230 Students Attend 4th Student Body Meeting

By Sheila A. Williams

"We live in a fictitious environment," Kevin Buncum stated; "an all Black community doesn't exist; it's not for real." The 230 students that attended the SGA meeting in Bluford Auditorium on Thursday night left with seemingly positive attitudes.

During the meeting, the student body listed several grievances such as the allotment of the students' money, keys to the dormitories for women, security for the men on campus, the food in the cafeteria, the landscaping problem on campus especially around the Student Union plaza near the fountain, dormitory problems, fire extinguishers, roaches, and cleaning people on the weekends. There was also the concern of what role the security officer plays on campus, destruction of property on campus, doing something about the locks on the doors of Scott Hall because some residents still have no keys. Also, because of the recent incident that occurred on September 28, that did not involve A&T students, several students were also concerned about more security during social functions on campus.

"We must love ourselves," Kevin stated. "I am willing to help; let me know if I'm half-stepping. I took this position, but we must pull together as one." He also continued that the students must fight for their education. "We must make academics our problem."

"I ask for a boycott, but nobody responds. I can't get your full support. When we were boycotting the cafeteria back in '76," stated Dwight Womack, a student at A&T, "the students would still go into the cafeteria and eat; then they came out and complained about the food. This is not the way to attack the system. We must pull together," he continued, "for no one will save us for us, but us."

It was felt that the support of the student body was needed, not just the effort of one or two individuals. Buncum said that the students must get involved. "Know the problem first; know exactly where you are going. The student body must plan; for, if you're going to protest, do it all the way."

There will be a NOBUCS (National Organization of Black Universities and College Students) rally in Washington, D.C. on December 8 and 9.

All students are urged to sign-up for support. Buncum said that buses would be arranged for transportation.

Carter Wins Men's Council Pageant

By Larry Jenkins and Florina Byrd

Miss Wesley Anne Carter, a freshman, sociology major, was selected as Miss Men's Council 1979-80, yesterday at its annual ball.

"I'm very proud that I won, and I will carry my title with confidence, not showing conceitedness," said the Fayetteville native.

The pageant was held in the Student Union Ballroom. The scenery for the pageant consisted of an array of tree plants and other decorative floral designs. Florina Byrd, senior, mass communications major, was mistress of ceremony for the gala affair.

The contestants introduced themselves to the audience, participating in the promtu discussion and in an question and answer period. When asked the question, "Why is it necessary for a leader to understand people," Miss Carter stated the importance of cohesiveness between a leader and his followers. The winner said that she entered the pageant with the attitude, "God let me win; I've been a good girl."

Other contestants in the pageant were Robin Striggles, Wanda Packer, Lisa Whitaker, Vicki K. Brown, Lauretta Murchison, Gloria Johnson, second runner up, and, Diana George, first runner up.

The new Miss Men's Council would like to change the negative attitudes that some males have towards females. She seeks to set an example that there are 'ladies' on campus. When asked why she wanted to come to A&T, Miss Carter stated that "I wanted to come to a university where I would be judged by my quality and not my color." The new queen was presented with a bouquet of flowers by Sabrina Hunter, Miss Men's Council 1978-79.

Judges were Larry L. Jenkins, Dr. Robert Wilson, Clyde Harris, Leonard McCraw, Daryl Drew, Frankie Casterlow, Bonnie Spears, Mickey Walters, and Kenneth Brown. Contestants were judged in three categories: poise, personality, and response to questions.

Entertainment was by Dukin Butler, who played a medley of the latest songs on the piano Kenny Benton,

The 1979-80 Lyceum series began Tuesday night, October 2, with a concert featuring Jimmy Owens Plus, a jazz quartet from New York City. Owens has performed with many great jazz innovators, including Lionel Hampton, Dizzy Gillespie, and the late Charles Mingus, to name only a few.

Jimmy Owens Plus performed standard jazz tunes as well as original compositions. "Autumn Leaves" opened the concert, featuring the lush melodies and intricate runs of Owen's fluegelhorn.

Landscape Architecture

Society Needs Funds To Attend Conference

By Michael C. Westry

The Student Society of Landscape Architecture (SSLA), needs $600.00 for its 23 members to attend the 79th Annual Conference Meeting of Architects and Students in New Orleans on October 31-November 3.

Extracurricular activities such as cookouts, field trips, and dances will be provided to raise the funds. The cookout proposed for September 25 at Carver Hall was postponed because of rain. No later date has been set.

George Watkins, president, said that the club (SSLA) is also applying for the new National Student Affiliate Program of the American Society of Landscape Architects (ASLA).

