"COMPLETE AWARENESS FOR COMPLETE COMMITMENT"

VOLUME XLXI NUMBER 4 NORTH CAROLINA AGRICULTURAL AND TECHNICAL STATE UNIVERSITY GREENSBORO NC SEPTEMBER 14, 1979 FRIDAY

By Richard B. Steele

At 9:35 a.m. Friday morning, approximately 40 "temporarily off-campus-male residents" gathered in the waiting room office of Dr. Jesse Marshall, vice chancellor of Student Affairs. The meeting concerned the eviction of these students (upperclassmen and freshmen) from the Oaks Motel on Summit Ave.

"We were notified last night (Thursday) that we would have to move by 12 noon tomorrow. We then called Dr. Marshall and told him of the situation at hand," said one of the roomless residents.

A&T provided temporary housing for male residents at the Oaks Motel. The motel arrangements were $1.25 more than the cost of campus housing, but this price was taken care of by A&T.

There were four to a room with T.V., air conditioning and carpet. On the other hands, there was no privacy, two beds, one desk, one closet and two drawers for the four students.

"We were given no notice until Thursday of eviction," said another student. An Amway Convention is meeting in Greensboro this weekend and the booking was done months in advance.

"Oaks (Motel) was temporary," said Marshall. "Within two weeks I said we would have some space available."

The students had been waiting patiently for Marshall in Harrison and returned to Murphy Hall to demand action not run around, because of the 12 noon deadline.

"They (Student Affairs Office) said that there were enough rooms and that they were waiting for other people to move out," said still another of the evictees.

These other people, according to Marshall, are the 35 to 40 spaces that are available because of bills being unpaid, unclaimed rooms, moving off campus and homesickness.

"There are some alternatives," said Marshall.

Those alternatives were the basement of Scott B in the team room used to house visiting athletes. The students flatly refused the basement for the following reasons: no studying space; no privacy, 40 beds in one room, side by side; conditions hot and unbearable; unsanitary and unhealthy water on the floor, pests, inadequate keys to lock room, and no storage space for clothes, and personal belongings.

Another alternative was housing three in a room in Scott Hall. This would require securing bunk beds and disrupting established roommates with an additional presence. This would have to be cleared with Dr. L. C. Dowdy, chancellor, who was not available for comment.

The students' first choice upon arriving to no-room space-available was the basement or nowhere. They refused. The second choice given was the Oaks Motel.

At the Oaks, they were allegedly promised transportation. A bus from the university made the one-way trip to campus the first day only. Ever since then students have had to find their own means or walk, missing meals and classes.

Oaks Motel refused to comment on the situation. Temporary arrangements have been made for the students to place all their belongings in a day-study room in Scott Hall. Students will have to provide their own transportation to move to the campus. Some (See Residents Page 5)

Robinson Replaces Stroud

By Florina G. Byrd

Dr. George Robinson has been named chairman of the Political Science Department. Robinson replaces Dr. Virgil Stroud who served as acting-chairman.

Robinson, a native of Buckingham County, Virginia, served as chairman of the Political Science Department at Lincoln University in Pennsylvania for five years.

As chairman of the Political Science Department here, Robinson stated that he will make up the schedule of courses to be taught by teachers in the Political Science Department. "I will teach two courses in Political Science each semester. I will also continue examining the legislative process of the United States and its impact on our legal system," he said.

Robinson expressed several major concerns of the department. "I would like extended student opportunities for graduate work, law school, and positions in state, local and federal employment at the intermediate legislative level."

When asked what changes he would like to see, Robinson stated, "The Political Science Department should be as strong as it possibly can be—academically, intellectually and in terms of output. We are planning a concerted effort toward increased publications—journals, articles, books, and magazines."

Educational and Agricultural Leaders

To Participate In Conference

More than 100 educational and agricultural leaders of the state are expected to participate in a conference on the use of systems concepts in agriculture at A&T State University Wednesday, September 19.

