Refugee Beaten In Scott Hall

By Tim Graham

Michael Long, a native of Washington, D.C., was brutally beaten in Scott Hall before eye witnesses.

Long, who was without a place to live, sought Scott Hall as a refuge. Long was evidently running from Greensboro police officials because of some trouble he caused around the city.

Around December 7, 1978, Long approached Mark Miles, a freshman, with a knife and cut him severely. Witnesses say he fled and kept the wood crafting knife in his possession. Meanwhile, approximately eighteen of Miles' friends and other concerned students searched desperately for the suspect. He was found, but spotted the searchers and continued to run.

According to witnesses, however, Long emerged in the darkness through some nearby woods; this enabled him to be visually contacted. The students returned to Scott Hall without the assailant, but they trapped him in an unidentified Greensboro residence. Long held a child who lived there as hostage. Someone then notified the Greensboro Police, and he was arrested and charged with trespassing and assault.

Mark Miles and his roommate, Rick Carthona were scheduled to appear in court in January. The two received inadequate information which caused their case to be dismissed, because they did not appear in the court room assigned to their case. Therefore, Michael Long was released from custody.

Long appeared on campus following his release in January. The same students who searched for him prior to his arrest trapped him in a student's room. Miles said, "I just wanted to ask him why he cut me, but he didn't want to talk, so I just left. When I left the boys went to his behind." Witnesses said that apparently someone had contacted campus security.

Two officers arrived in Scott Hall's basement, went to the room, and, unexpectedly, Long pulled a knife on them, witnesses said, and the campus officer pulled his night stick out and struck the hand that held the knife. Long dropped the knife and security beat him.

Another witness said regretfully, "I felt sorry for Mike, not because of what he had done but because of the way security had beat him in addition to what we had had done to him." An associate of Long's said, "They sent him to a local hospital, as well as, the state hospital because of his mental and physical instability. Other associates recalled some of Long's mentally incompetent actions, but they still chose to get revenge for Miles.

When a Register reporter questioned Roosevelt Raines, chief of police about the January incident he replied, "I know nothing about an incident that happened in January. What you are talking about occurred in December 1978. Campus security was not involved. The Greensboro City Police arrested him in some area of the city.

When asked if anyone was arrested, he said that no one was arrested. "This guy was not a student on campus. He cut a student, and the student was then taken to the emergency room," he stated.

White Asks Chancellors

To Cancel HEW Meeting

RALEIGH, (AP) - The Rev. Leon White today called upon three chancellors of predominately Black campuses in the University of North Carolina system to cancel a meeting with Department of Health, Education and Welfare officials Tuesday in Washington.

At a news conference today at the offices of the United Church of Christ's commission on Racial Justice, White said the chancellors are meeting with David Tatel, director of HEW's civil rights division, "to defend North Carolina's higher education desegregation plan."

From Washer And Dryer Issue

Garfield Receives One Complaint

By Angela Niles

According to J. E. Garfield, director of auxiliary services at A&T, there has recently been only one complaint concerning the malfunctions of washers and dryers on campus.

The complaint came last Tuesday, from Phillip Boone, residence administrator at Scott Hall. According to Boone, there is not sufficient current to insure operation of the machines in sections B and C of Scott Hall.

Upon receiving notice of the malfunction in the machines, Garfield requested that Solon Washer Company, the company from which A&T rents its washers and dryers, send mechanics to service the machines. But the problem seems to lie with utility functions for which A&T is responsible. These utilities include current and water which are mandatory for use of the machines.

Garfield commented, "We know of no other problems with the machines. If there are any, all we have to do is call Solon Washer Company to come out and repair them. However, water and current are our responsibility. We are trying to get more washers and dryers for Scott Hall but we must first have proper drainage installed."

Boone agreed that there is more to the problem than errors in the machines. "We are trying to find out who is actually responsible for the problem. We have no current. We want to know exactly whether the problem lies with the washers themselves or the current."

Garfield summarized the problem by stating, "There is a lack of coordination between the Solon Washer Company's responsibility and our own responsibility. But, we are making every effort, we assure you, to solve this problem very soon."

Fees Pay For Renovations

By Johnny Thompson

The majority of students at A&T are not aware of the fact that $35 per year is extracted from board and lodging fees. This $35, paid by students living on campus, goes for construction and/or renovation of dormitories.

As of late, no major renovations have taken place in any of the nine dormitories. If any dormitory needs some construction done, it has to be Scott Hall. "When will something be done about the residence hall situation?"

Plummer Alston, vice chancellor for fiscal affairs, said, "renovations will take place anywhere from three to six months. He said that the money in the budget, approximately 178,500.00 that the students paid, wouldn't be enough for maintenance, supplies, utilities and debt service.

He also said that the money for maintenance will come from the budget (money students paid) but the money (See Bonds, Page 2)

White Says Campus System 'Segregated And Inferior'

White, director of the commission's state field office, charged that the plan will keep the five predominately Black universities in North Carolina's 16-campus system "segregated and inferior." He particularly criticized a portion of the plan which could close the nursing school at predominately Black A&T while leaving the one at the predominately white University of North Carolina at Greensboro open.

"If the Hunt administration is serious about desegregation," White said, "I call upon them as a good faith gesture to shift the site of the new state veterinary school to North Carolina A&T."

The school is to be constructed at North Carolina State.