"The ASLA provides services, programs, and activities which increase success of the individual landscape architect students and make the highest contribution to our society," said Watkins. The ASLA is a non-profit organization.

John Wright, vice-president, said, "We're the first graduating class of Landscape Architecture majors and we want our presence known. We want to better ourselves and make things much better for future students in Landscape Architecture at A & T. That's why we're applying for the student affiliation program on our own initiative, and not through the department."

The National Student Affiliate program has been established to provide students with access to all ASLA products and services. It provides an opportunity to communicate directly with practicing landscape architecture professionals. This new program will enable students to participate in the profession while still in school.

ROTC Gets Blossom Parade Invitation

By Thomas E. Harris

The A&T State University ROTC Drill Team has received an invitation to participate in the 1980 National Cherry Blossom Festival Parade. This event, which is of national significance, is sponsored by the Downtown Jaycees of the District of Columbia. The festival is scheduled to begin April 12 in Washington, D.C.

The Jaycees are hopeful of national television coverage of this annual event.

The A&T drill team received its invitation to participate August 24. They are presently composed of about forty students mostly from Air Force and Army ROTC. They are practicing 2-3 hours daily in preparation for spring competition.

A&T has not participated in this festival since 1963 when it placed third in national drill competition. One year earlier (1962), A&T placed fourth in that same competition.

Since that time, this festival has blossomed into a more gala event attracting spectators and some of the finest marching units of national and international fame and prestige. An extensive media campaign is conducted to publicize the occasion.

A&T is one of about four groups that were invited from North Carolina.

Preceding the banquet at 6 p.m., a reception will be held for deceased lettermen's wives and relatives, sponsors, lettermen, and guests of the university. The Village Green is located at 310 West Meadowview Drive in Greensboro, N.C. For your information, a press conference will be held on Friday, October 12 at 1 p.m. in the Village Green.

This year, a special invitation is being extended to all lettermen who are list on a roster compiled by the alumni office to attend this prestigious event. A donation of $12.50 is asked from each person. Funds derived from this endeavor will be used to support the NCA&T State University Student Scholarship Program.

Other selections included "Impressions of a Song," "City Blues," "All the Things You Are," "Caravan," "Come Sunday," and "3,4,5,6." "3,4,5,6" is an Owens' composition designed to disband the theory that jazz is written only in four/four time. This composition featured examples of three/four, four/four, five/four, and six/four time.

Owens, a native New Yorker, is a renowned trumpeter, composer, arranger, educator, lecturer and music education consultant. He received his Master of Education degree from the University of Massachusetts.

Since 1969, Owens has led his own ensemble, performing across the country and in numerous international festivals. Albums by Owens include "Heading Home," "Jimmy Owens," "No Escaping It," and "You Had Better Listen."

Johnson has been a part of various workshop and educational programs in Pittsburgh and was a member of the ensemble, Walt Harper's jazz club, "The Attic." Johnson has performed with Ramsey Lewis, Lou Donaldson and recorded with Jack McDuff. Johnson was also a member of jazz saxophonist Nathan Davis' ensemble.

Bassist Jerry Jemmott, a native New Yorker, began studying music at the age of three on the piano. After a formal music education at the Manhattan School of Music, he toured for twelve years with various major African-American musicians. Jemmott was featured on his composition, "City Blues."

Percussionist Billy Hart was born in Washington, D.C. His formal study was on-the-job training as a member of bands led by Wes Montgomery, Herbie Hancock, McCoy Tyner, Jimmy Smith, Stan Getz, and Eddie Harris. Hart has recorded as a sideman to the above-mentioned artists, and is the leader on the A&M/Horizon recording, Enhance.

No More Apathy?

It was overwhelming to hear that approximately 230 students attended the SGA meeting held on last Thursday night. Everyone appeared to be roused into a joint effort to help save the Black college campus. One student put it frankly that "if it is to be, it's up to me."

The students are definitely tired of putting their lives into the hands of the administration. They are preparing to buckle down and work under unity as their cause.

Never before has this writer seen the enthusiasm or willingness to work, and students preparing themselves to face the challenge of "beating the system."

But there is one thing that one must realize: you cannot boycott any situation without a strategy or a plan. Organization is the key word when handling delicate problems which require maneuvering.

The SGA is planning a trip to D.C. to meet with NOBUCS which is an organization to help save Black institutions but without help and support, it cannot be done.

Those of you who do not attend organizational meetings leave your designated fate in the hands of others

It's about time that all of us do our parts in strengthening our campus. It cannot be done by sitting around talking; it takes physical manpower, for there is no battle without ammunition.