The conference will be sponsored by the School of Agriculture at A&T, the Agricultural Research Service at North Carolina State University and the United States Department of Agriculture.

"The idea behind this conference is that agriculture in a modern world really had to deal with complex problems with which we have not had to deal before," said Dr. Harvey J. Gold, director of the biomathematics program at North Carolina State. "We have just been studying agriculture in pieces."

"We have gotten agriculture yields that are miraculous, but there are new problems such as land shortages, energy shortages and restrictions on the kind of chemicals we can use. It is no longer enough to study one piece of the problem at a time. We in agriculture will have to employ systems concepts and computer simulations to solve these problems," added Gold.

The A&T conference will be coordinated by Dr. Will R.

Getz of the university's Department of Animal Science.

Consultants for the conference will be two outstanding agricultural leaders. They are Colin R. W. Spedding, editor of the "International Journal of Agricultural Systems," and a pioneer in the application of systems concepts in agriculture and agricultural research; and Earl O. Heady, director of the center for Agricultural and Rural Development at Iowa State University. He is an internationally recognized authority in food supply, agriculture, and in the use of (See Dr. Page 8)

Heritage House Displays Pictures

By Andrew McCorkle

When one first walks into the African Heritage House, he is immediately awed by two things: the colorful display of African artifacts, and more importantly, the unmistakable realization of cultural richness and pride that fill the atmosphere.

Despite the various textiles, sculptures and wood carvings that decorate the campus facility, Mattye Reed, director of the Heritage House, insist she has problems.

"There are $200,000 worth of art stuck in storage in

Mattye Reed
Heritage House

Washington," said Ms. Reed. Transporting donated material is a constant problem she has dealt with.

The Heritage House grossly needs help. The director often has to leave Greensboro to pick up art, while the Heritage House is left unattended closing its doors in the faces of visitors. The only assistance that Ms. Reed has is a temporary government funded worker.

"We can't accommodate the requests we get for showings," Ms. Reed pointed out. "We used to have a student on work study but he won a scholarship and wasn't able to work anymore."

"The clothes represent a special purpose in life and the community," Ms. Reed said, noting the bright African colors which aren't "just for decoration."

On September 29 in the Memorial Student Union, the Heritage House will feature an exhibit showing jewelry from different parts of Africa.

Special exhibits are also slated for October and January.

The showings will include religious art but, Ms. Reed is quick to point out, "the work is not necessarily of the Christian faith."

The Heritage House will also feature an exhibit at the Guilford County Fair. "They've asked us back year after year," Ms. Reed beamed.

AFT, Educators Rekindle Feud

FORT BRAGG, N.C. - The establishment of a chapter of the American Federation of Teachers in the Fort Bragg school system has rekindled a feud between the AFT and the North Carolina Association of Educators.

The AFT, the nation's second largest teacher's union and a member of the national AFT-CIO, will open the Fort Bragg chapter on September 20.

Stressing collective bargaining as a major issue, the AFT has established 16 chapters in the state during the last decade and has announced plans for six more. It has intruded upon the territory of the NCAE, long considered the lobby for most of the state's 55,000 teachers.

Virginia Ryan, director of the N. C. Federation of Teachers, a state unit of the AFT, would not elaborate on the membership totals. But many have estimated the AFT to have less than 10,000 members. The NCAE's membership is listed at 45,000.

The state attorney general's office has issued an opinion saying it is illegal for teachers to enter into collective salary negotiations, but the AFT hopes to reverse the ruling. The NCAE does not support collective bargaining.

Local officials have said that the emphasis on collective bargaining cleared the way for AFT to open a chapter in the Fort Bragg system since teachers there are under federal guidelines and are not bound by the rulings of the attorney general.

Executive Secretary Lloyd S. Isaacs said the NCAE has 194 members in the Fort Bragg system, which has a total of nearly 250 teachers.