HEW has ordered the state to come up with a desegregation plan which will eliminate duplication of programs at predominately white and predominately Black campus. White charged that the plan offered by the Hunt administration will not upgrade the institutions and will tend to perpetuate the current predominately Black and white campuses.

The chancellors who plan to visit Washington Tuesday are Charles A. Lyons, Jr. of Fayetteville State, Albert T. Whiting of North Carolina Central in Durham and Marion T. Thorpe of Elizabeth City State. Cleon T. Thompson, vice president of the Universities of North Carolina, will go with them.

None of the chancellors could be reached for comment on White's charges.

Seminar Focuses On Education

The annual education seminars at A&T will focus on such issues as politics in education, bi-lingual education, current legal issues, and new careers, according to Dr. Dorothy P. Barnett, coordinator.

A seminar session will be held on Thursday, February 8, featuring a presentation by Mrs. Jacqueline Meadows of the gifted and talented program in Greensboro. The lecture will be in Room 213 of the Memorial Student Union.

Other lectures will include "Bilingual Education" by Mrs. Carolyn Lithgo of the Greensboro City Schools on February 22; "Politics in Education," by Dr. Cleon

Thompson, vice president for student services and special programs for the University of North Carolina system on March 15; "Realities of Teaching," by William T. Brown, assistant superintendent of the Fayetteville City Schools on April 12; and "Current Legal Issues in Education," by Attorney William Caffrey Greensboro school attorney on April 12.

The final lecture will be "New Careers in Education and Human Resources" on April 26, Dr. Elizabeth Koontz, assistant superintendent of Public Instruction for the state of North Carolina.

The lectures are being sponsored by the Department of Secondary and Curriculum at A&T.

Bonds To Assist Renovation is actually categorized as reserved currency. A&T reportedly requested approximately $1.4 million from Housing and Urban Development (HUD) for renovations. In order for A&T to receive this loan from HUD, A&T had to have $1,900,000. The $1,900,000 is actually in the form of bonds.

Alston stated "...we received authorization from the Board of Trustees to start the process for the issuance of bonds to assist in the renovation of dormitories." Reportedly, final decisions have not been made as to where the renovations will begin to take place.

The vice chancellor for fiscal affairs, who has been at this position since last January, said, "We are seeking all forms of grant assistance, so that students won't have to payback money. This is our major concern."

Library Observes Black History Month

The F.D. Bluford Library's Observance of Black History Month will begin with a lecture by Mrs. Ann Allen Shockley on Tuesday, February 6, at 10 a.m. in Seminar II of the Library. The public is invited.

Mrs. Shockley is both an academic librarian and a writer of fiction. Her initial experience as a writer was as a newspaper writer and contributor. This paved the way for her unique contribution to the Black Caucus of the American Library Association where she served as the first editor of the Black Caucus Newsletter.

In 1975, the American Library Association's Black Caucus bestowed upon her its Special Service Award, not only for her yeoman performance as the first editor of the Newsletter, but also for her creative contributions. Mrs. Shockley published an essay in College and Research Libraries (January, 1974) entitled "Black Book Reviewing: A Case for Library Action" which has been selected for Library Literature 5 - The Best of 1974. She also wrote "A Soul Cry for Reading" for The Black Librarian In America. Mrs. Shockley's short (See Women, Page 10)

Concentrate Makes Up Simple Label

For example, labels could say wine was made from "grapes and/or grape concentrate" so a maker using both would not have to use two labels.

In other steps to ease the complications, the government said producers would not have to list ingredients in their order of predominance, sodium would not have to be listed and the list could be added to the existing label or placed on an additional label on the back of the bottle.

The proposal said gin could be described this way: "Made from corn or wheat or rye, water, natural flavorings, yeast and enzymes."

UNC-G Hosts Black Art Festival

By Karen F. Williams
 "What you see is not the end of what is," were the words spoken by Nikki

Giovanni on Thursday evening in Cone Ballroom at UNC-Greensboro. She was the keynote speaker for the Black Arts Festival. Giovanni was born in Tennessee and raised in Ohio. She is a graduate of Fisk University.

Giovanni spoke on the potentials of Blacks and Love between our fellowman.

"We have come through with dignity as a Black race, and are much better off than we are being perceived," she stated. "If we are not expanding our hearts and minds, then we will become something very negative," she remarked.

"There are more possibilities than what you see; you just got to get out there and learn to take a chance with your brain," Giovanni asserted. She continued by stating that we have allowed our lives to become trivial, and should never be afraid of failure.

On speaking of humanity, she mentioned that people will

Blood, Sweat & Tears

The caption in the box on page one in February 2 edition of The A&T Register, said "19 years ago." This was referring to the sit-in that took place at F.W. Woolworth. We may just be going back to that stage because of a recent decision by the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals. In 1974, two white students at UNC-Chapel Hill sued the university on a discrimination issue and lost. On the basis of the Bakke decision, the court was ordered to review its earlier findings. Monday it found UNC guilty of bias.

These two white students said that two Blacks were given their positions on the student government. But, prior to the case, Blacks were upset because they weren't represented on the student government at all. Now that we have the Bakke decision, this writer feels that it will take us back to the 60's again.

