights of Maryland.

The game at A&T in Greensboro will be the MEAC Game-of-the-Week. A win by the Aggies and a NCCU loss will give A&T undisputed second place in the conference and a chance to get a Gold Bowl bid.

Soccer Teams Take Turns To Be Boss

By Shakespeare Maya

Soccer teams in the Piedmont East division are taking turns to learn what soccer is supposed to be and who is boss in the Piedmont World of Soccer.

A&T's soccer team is teaching them this lesson by threshing them on the pitch. To most of the teams, the word "win" has almost lost meaning because of A&T. A few come with hope, but always get disappointed. Phidipedes misbehaved last time by beating the Aggies 3-1.

On Sunday, November 5, they were disciplined by a 3-1 defeat.

I am sure now they know together with the others that it takes more knowledge of the game to, at least, lose reasonably with the Aggies.

In basketball, the Blue-Gold game played in Lynchburg, Va., was a rout for the Blue team. Led by Marvin Brown (22 points and 14 rebounds) and James Sparrow (22 points), the Blue team won easily 90-65. Other players on the blue squad were Joe Brawner (20 points) L.J. Pipkin (8 points) and David Craft (10 points). Harold Royster was high scorer for the Gold team with 18 points.

The Aggies will play their last home game of the season Saturday and possibly the last game in War Memorial Stadium. The game will be against Delaware State, and the Hornets are tough on defense.

Despite having lost seven games, the Hornets are an improved team. In the last three games, Delaware State has won two games, upsets over NCCU and Morgan State, so this should be a crucial contest for them.

The Aggies have won four of its last five games and are a much improved team. The defense has proven to be the backbone to that success. With South Carolina State already with the conference title in its hand, A&T can do no better than second. A loss could knock the Aggies completely out of the race.

A race for what? The race for a Gold Bowl bid. If South Carolina State defeats Grambling Saturday, the second place team may get the bid, but that is two weeks away. A&T still has two remaining and both are important.

Last year, Delaware State was 7-3 overall. The team went into the last game against the Aggies with a 7-2 record before losing 22-7. This year their record is completely 2-7. But don't look at the record; look at the team itself.

In the Morgan State game, A&T's front four-Dwaine "Pee Wee" Board, Lucien Nibbs, Ulysses Thompson, and Gerry Green- stayed on the quarterbacks' front door and wouldn't let them come out of the house. This should be the same kind of game.

Glenn Inman, George Small and Frankie Chesson at the linebacker spots are keying on those backs that come out of the backfield expecting to chunk up big gains of yardage. The secondary is picking off big passes to kill the opposition. So once again, defense is the key.

Sunday night, the Pittsburgh Steelers will take on the Los Angeles Rams in the NFL. With the Steelers carrying a 9-1 record and the Rams 8-2, it should be a very exciting game. In national football, the Oklahoma Sooners will battle the Nebraska Cornhuskers in Lincoln, Nebraska. Both teams are ranked in the top four and will battle it out for No. 1 in the nation.

Delaware State has never beaten the Aggies. As a matter of fact, it has only scored 15 points in one game, the rest were all below that. Look for a 21-point thrashing. The Aggies will have plenty of insecticide for those Hornets. As for the rest of the writers:

New Gym To House First Blue-Gold Game

Editor of The Register:

The new health, physical education and recreation building will host its first sporting event next Friday, November 17, with the hosting of the Blue and Gold game.

I'm wondering what this new building will mean to our students other than being a new building for classes, a larger pool, a larger gym for having basketball games, concerts, and convocations, or just a new facility to brag about.

If this is all the new building means to us, then all I can say is "look out new building here it comes."

If we enter the new facility with the mentality and lack of school pride which we now portray, in little or no time it will be in the same condition that Moore Gym is in now. It is really quite ridiculous to see supposedly educated people, write on walls and seats, carve initials in to anything that's soft enough to be scratched, remove mirrors from bathroom and locker room walls, or take down exit and fire evacuation signs, and anything else that can be detached and removed. All these things may seem trivial but in time they do add up.

Next there comes the most terrifying event of them all, that terror being in the form of

Baker Defensive end, Policeman

Baker was a defensive end for the Los Angeles Rams and Pittsburgh Steelers. During the off-season, he has worked for the Raleigh Police Department and the State Parolees Commission. He also served as an aide to Sen. Robert Morgan, D-N.C.

Baker already can claim the support of those who will work for him. A majority of the supporters with him Tuesday night were deputies, who groaned in despair when Cook took the lead and cheered wildly when Baker finally won.

In his concession statement, Cook questioned the outcome of some of the votes in certain precincts since the total was close.

"I want to shake John Baker's hand unless somebody can convince me not to," Cook said.

a concert. Let's go back to the night of Oct. 28, Homecoming night. Also let's imagine this event in the new facility. On that night we, as educated college students, did more damage to Moore Gym than any other Homecoming crowd in the past. Aggies and company proceeded to break out windows, pull doors off the hinges, push, shove, trample and injure each other, and all for what? We did all this damage to our campus property and, fellow Aggies, just to see a group that only cared about one thing, that one thing being the $11,000 they were to receive after the performance. No one in the crowd stopped to say wait a minute, what are we doing? Not even some of our great athletes cared to stop and think what they were doing, for many basketball and football players were involved in the pushing and shoving.

In closing, basically what

I'm trying to say is that, with the new facility, we need to establish a new sense of pride, not just for the university but also for self. The new facility will mean little or nothing to us if we enter it with that false sense of Aggie pride which we now possess.

Gold Bowl Can Help In Recruiting Of Students

(Continued From Page 2) boosting A&T's enrollment. "The recruiting of students would certainly not be as arduous a job if the Aggies could be exposed in the Gold Bowl, for example. Enrollment funds for recruiting are depleted. There was a 50 per cent slash in fees," said the admissions director.

"We don't get many gifts or endowments to aid recruiting. The alumni association does try to help though."

A&T, as well as the other non-white universities, have been largely distressed because numerous students have not been paying back their loans or grants.

"This is serious indeed. Not only do the Black universities have that headache, but they must deal with a very urgent matter at hand that is being debated right in Greensboro," said Gamble, "the competency tests."

Gamble said that the tests will hurt the university. "I feel that students (Black students) are getting away from the basics, the fundamentals of learning. I don't advocate social promotions because a child might be an inch taller or a year older. In the long run I think the tests will become helpful."