By Richard Steele

Approximately five platinum albums ago a soulful, somewhat spiritualistic group got together and formed one of today's headliners in discos, radio stations and in the entertainment field. Known as the Mighty Elements, the Elements of the Universe, or more commonly Earth, Wind, and Fire (EWF) these men of musical majesty have come a mighty long way. In a short period of time on the Columbia label, this group performed with the likes of Ramsey Lewis and others. Currently they are doing a number with The Emotions entitled "Boogie Wonderland", a smash in the disco charts.

Their introduction included earlier tunes on their album, "Earth Wind and Fire", with songs such as "Help Somebody", "Love Is Life," and "Come On Children", remember?

Their album "Head To The Sky" woke up the music world with a prayer, "Keep Your Head to the Sky" a powerful tune, packed with harmony and high notes.

They mellowed in "That's the Way of the World" LP with the title cut. Others were "Shining Star", and "Yearning Learning".

Perhaps the Earth, Wind and Fire at its best was presented in a two-album production entitled "Gratitude". The numerous hit singles were the perfect gift for Christmas '75; "Sing a Song"; "Celebrate", "Sunshine," and "Sun Goddess." Also, new renditions of earlier songs with "Reasons" being the ballad.

The elements really 'got away' and into disco with "Spirit". The group took on a new look and an even more polished sound with "Getaway", "Saturday Nite", and "On Your Face". The ballads here were "EWF, Burning Bush and Spirit".

EWF got into the movie with Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Heart Club Band with a jumpy tune entitled "Got to Get You Into My Life." The album "Best of EWF-Volume I, carried this hit with another "September", but not far.

To take up that slack the master dipped more into their spiritualistic natures and produced "All-n-All" with "Serpentine Fire", "Fantasy", "I'll Write a Song For You", and "Love's Holiday". Presently this talented group is still making the world come alive during its World Tour and have made a positive statement in the current LP entitled "I Am". It sounds as though they will be resting for awhile. So, enjoy while you can. 'After the Love Is Gone' is the musicians attempt to 'Let Your Feelings Show'. It is written 'In the Stone' that 'You and I', 'Can't Let Go' and we will 'Wait' and find our 'Star'. So Aggies, 'Rock That!', and meet me in 'Boogie Wonderland'.

The masters of music, EWF, are currently taking the Greensboro Coliseum Complex on Friday, September 21, at 8 p.m. This concert is a part of the Bush Music Festival '79 and will not be appearing in concert in this area for some time. It will be a sellout, and very few choice seats are left. See our ad in this edition.

Other area events include the 1979 Guilford County Fair opening on the 14th. Gates open at 6 p.m.

Littman, Norrell Attend Camp

By Trudy Johnson

One hot day in July, John Littman and Roger Norrell Army ROTC cadets from North Carolina A & T State University, were crawling flat on their bellies under barbed wire. They looked at each other, wiped the sweat from their brows and crawled on.

The next day, they were enemies on different teams, practicing tactical field maneuvers.

They were attending the Army ROTC Advanced Camp at Fort Bragg, near Fayetteville, a required training period for all Army ROTC cadets in the ROTC Advanced Course. Captain William B. McMillan said, "Advanced Camp is putting theory into practice."

According to Captain McMillan, the training is designed to let cadets get the feel of actual Army life and, he added, "to give the opportunity to put into practice the things they have been studying in the classroom."

Advanced camp lasts six weeks and cadets receive pay for their training. The dates were June 7-July 19, for the summer of 1979.

In the same direction, A & T's ROTC program is working on establishing an organization for any interested non-ROTC students, the North Carolina A & T Adventure Club. Its purpose involves participation in some of the ROTC activities without any official military responsibility. It will give any active person another outlet without its official obligation. Captain McMillan and others have not decided upon the initial organization as an official campus grouping.

Another change in the program is that the Army & Air Force Drill Teams will be combined, (i.e. THE DRILL TEAM).