We have had lecturers, such as Dick Gregory, who said that the Bakke case will not really hinder Blacks in today's society. If this course of action is continued, not only will we be relieved of jobs on student governments but also in businesses, high-paying teaching positions, and the government as well.

Time after time more and more whites are beginning to use the Bakke decision to say that a minority is in his position because he is just that - a minority.

Some of our predecessors have fought and died with the help of the NAACP and other Black civil rights organizations to gradually gain recognition here in the U.S. as a citizen. We have just gotten positions in some organizations in the past five years that some Blacks have never had before: top military positions and an ambassador in the United Nations.

Another incident that can be bought to mind is President Carter's pardoning Patty Hearst. It has taken approximately ten years to free the Wilmington 10 and still some members are in prison.

With the Bakke case, we are slowly losing our identities as human beings; it is destroying 19 years of blood, sweat, and tears.

Suicides On The Rise?

By Richard B. Steele

Recession, gas shortages, tax increase, inflation, depression...are but a few problems forcing more and more North Carolinians to suicide. According to Dr. Bernard Bressler, Duke University psychiatry professor, there have been tremendous increases in insecurity. An associated press release indicates at least 732 North Carolinians killed themselves in 1977.

A large reason for this (it was brought out) is the "massive" media's treatment of the issue. If one would stop to notice there seem to be more murders, earthquakes, and other crimes or disasters than it was five years ago. That's largely because of more media exposure and an awakened population.

The point made was there are more suicides in the cities than in the country. In the country, one could possibly take a long-soul searching walk while in the city one would be less apt to take long walks in the noise, haste, and confusion.

People literally lose control over their lives and become depressed. This is especially true among young people and elderly persons. Our usefulness seems limited in a world when very few care.

At one time one could turn from his problems and hide from what it was that disturbed him. Now there seems to be no where to go. Problems will follow you or meet you there.

The best way to beat some of the afore mentioned reasons for suicide is to develop a hobby or pastime just for when you begin to feel down and out.

A phone call can sometimes make all the difference in the world...somebody will listen.

I'm Proud To Be Black

By Jacqueline D. Pender

The Revolution is the basic change characterized by a unity of blackness that goes further than any unity since the first Black people were brought to the United States. Coloreds, Negroes, Blacks, Afro-Americans, whatever you might have once called them, today, have more of a sense of belonging than ever before.

For many years some Blacks have tried to run away from what they really are, Black. They tried to imitate whites in dress and even in looks. They did this by straightened hair, their way of dress and their use of words. But you know what? They were still Black.

Blacks tried to out perform whites. They thought getting better grades in school would do it. They felt moving to the suburbs might do it. Some Blacks vanished from their native country to exile in another country. But guess what they found out. They could run but they could not hide.

Blacks have finally reached the point that they can stand alone and say to themselves, "I'm Black and I'm proud." They have reached the stage that they can say, "My people are Black, my ancestors were Black and some were slaves, and I'm not ashamed of my Blackness or theirs."

They can say, "I'm not ashamed of my color and I'm not ashamed of myself because I'm Black and beautiful." Black people are finding a freedom they never found before, the freedom to be themselves, Black.

There is a revolution in the fight of the Black man in his home against the racism in this country. This racism can be fought with the Black man's having confidence in himself for what he really is.

The revolution is Black men being free to go on with their personal goals, securing the dignity of their Black manhood.

Cafeteria Issue Is Two Way Dilemma

Editor of The Register:

As one walks across campus making those daily rounds, it is not at all unusual to overhear someone commenting on the cafe. You can hear practically any kind of complaint you want from the flies to the food. You may even hear someone voicing his dissatisfaction of some of the workers' attitudes.

Taking those concerns one by one starting with the flies, let us examine these situations closer. Let's explore the reason behind the flies in the cafe. During a recent discussion with Laura Thornton, director of food services, a few hidden facts were brought out into the open. According to Thornton, the cafe had ordered fans to be placed in the doorways to keep the flies out during the 1974-75 school year. These fans were only being used experimentally; and, if the students approved, then permanent fans were to be purchased.

It seems the big afro was the thing at that time, and Thornton said that students were enraged by the fans messing up their hair. They plainly made it known to all that they did not wish to be bothered with such an inconvenience; therefore, the fans were removed. However, Thornton did indicate that fans are on order again and that they will be in use this spring.

As far as the attitudes of the workers are concerned, some of the discourtesies experienced by students are unnecessary especially since you (the students) are the ones paying their salaries. But maybe it can be narrowed down to the fact that you are the employer and they are the employees. Quite naturally if the employer displays an attitude dominated with 'I don't care', the employee will take advantage of the situation.

Whenever you receive this kind of attitude from these employees, that you think is unbecoming of the situation, why not ask for his or her name? Of course you must realize that the men and women who work in the cafeteria are continuously confronted with unnecessary attitudes on the students' part; let's not run and try to get Mary Jane fired because she didn't smile at you when you were right behind someone in line who spoke with an ill-mannered tongue.

The last, but certainly not the least item on our agenda is the food itself. Checking into that situation has proven to be very interesting and at the same time heartbreaking, with Mrs. Thornton, and semi-thoroughly discussing many of the problems concerning the food, a food service committee was organized.

The objective of this committee is to search out other colleges and universities and compare our food service with theirs.

The committee will also try to help think of new ideas and/or methods to be used in our cafe to help make the best of it throughout the remainder of the school year. If the food service committee should find what seems to be a better system, then further research will be conducted.

If the findings show that A&T may possibly benefit from such a system, then it will be placed before the entire on-campus student body for a vote.

The food service committee has visited the campus of Winston-Salem State University to check out its food services. Ironically, W.S.S.U. has the exact same catering system as that of U.N.C.-G. But the students at W.S.S.U. pay approximately $100 more per than UNC-G students.

The Food Service Committee is still accepting members, so if you think that you're being swindled or if you feel that you can help come up with

Government Wants Beer Ingredients To Be Labeled

WASHINGTON (AP) - What's "brewed from malt, hop extract, water, yeast, enzymes, propylene glycol alginate, natural and artificial flavors, caramel color and potassium metabisulfite as a preservative?"

That's beer, buddy, and the government wants a label on the can saying so.

And you thought booze contained only alcohol. Not at all!

Blended whiskey may be made from "corn or wheat or rye, malt, water, yeast, enzymes, colored with caramel." The government wants a label saying that, too.

After considering the matter off and on since 1972, the Treasury Department's Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms has decided that labels should be required on alcoholic beverages after Jan. 1, 1983.

John G. Krogman, acting director, said labels would be helpful to people who are allergic to some ingredients in their drinks.

Then another agency, the Food and Drug Administration, said it would require full ingredient labeling of alcoholic beverages. A distiller sued and a court ordered FDA to drop the idea.

The government did not appeal and the Treasury Department decided to compromise with the industry with a proposal for partial ingredient listing.

That proposal was issued Thursday, with the public and industry given 60 days to comment before it becomes final.

No immediate reaction came from the hard liquor people, but the Wine Institute said "very preliminary examination" showed "that a substantial gulf may still exist in the federal bureaucracy's understanding of the fundamentals of winemaking."

"Wine," said the institute, "is not a concocted product; it is not manufactured from ingredients but is produced from grapes. One does not mix different elements to produce wine."

UNC Guilty Of Discrimination

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) - The University of North Carolina is guilty of reverse discrimination by mandating Black representation on the school's honor court and its student government, a federal appeals court said Monday.

The 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, citing the Bakke decision of the Supreme Court, reversed a lower court decision that it earlier had upheld.

The review of its earlier decision was ordered by the Supreme Court in view of its ruling that the University of California had discriminated against Allan Bakke, who is white, by giving preferential treatment to members of minority races seeking to enroll in medical school merely because they are minorities.

The full seven-member appeals court took part in the review last November. Three dissented in the ruling announced Monday.

The dissenters said, in part, "We read Bakke both to recognize and to approve as a general principle, the use of racial criteria in remedial steps to redress wrongs worked by adjudicated instances of racial discrimination, provided only that the remedial steps 'work the least harm possible to other innocent persons competing for the benefit...'"

Two white students, Lawrence A. Uzzell and Robert L. Arrington, filed the suit in 1974 against the university, its officials, officials of the student government and the school's Black Student Movement.

They challenged the requirement that the 18-member Campus Governing Council elected annually by the students, must include "at least two councilors of a minority race within the student body..."

They also contested an Honor Court requirement that any student to be tried is entitled, upon his or her request, to have four of the seven judges of the court of his or her race or sex.

Uzzell and Arrington contended these regulations relying exclusively on a racial criterion denied them their rights of equal protection and violated the Civil Rights Act of 1964.

The appeals court's majority opinion said, "Bakke, we recognize, unequivocally pronounces that in state educational institutions race may be a consideration in fixing the rights of students, but at no stage did the court affirm that race could be the sole determinant..."

It added that the "permeating defect in the organization of CGC, the governing council, is the imposition of an artificial racial structure upon this elective body that bars non-minority students from eligibility for appointment to the council..."

As for the honor court, the opinion stated, "...Its organic regulation allows race to be a dominant consideration in impaneling the court, obviously a vital juncture in the trial process. This focus on race is achieved by permitting the defendant to insist that a majority of his triers be of his race..."

It ruled the practices invalid and said there was no point in sending it back to the lower court for further deliberations.

Judges Clement Haynsworth, John Butzner, and Harrison Winter, in their dissent, stated, "Bakke does not hold that in all events racial criteria may not be the sole determinant in fixing the rights of students," although it "recognizes that race is a suspect classification."

Working Women Don't Have Priviledges

RALEIGH (AP) - Most of the working women in North Carolina don't hold down glamorous jobs, complete with expense accounts, a company car and other priviledges

In fact, says Labor Commissioner John Brooks, 80 percent - or 800,000 - of the working women in the state are employed in clerical, sales, service and factory jobs.

"Many of these women receive low wages, and their work often offers little or no opportunity for advancement," Brooks said recently.

But women had a chance to speak for themselves Feb. 3 in Greensboro, where the state Labor Department and the N.C.-Council on the Status of Women held a conference on "Make Work for Women."

No registration fee was charged for women who work in clerical, factory, sales and service jobs, and information is available from the Labor Department. The conference began at 9 a.m. at Merrick Hall at N.C. A&T State University. Elizabeth Koontz, head of the National Commission for Working Women and assistant superintendent of the state Department of Public Instruction, moderated the morning session. State Sen. Kathy Sebo, D-Guilford, moderated a panel discussion in the afternoon.