A new Public Relations Section is to be set up in the ROTC program. This way, communications about the program can be publicized more readily by the students.

With the approximately 300 students in Army ROTC, a trip is planned to Hanging Rock State Park next weekend. It is located about ten miles from Winston Salem. It is not a requirement to go on the trip--more like an extra-curricular activity.

If there are any interested students, Campbell Hall and the Bluford Library both have publications for your convenience. The Army Times newspaper--read by 75-90 percent of people on active duty, armed Forces Journal, International/ Defense Spokesman Since 1863, The Officer, Military Review, The Army Communicator.

Senior John Littman and Roger Norrell feel that the ROTC program is the most functional organization on campus. Captain McMillan said, "The Army ROTC is a familiarization /orientation program for selected students.

A business administration--marketing major, said, "The ROTC program is not just for those with the military frame of mind. It has a phase of different types of branches that correlate with business involvement in the civilian world. It builds men's and women's characters to be successful in today's world."

Littman, a biology major, said, "We in the ROTC program consider the organization most functional. It has a lot to offer. The ROTC program can be used as a stepping stone to anything in civilian life as well as in military life."

Placement Center Sponsors Annual Careers Day

The office of Career Planning and Placement at A&T State University will sponsor its annual Careers Conference on the campus Sept. 25-26.

According to Leon Warren, acting director of the office, more than 80 corporations, business firms and governmental agencies will participate in the conference.

"The purpose of this conference is to inform our young people about the many opportunities available to them beyond college," said Warren. "We also emphasize that they must be properly trained."

The visiting consultants will be honored at a reception in the Cosmos I Club on Monday, Sept. 24, at 6 p.m. The visitors will conduct informal seminars for the students on Tuesday, Sept. 25, from 9 a.m. to 12:15 p.m. in Barnes Hall. The careers conference banquet will be held at Cosmos II on Tuesday at 6:30 p.m. The speaker will be Dr. Lacy Caple, chairman of the A&T Board of Trustees.

Wednesday's program will feature exhibits and displays in Moore Gym.

Committee To Judge On Scholarship

Look And See

Several students on campus parked their cars in the designated parking areas, only to return and find out that their cars had been towed away. But the mysterious thing about the incident is the cars had stickers.

The sticker for the 79-80 school year appears to be about 3/4 inch by 1/4 inch in size; and, unless one is looking for it, it requires microscopic lenses. One might even need the aid of eye glasses in order to see the stickers. In addition to the stickers' being small, one would have to gaze into the lower right hand corner of the car window in order to see where the stickers are placed.

One student, whose car had been towed, inquired as to why A&T would tow a car that had a sticker. All they could reply was that they were sorry, but the $25 towing charge still had to be paid.

Now, whoever is responsible for riding around checking cars and is tow happy, along with having itchy ticket fingers, he could at least "look" to see if the car has a sticker.

"I'm sorry" does not get the owner's car back, nor does it pay the $25 for a careless mistake. Towing cars is nothing to play with; maybe whoever is responsible for writing tickets has nothing to do but to go around writing tickets all day. But, if this is the case, he could at least take the time to "look" to see if they have purchased a sticker.

Maybe the excuse was a "C" in a "B" space, but the incidents occurred behind educational buildings, which are "C" parking areas. And university policy is "A's" can park in all areas, "B's" can park in "B" and "C", and "C" can only park in "C". The "B" areas are behind the dormitories, and this university consists of mostly "A" and "C" parking areas.

Since, for some reason A&T decided to decrease the size of car stickers, the least security could do is to get out and "look" to see if the car has a sticker.

Tumbling Along The Wayside

By Larry Jenkins

If it isn't one thing, it's another! Today, approximately 40 male temporary off-campus students, residing at the Oaks Motel, had to vacate the premises in order to allow the arrival of Amway conventioners.