Sports Notebook

This past weekend, the Aggies proved who was "King of the Road" with victories over Howard University and Morgan State University. The basketball team barely escaped with a win over the Bison and the team looked very impressive over the Bears.

Friday night James "The Bird" Sparrow provided all the sparks as A&T had to fight off Howard and escaped with the two-point victory. At one point the game looked as though the Aggies would lose its first game in the new gymnasium.

Coach Gene Littles had to be pleased with the play of Sparrow and sophomore forward Harold Royster. Royster scored 14 points and pulled down 16 rebounds. Royster played perhaps some of his best games this weekend.

Saturday night it was guard Joe Brawner and center Marvin Brown who provided the sparks for the Aggies. Brawner poured in 22 points and was credited with seven assists. He shared the assists total with Sparrow.

It was Brown's 18 points and timely rebounds that helped A&T keep its scoring pace throughout the second half. He had the assignment of guarding Anthony Young most of the night. Young was able to score 21 points, but most of them too late.

Morgan forward Garcia Hopkins, the conference leading scorer, got his season average of 23 points. Hopkins was contained most of the night and got most of his point total in the late stages of the game. He also got seven rebounds.

The two victories gave A&T a perfect 8-0 conference slate. A victory over NCCU tonight will assure the Aggies of a tie for first-place. Should A&T win tonight and win one of its last three conference games, A&T will get the first-round bye in the tournament.

There should be plenty of Aggies at the game tonight. NCCU is 3-5 in the conference and 4-16 overall. The Eagles may be tough at home, but the Aggies are always ready to play them.

The MEAC tournament begins in two weeks. It should be one of the best ones ever with each team having equal talent. The four-game total should attract over 30,000 screaming fans. Tournament tickets are available at Campbell Hall and the Greensboro Coliseum box office.

The A&T Aggiettes are currently 6-9, but the team put on some exhibition this weekend. Coach Joyce Spruill finally came up with the right lineup and the team defeated two very good teams. The one Friday night had to be the biggest.

The victory over Pfeiffer College was big because Pfeiffer was rated one of the top two teams in Division II. The Aggiettes fought from a 12-point deficit to overcome Pfeiffer. Saturday Bennett came to A&T territory with an 11-5 record and only seven players.

The Belles left 11-6 with only three of those players to remember there was a game. The Aggiettes got a 25-point performance from guard Charlene Hendersoren en route to a 73-58 win. She also got a lot of support from the rest of her teammates.

Improves Women Sports

By Rodney McCormick

With the introduction of the Title IX Act this past year, women sports on college campuses in America are on the uprise and here at A&T, there is no exception. In talking with A&T's athletic director, Jim McKinley, he voiced several opinions concerning the women's program here.

He cited that since he's been athletic director there have been steady and gradual changes to improve the women's program. In trying to comply with HEW guidelines regarding Title IX, McKinley states that Title IX is a very confusing issue. Currently the guidelines are being revised so they can inform the various athletic programs around the country, the actual initiatives to suffice an adequate women's program. The revision should be complete by March, 1979.

The four women sports offered here on a varsity collegiate level are softball, volleyball, basketball, and track and field. The women here at A&T have access to the same facilities as the men do.

In recent years more money has been appropriated toward women activities. More than 50% of the women now receive scholarships. The women have assumed a conditional priority over the men in that they would most likely get what they want before the men would.

One aspect of the women's program that needs to be improved is the recruiting. Although some of the athletes are from out of state, most of the recruiting is done on a local, statewide basis.

Most of the women's basketball games are now being played in front of their male counterparts. In doing so this helps attract a larger crowd for the women's game. Recently two 30 second clocks had to be purchased for the women's basketball team.

McKinley feels that the women's program isn't second rate or a step below the males. "Women will never equal the men because they will never be able to generate the revenue produced by the men." Currently there are only two revenue sports here at A&T, men's football and basketball.

"The women coaches and assistants will be increased as they get evaluated more and more by their seasonal performance. New programs will be prepared for the women, but only as the interest expands."

Although the women outnumber male students, the percentage of actual women participating is less than the males. "They (females) should be encouraged to come out. Competition is all around them and is really a daily pursuit. When we campaign for football tryouts, we put signs up everywhere on campus. We get the fellows involved."

The few and only problems that can be associated with the women's programs are growing pains and lack of participation. Women sports are really just starting to gel and grow on college campuses. Who knows just what stipulations HEW, NCAA, AIAW (Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women) want. Women sports here at A&T appear to be on the move but for the time being it's all a waiting period.

Aggies Stomp Howard, Maintain MEAC Record

Friday night, the Aggies improved their MEAC record, by keeping it spotless as they held off a scrappy Howard team, with some clutch-free throw shooting down the stretch, 70-68. The Aggies scored first as they won the opening tap on a basket by Harold Royster who finished the game with 14 points and 16 rebounds.

With 13:29 remaining, the Aggies held a five-point lead, 15-10. The Bison drew back to a 15-15 tie on a basket by Carlton Richardson with 11:49 to play.

A&T pulled out to a six point lead with 7:42 left, but Howard battled back to a tie at 28-all on a basket by Dorian Dent. With 3:51 remaining at the half, Howard was leading by one point, 35-34.

In the second half the lead changed hands frequently; but, with 7:53 left in the game, the score was deadlocked at 53 all. Howard scored two baskets to take a four-point lead 57-53. Sparrow, Royster, and Graham combined for 9 freethrows to take a lead, 62-57. However, the Bison never gave up as they came back to within one point on a basket by Gerald Gaskins, 64-63.

With 1:04 remaining in the game, the Bison's center, Dorian Dent fouled out. He left the game with 16 points and 14 rebounds. With only 14 seconds remaining in the game, the Aggies led 70-66. Howard playing a hustling and gambling defense, stole the ball from the Aggies and brought the score within two points, 70-68.

On the next play, Gaskins fouled freshman Brian (See Sparrow, Page 10)

NBA Reports, New Howard Coach-Keith Signs Contract

By Dennis Bryant

Here is a report of the Black college basketball players in the National Basketball Association (NBA). This report came directly from Carl Allen from Howard University.

There are two Grambling products. They are 6-8 forward Aaron James with the New Orleans Jazz, scoring at the 8.3 points a game chip and 6'1 guard Larry Wright for the Baltimore Bullets. Wright is averaging 7.2 points a game.

The most widely known are 6-6 forward Bobby Dandridge, a Norfolk State graduate, who averages 19 points for the Bullets. Truck Robinson, a 6-7 forward from Tennessee State, is one of the leading scorers in the NBA with a 24.4 game average. Dandridge and Robinson both were NBA Allstars.

Rookie Eugene Short, a 6-6 forward from Jackson State, is averaging 11.8 points with the Golden State Warriors. Elizabeth City State University's Mike Gale, a 6-4 guard, is averaging 7.8 points with the San Antonio Spurs. Center Caldwell Jones, a 7-1 starter for the Philadelphia 76'ers, hails from Albany State is averaging 9.2 points a game.

Two MEAC products are 6-9 forward center Tom Boswell and seven-foot center Marvin Webster of the New York Knicks. Boswell played two years for South Carolina State before going to the University of South Carolina. Boswell is averaging 11.1 points with the Denver Nuggets.

Webster, who is remembered for his outstanding play with the Seattle Super Sonics in the NBA championships last year now plays with the New York Knicks. He is scoring at the 12.2 clip. Webster led the Bears of Morgan State to the MEAC finals in his senior season.

Changing to football news, Howard University named Floyd Keith as its new head football coach replacing Doug Porter. Porter coached the Bison for five years and compiled a 3-21-1 record, 4-6 in his last season.

Keith, a 30-year-old coach, was an assistant coach under Bill Mallory for four years at Miami University (Ohio) and the past five years at the University of Colorado. He signed a five-year contract for about $30,000 annually. University President James Cheek also said the university expects to break ground in less than five years on a $14 million stadium-parking complex to replace the current small campus stadium.

Howard's planned 20,000 seat stadium would meet one NCAA requirement, that a Division I-A team must play most of its games in a facility that seats at least 17,000. The stadium plans an artificial playing surface atop three levels of underground parking, which also would serve the adjacent Cramton Auditorium, Howard's theater-concert complex.

Cheek also said it might be necessary for the Bison to drop out of the Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference and play as a Division I-A independent should the entire MEAC fail to go for Division I-A status in the future. He said, "We wanted someone from the pro ranks or experience at Division I-A because that is our objective and we are going to achieve it."

Aggies Take on Two, Stomp Divisions II, III

By Dennis Bryant

Before taking on two of the top teams in both Division II and Division III districts, it looked as though the Aggies were in for a long weekend.

It turned out to be a great weekend with victories over number-two ranked Pfeiffer in Division II and number one-ranked Bennett in Division III.

Friday night, the Aggies were down 20-3 after the first seven minutes of the game before Coach Joyce Spruill changed her lineup. The Aggies spurred 19-4 to cut the lead to two at 24-22 at the 8:36 mark. Pfeiffer quickly upped that lead to 12 at 36-24 with one minute to play in the half.

Leading 36-26 at the half, Pfeiffer got some timely rebounds and led 53-41 with 8:50 to play. Then it was the play of forward Lillie Pratt that turned the game around. Pratt scored ten second half points to lead the team to victory. The junior forward also got a lot of help from Cheryl Hall and Karen Bryant.

With the score 55-45, a basket by Pratt cut the lead to eight at 55-47. Over the next three minutes, the Aggies outscored Pfeiffer 10-4 to cut the lead to 2 at 59-57. The visitors increased that margin by two at 61-57. Two trips down the court later, a Karen Bryant jumper tied the score at 61 all.

The two teams traded baskets over the next 2:33 before a free throw by Hall gave A&T a 66-65 lead. Pfeiffer lost the ball down the court, and Bryant hit two free throws to give A&T a 68-65 lead and the final score. Hall missed a chance to build that lead with five seconds to go.

On Saturday night, the Belles of Bennett drew first blood at 2-0. Over the next (See Henderson, Page 10)

MEAC Bound, Aggies 8-0 Conference, 13-6 Overall

By Raymond Moody

Joe Brawner paced four Aggies in double figures with 22 points as A&T raised its conference and overall record to 8-0 and 13-6 respectively with a 78-68 win over Morgan State.

The Aggies jumped to a 6-0 lead on three consecutive layups by Marvin Brown, Joe Brawner, and L.J. Pipkin.