The male students resided at the motel because of unavailable dormitory spaces on campus. It was believed that this would be on only a temporary basis, until those students who, for some reason or other, were to relinquish their rooms on campus. However, since action on this process seemed to be delayed by the administration, the male residents continued to reside at the motel.

The students surprisingly were told Thursday night that their rooms must be vacated by 12 noon today. No earlier notice was given to these students, none by the hotel managers and, most importantly, none by the administration.

Problems, such as these, arise from a lack of communication. In this particular instance, it can be said that the laxity was on the part of the administration. The administration should had been knowledgeable about this forth-coming situation and should made plans to alleviate the problems that are now present.

So, where will the male students be placed now? Surely, they are tired of being bounced around like a basketball! Will the administration inconvenience other students by placing these "homeless students" in rooms already occupied by students? This definitely would cause double-trouble.

Young Believes In His People

By Jacqueline D. Pender

In the month of August, a very distinguished and powerful young man resigned from a very influential office. This man was Andrew Young, former Ambassador to the United Nations.

This columnist congratulates Young on his "chance encounter" with the PLO. This definitely shows that Young had to be one out of a handful trying to get the job done regardless of the risk.

In Young's unauthorized conversation with the PLO, he knew, if peace is ever to be achieved in Israel, the PLO must participate in all negotiations.

Before Young's resignation, not too many people knew of the PLO. But, since Young's resignation, many are getting acquainted with PLO because of our dependency on other foreign countries for oil.

Even though Young's former position has been filled, many people will always remember him as a truly great Black American and one of the world's greatest statesmen of this century.

Young is a Black warrior who fights for equality, justice and peace for all mankind.

Benz.

Since 1886, Mercedes-Benz has been developing and setting the trend for autos like no other, past or present, car maker. In support of this fact is the Mercedes-Benz uncanny resale value which is often the ultimate test of a luxury item such as the refined Mercedes-Benz.

The inventor, Daim-Benz, had this very idea in mind when he introduced the diesel-powered car to America in 1958.

The history of all diesel-powered automobiles share the same technical principles--those laid down by inventor Rudolf Diesel almost a century ago. The diesel engines are the simplest of all engines to drive for economy. The accelerator pedal is connected directly to the fuel pump; consequently, no carburetor, spark plugs, distributor, nor points are needed in the car.

Diesel engines known for their "diesel lag" (poor starts while idling), ended when M-B introduced the Turbo-charged Diesel engine that boosted maximum power by 45 percent and maximum torque (turning force) by a lusty 43 percent.

The ever present Mercedes three-pointed stars mean: the philosophical commitment to high-priced consistency. This philosophy puts engineering ahead of petty economies and precludes the mass production of inexpensive cars. It goes without saying that the "prestige" of having a Mercedes-Benz (new) will most often be in the range of $20,000 to $40,000 depending on the make and year of the car.

After things have changed and come to pass, the uncomparable Mercedes-Benz continues to defeat the ultimate test: the resale value.

Put most simply, the fact is Mercedes-Benz, and only Mercedes-Benz, has the best resale value of any make of car sold in America--or anywhere!

N.C. A&T ventures to S.C. State Saturday, in what has been, the "battle of the dogs." A&T has not defeated State since 1976 when the Aggies came from behind in the fourth quarter to win 15-14. Since then, A&T has been outscored 86-7 in the last two State wins.

Last year in War Memorial Stadium, A&T held the number-one nationally ranked Bulldogs scoreless for 38 minutes. From then on the crowd of over 20,000 watched helplessly as the State offense overpowered a tired Aggie defense for 34 points to win 34-7.

But this is an improved Aggie team with two veteran QB's, William Watson and Roland Meyers. It remains to be seen which one Coach McKinley will start, but one must figure Watson will get a chance to prove his last game was no fluke.