Garcia Hopkins, the leading scorer in the MEAC, quickly cut into the Aggies' lead by scoring Morgan's first seven points to slice A&T's lead to four, 11-7 with 15:55 to go in the half. A&T then broke on top 13-7, but Morgan tied the score at 13 with 12:57 left in the half.

During the next two minutes A&T surged ahead 21-13 on two foul shots by Joe Brawner, one layup apiece by James Sparrow and Harold Royster, and a jumpshot by Royster.

The rest of the first half was played on even terms. The Aggies and the Bears continued to trade baskets and A&T carried a 38-33 lead into the dressing room.

A&T began the second half by scoring the first four points on two free throws by Marvin Brown and a jumpshot by James Sparrow to lead 42-33.

The next nine minutes, A&T's lead stayed basically at seven or nine points until Morgan State's forwards, Anthony Young and Garcia Hopkins, scored consecutively on layups to cut A&T's lead to five, 62-57.

Joe Brawner's two foul shots and Marvin Brown's layup gave A&T another nine-point lead, 66-57 with 5:12 left in the game.

It was A&T versus Anthony Young and Garcia Hopkins during the last five minutes of the game. Young and Hopkins combined for Morgan's last 11 points, but it was too little too late as A&T took home a 78-68 victory.

Assisting Joe Brawner in double figures for the Aggies were Marvin Brown, Harold Royster, and James Sparrow with 18, 14, and 11 points respectively. Brawner and Sparrow contributed seven assists apiece while Harold Royster pulled down a game high nine rebounds. Morgan State was led by Garcia Hopkins and Anthony Young with 23 and 21 points respectively.

This win leaves A&T with an 8-0 conference record and everyone else in the MEAC has at least three losses.

With four conference games left, a win at NCCU Tuesday night would clinch at least a tie for first place and another win out of the next three conference games would win the MEAC season championship.

Henderson Pumps 25 Points, Seven Games Remain

five minutes, A&T outscored Bennett 13 to 3 to take a 13 to five lead. The Belles managed to overcome the deficit by running on a 12 to 8 flurry to cut the lead to four at 21-17.

Over the last six minutes of the half, Charlene Henderson added eight of her game high 25 points to give A&T a 43-29 halftime lead. In the second half, the closest Bennett could get was 14 points at 54-40 at the 12:40 mark.

Bryant scored eight of her 14 points over the next five minutes as the Aggiettes burst to a 65-42 lead. The biggest lead of the game was at 67-42, and Coach Spruill inserted the substitutes.

The Belles were able to cut the lead to the final margin on key baskets by Andre Dixon and Elwanda Blue. Blue led the Belles in scoring with 22 points. Bennett's number one scorer Portia Dixon fouled out with over 13 minutes left to play in the second half.

Portia's sister Andre scored 13 points for the Belles while Portia added nine. The two combined scoring was over 15 points below their season average. Bennett dropped to 11-6 with the loss. The Belles dressed only seven players.

For the Aggiettes, Henderson scored 25, Bryant 14, and Mamie Jones scored 10. A&T is now 6-9 with seven games remaining.

Graham; Graham missed the front end of a one and one, but Lawrence Norfleet of Howard was called for a lane violation. Graham missed his second attempt and the one and one. Howard grabbed the rebound and failed to get away a shot before the buzzer sounded.

High for A&T was James Sparrow's 25 points.

Early Lead Boost Victory To Aggiettes

By Patricia Cannon

Saturday night the A&T Aggiettes played host to the Bennett Belles. The Aggiettes took an early lead in the game. After 4 minutes of play, A&T led 10-4.

Sparked by Henderson and Pratt, the Aggiettes took a commanding lead with a score of 32-20 with 5 minutes left in the first half.

In the first half Bennett outshot A&T at the free throw line by a 52-42 percent margin, but A&T was in complete control of shooting from the field. The Aggiettes led at halftime with a score of 43-29.

The second half got off to a slow start for both teams. After 4 minutes of play only 2 points had been scored. The Aggiettes soon got hot and with 7:37 left to be played, the Aggiettes had a 23 point lead. The Belles fought back, but could only pull within 15 points of the Aggiettes. Time ran out for the Belles and the Aggiettes added another win to their record.

'Ten' Makes U.S. Known As Politically Oppressive Nation

RALEIGH, (AP) - Two U.S. Congressmen said Friday that the Wilmington 10 case has caused the United States to be listed by Amnesty International as a politically oppressive nation.

Reps. Don Edwards, D-Calif., and John Conyers, D-Mich., spoke at a news conference called by the North Carolina Alliance Against Racial and Political Repression to commemorate the third anniversary of the imprisonment of the Rev. Ben Chavis. Chavis is the only member of the group of nine men and one woman still in prison.

Gov. Jim Hunt reduced the sentences of the Wilmington 10 last January, allowing all but Chavis to be paroled.

Edwards and Conyers, along with officials of the Alliance, planned to meet with Chavis later in the day at the Orange County prison unit, where he is being held.

Edwards, sitting in front of a large poster that pictured Chavis behind bars and read "Free the Wilmington 10," said the Wilmington 10 case has been a source of embarrassment to the United States.

"Amnesty International, the Nobel-prize winning group for peace, has just listed for 1978 the countries who are oppressors all over the world," he said. "I regret to say that on page 138 the United States is listed in the same crowd. And why is the United States listed as an oppressor? Chiefly because of two North Carolina cases - the Charlotte 3 and the Wilmington 10."