I feel the Aggies can win with either QB. Meyers is a versatile QB who runs well and is best suited for the veer. Watson is slower, but has a better arm; and, if given time, he can give the opposing team's secondary fits. But, if not given time, Watson would have a more difficult time escaping danger from linemen than Meyers.

The key to this game is the ball control. The team that gives its defense the most rest will win, so it's up to Davis and company to open some holes for Joyner and Sutton. If A&T keeps its defense on the field for lengthy periods, it'll only spell trouble for the Aggie squad.

Offensively, the Aggies may run into trouble. Eight defensive starters are returning for State, including three starting linebackers, two second-team all-conference linemen, and one all-MEAC performer in the secondary. So the Aggies can expect about the same defensive effort from the Bulldogs as last year.

Defensively, A&T has another threat to watch out for in tailback Chris Ragland. Ragland gained over 180 yards against Delaware St. last week, and everyone knows he'll be fired up for the Aggies.

Unfortunately, Ragland isn't State's only weapon. QB Nate Rivers is hurt but he vowed to be ready for A&T. Rivers' absence from the lineup would take some pressure off the Aggie defense; but, with the explosive Rivers in State's lineup, A&T's defense can relax for one second.

Prediction time is here again. Last week I went for the upset and I was correct. This week we'll really see how good the Aggies are. If the game were played in Greensboro, I'd go with the Aggies. S.C. State is practically invincible at home and they should win.

S.C. State Under New Coach

By Raymond Moody

S.C. State will be under the leadership of Bill Davis, who was an assistant for the Bulldogs for six years, under ex-coach Willie Jefferies.

Davis has the material to continue S.C. State's winning tradition, including 35 lettermen, 15 of them starters, returning from an 8-2-1 nationally ranked team.

Nate Rivers, first team All-conference MEAC offensive player of the year last year, returns as the Bulldogs' starting quarterback. Rivers led a rushing attack which ranked fifth among NCAA Division 1-AA leaders. He gained 1114 yards and scored 11 touchdowns and one extra point for State. Explosive Chris Ragland [5-8, 185] will be State's primary rusher. Ragland gained 550 yards on 105 carries and scored eight touchdowns last year. Ragland's running mate at fullback will be Felder, known basically for his blocking ability.

S.C. State is expected to pass more this year, so Rivers will be throwing to three capable receivers in juniors Marion Brown, Charlie Brown, and senior tightend Mickey Pringle.

State's offensive line, probably the largest A&T will run across this season, will be led by tackles Albert Lester [6-3, 240], Leroy Robinson [6-4, 255], guards Edwin Bailey [6-5, 255] and Jeff Colbert [6-2, 230]. The center will be Larry Warren (6-2, 240).

Defensively, S.C. State was the strongest defensive team in Division 1-AA last year. Ranked number one in rushing defense, the Bulldogs gave up an average of 1.5 yards per carry. Defensive tackle Phil Murphy (6-5, 270) and end Raleigh Jackson (6-2, 220), both second team All-MEAC last year, pace the defensive line. Lending support on the line also will be end Terry Turner and John Alford (6-2, 225) and (6-2, 245), respectively.

Three linebackers return, including pre-season All-MEAC pick Ervin Parker (6-4, 241). Parker is a strong and very quick linebacker, who recorded 80 tackles and six quarterback sacks last season. Ronnie Burton [6-2-220] and Angelo King [6-2, 215] lend support to Parker.

If there's a weak link in State's defense, it is in the secondary. Ranked third in passing defense in the MEAC, State is led by second team All-MEAC Dexter Clinkscale, William Judson, Roy Keller, and Thomas Tutson. Game time has been set for 7:30 in Bulldog stadium.

Cheering Team Consists of Eight Ladies and Three Men

by Aubrey Eatmon

The 1979-80 cheerleader squad at A&T is new, experienced, and talented. This year's team consists of eight young ladies and three young men.

The squad has practice sessions every day and the members are instructed every Thursday by Victor Karabin, a gymnastics instructor at A&T.