Edwards, chairman of the House Judiciary Subcommittee on Civil and Constitutional Rights, said the federal government has had to intervene in the Wilmington 10 case because of mistakes made in the trial.

"Take the conservative position and just look at the law," Edwards said. "There was a massive miscarriage of justice. The state of North Carolina made a tremendous mistake, and it should be rectified."

"The Justice Department has filed an amicus brief friend-of-the-court brief listing thousands of errors connected with the trial of the Wilmington 10," he added. "We cannot rest until this matter is resolved. We are calling on the Justice Department to help the Wilmington 10 get a new trial."

The Justice Department filed a friend-of-the-court brief in federal court in Raleigh last November. The 89-page document, filed by the department's civil rights division, said there was evidence that the group did not get a fair trial.

Conyers, chairman of a subcommittee of the House Judiciary Committee, said Chavis is not an isolated example of "racial and political injustice in this country."

"You can come to the state of Michigan," he said. "I can produce for you some cases that are so unjust...we could form 20 more committees to work for them."

Conyers, saying he has been working for a pardon for the Wilmington 10 since 1976, said he plans to continue to his efforts to get the group exonerated.

"The point is not how long we will keep doing what we're doing. Right now we're doing everything legally and governmentally possible. We are pushing for a pardon of 10 innocent people," he said.

Charlene Mitchell, national executive secretary for the Alliance, said the Wilmington 10 case showed "justice in this country is too often based on skin color or money."

"When President Carter wants to move, he can," Ms. Mitchell said. "He did that with Patty Hearst. He has got to move on the Wilmington 10 and Charlotte 3."

"We have half a million signatures calling for action on the Wilmington 10," she continued. "Still we have gotten nothing."

A spokesman for Hunt's office said Friday that Hunt would have no comment on the Alliance's action on behalf of the Wilmington 10.

"The governor is finished with the Wilmington 10," said Stephanie Bass, Hunt's deputy press secretary. "He felt the sentences were too harsh, so he reduced the sentences. But he felt they were guilty."

The Wilmington 10 were convicted of arson and conspiracy in connection with the burning of a grocery store during a week of racial unrest in Wilmington in 1971.

Business School Begins Small Business Seminar

Greensboro, N.C.-"For every successful small business, there are many failures," said Dr. V. K. Unni, a teacher in the department of business administration at A&T State University.

"These failures," added Unni, "are most often attributable to inadequate managerial ability."

Unni and another A&T business management seminar at the university beginning Thursday, February 8.

The small business management development seminar will be sponsored by the school of business and economics at A&T.

"We have an excellent program which should encourage managers to analyze and evaluate current positions," said Unni, "and also to encourage planning for tomorrow."

The class is scheduled to meet on Thursdays from 6:30 to 9 p.m. in Room 311 Merrick Hall.

Unni said the topics to be discussed will be planning and forecasting, accounting and finance and marketing.

He said the program should be of special interest to small businessmen in manufacturing, retailing, wholesaling, services or franchise. Unni said particular emphasis will be placed on problem solving, decision making and implementation in the functional areas of accounting, finance and marketing.

Unni holds the MBA and DBA degrees in marketing and management respectively. Dr. Brewer holds the MBA degree in marketing and the DBA degree in finance. For additional information, persons are asked to contact Dr. Unni at 379-7656, or Dr. Brewer at 379-7581. The course will end on March 15.

Dedicated Worker Retires From Administration

By K. Denise Burke

As of March 1, the A&T Office of Registration and Records will lose a very dedicated employee. Geneva Bullock, who has been working at A&T since July of 1946, will retire.

"Bullock will definitely be missed," stated Cecelia Cunningham. Cunningham, who has worked with Bullock for 22 years said that she was very nice and helpful to everyone. "I was able to talk freely to her at all times," Cunningham stated.

"I hope to do volunteer work at a local hospital and maybe look for a part-time job after I retire," she said. Bullock, who attends St. Mary's Catholic Church, also hopes to continue working with the Senior Citizens group there.

"When I first started working in Registration and Records, we had to do everything completely manually, such as estimate credits and grade point averages. "Now things are done semi-automated," she remarked.

Bullock is a graduate of A&T with a degree in Business Education. She is very active in the Boosterettes and the Alumni Association.

Black History

January 24, 1885-Martin R. Delaney, physician and public official, died in Xenia, Ohio. He graduated from Harvard University Medical School. While practicing medicine in Pittsburgh, he was instrumental in wiping out a cholera epidemic in that city. Dr. Delaney was interested in the American Colonization Society because he felt Africa would be a better place for Blacks. In post Civil War years, Dr. Delaney worked with the Freedmen's Bureau.

January 25, 1966-Constance Baker Motley became the first Black woman named to a federal judgeship. She was born in New Haven, Conn., of West Indian parents. Her B.A. degree is from New York University, and her LL.B. degree is from Columbia University Law School. While a law school student, Mrs. Motley worked with the NAACP Legal and Defense Educational Fund, Inc. In 1964, she was elected to the state senate becoming the only woman among fifty-eight senators and the first Black woman in the history of New York to sit in the upper chamber. In 1965, she became Manhattan Borough president, winning by a unanimous vote of the city council, thus becoming the first woman to win that office.