Cheerleaders returning from last year are senior co-captain Cheryl Ward from Trenton, New Jersey; senior co-captain, Glenda Alexander from Evansville, Indiana; Judy Westmorland, and Sharon Watkins, juniors from Greensboro; Alyssa Debnam, a sophomore from Raleigh; and Marcus Dukes, a graduate student from Red Springs.

Morehead Honored at Coliseum Complex

David W. Morehead, who retired in late 1978 after nine years as a member of the War Memorial Commission, the final two as Vice-Chairman of that body, was honored recently by both his former associates and the present members of the War Memorial Commission at a recent meeting of that body at the Coliseum Complex.

Morehead received a commemorative plaque, and a large framed replica of the official War Memorial Commission minutes which offered a tribute to his almost one decade of "untiring and selfless service" both to the Complex itself as well as the City of Greensboro.

Morehead is not a stranger to public service, having been a former Chairman of the Greensboro Public Utilities Commission, a member of the Mayor's Committee on Civic Improvements, and has served on the A&T State University Board of Trustees for the past 14 years.

A native of Greensboro, he attended J.C. Price and Dudley High School, and took his B.S. in Sociology at then A&T College now known as A&T State University.

Married to another Greensboro native Ophelia Cole, the Moreheads have three children--David Jerome, Mrs. Marion Elizabeth Jeter, and Fay Yvonne.

Originally joining Hayes Taylor YMCA as its Youth Director for three years, Morehead is best known for having been that facility's Executive Director for over 23 years, leaving in 1971 to join the United States government where he is now the Neighborhood and Consumer Affairs Officer in the Department of Housing and Urban Development here in Greensboro.

A Vice-Chairman of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, Morehead has received a citation from that conference for Brotherhood and was honored by the Greensboro Chamber of Commerce with the prestigious Nat Greene Award in 1968.

His tenure on the War Memorial Commission encompassed the exciting but, as he himself is willing to say, "also very spectacular and sometimes exhausting, but always enjoyable" development and expansion of the current Coliseum property.

That expansion, which began in late 1968 and was finally completed in early 1971, included both the expanded seating in the main structure from its previous 9,600 to its current nearly 17,000, the expansion of the existing parking lot area and the construction of a 70,000-square-foot Exhibition Hall on the property.

Morehead also served on the Selection Committee for the current manager of the facility James F. Oshust, who succeeded the Coliseum's first Managing Director Robert Kent who left Greensboro for a similar position in Atlanta, Georgia, in late 1969.

In presenting him with the commemorative plaque and framed tribute, the War Memorial Commission Chairman Sidney Stern said of Morehead, "He provided the War Memorial Commission during the hectic period of expansion a quiet strength and consistent voice of practicality without ever losing sight of the exciting potential encompassed in the overall expansion plan."

During his nine-year tenure, Morehead served on the Commission with now-deceased members Orton Boren and William York, and current lifetime honorary members Charles T. Hagan, Jr., and W.H. Sullivan, Jr., whose father W.H. Sullivan, Sr., former mayor of Greensboro, was the first Chairman of the War Memorial Fund Commission, the predecessor to the modern-day Coliseum advisory board.

Dr. Webb To Participate In Conference system models for decision making and for planning of agricultural development.

Also participating in the conference will be Dr. Burleigh Webb, dean of the School of Agriculture at A&T.

The meeting will get underway at 12 noon in the F.A. Williams student dining center at A&T. After the introductory remarks by Webb, Heady will speak on "Small Farm Systems" and Spedding will speak on "Education and a Systems Approach to Agriculture."

"One of the goals of this symposium is that of promoting communication among scientists in different disciplines," said Getz. "We must begin attacking problems from a broader perspective."

He said the conference will be of interest to persons in economics, transportation, technology, biology as well as agriculture.

Persons interested in attending the conference are asked to contact Gold at North Carolina State and Getz in Carver Hall at A&T.