Cast A Vote of 'Yes'

By Jacqueline D. Pender

ATTENTION!! ATTENTION!!

All registered voters of Greensboro: On October 9, vote "yes" for the new convention center to be located in the downtown area.

A convention center is really needed for this area because of the mass of conventions held in this city. This has been shown over the years with the overcrowdedness of hotels and motels when various conventions are held here.

Without the convention center, Greensboro's new hotels will be dispersed and this area would have missed a big opportunity to reestablish its central business core.

Greensboro is the "only" major city in the state without such a center.

Many of you may not want this center because of fear of tax increase.

Dick Gray, a Greensboro attorney, notes in the Greensboro Record,

"because of our solid financial position, the center can be built without causing a tax increase. The timing of the project makes this possible. Old debts are about to be retired. Funds now repaying these loans will be resigned to cover the debt service on the convention center."

The convention center will include a First-Citizens Office Building and a Convention Center Hotel.

Downtown Greensboro can really be prosperous with this center. The center will attract new people to the area. It can offer lodging for visitors; it can provide them dining and entertainment.

Also the center will be able to accommodate our own citizens.

There will be no convention center if the citizens of Greensboro don't vote "yes" on the matter. City officials are doing their duty; everything else lies in the hands of the voters.

If you really want to see business in the downtown area boosted, vote "yes."

You got liquor-by-the-drink, so why not cast a vote of "yes" for a convention center.

Courage: Stepping Into The Real World

By Larry Jenkins

Courage: Stepping Into The Real World, the 1979-80 Homecoming theme, is one that every student on campus should be able to identify with.

Webster defines courage as "the quality of being fearless or brave; valor; pluck." Although many students may have some fears about eventually being a part of society, entering into the world of work, one must realize that everything must change. The timid, naive student that entered A&T one, two, three, or four years ago, can not enter into a new environment with such characteristics. During the time that one enters college and walks across the stage to receive his or her selected degree, attitudes must have been changed.

College is just one of many stages in students' lives. If used effectively, it can prepare students to attain courage and confidence in oneself. If not used effectively, one will not be able to step into the real world. Students will be stepping into a world with many preconceptions that are not real, thus, prolonging their possible contributing to society.

To become an effective competitor, one must know the "means" of doing certain things. Having the ability to communicate, work with people, and understand their needs will make one a very dominant force in the real world.

A&T is no fantasy island. It is a small portion of what students should expect in taking that "step." If students can not contend with the ways, attitudes, and feelings of their peers, then he or she is not preparing himself/herself to possess that quality which will enable him/her to be brave and confident business persons displaying that Aggie pride that reveals to others-"Yes, A&T has properly and effectively prepared me to be a vital force in the real world."

Abraham Lincoln was clean-shaven until his 51st year when an 11-year-old girl told him that he would look a great deal better with whiskers because his face was so thin.

Student Expresses Need For Concern

Editor of The Register:

After attending the S.G.A. Student Body meeting Tuesday in Bluford Library, I find it necessary to bring a very important concern out into the open. I hope my fellow Aggies will not take it lightly.

I'd like to expound on a negative statement which was made about the general student body by certain S.G.A. officials. It was stated that the students at A&T just don't care. The "so called" entertainment director used the analogy of how easy it is to get students to discos in Moore Gym and how hard it was to get them to come out to the S.G.A. meetings. Well Mr. Entertainment I have a few analogies for you. Why was it that the elected officials could find ways to get the student body to care during the election period last year but cannot do so this fall? Why was it so much easier a task to reach students then than it is now? What happened to a certain campaign promise of consciousness? The analogy to be made here is that most of the students here at A&T are quite used to hearing one thing as fact and seeing another.

The S.G.A. is a perfect analogy; for they seem to be preaching one doctrine and practicing another. Furthermore Mr. Entertainment, I would advise you to produce some more evidence that you care, because what you have done thus far is a far cry from perfection. Maybe you better try to concentrate a little more on your particular field of 'speciality' in the S.G.A.

I really don't want to cause any disturbances among the student body, but I think we had better get a little more involved and find out exactly what's going on in the S.G.A. As the treasurer campaigned last year, "we need to know how our money is spent!" After all, every penny of the S.G.A.'s budget comes out of our tuition. I think we should have a major input as well as a good understanding of exactly how our money is being used. Like president Kevin Buncum said, "No one will save us for us, but us!" Let's save us.

Edward Steele

incredible speed. Like an epidemic, forced desegregation of African-American schools is running rampant through our educational community. This malicious disease is eating away at the educational foundation of our community and causing the demise of African-American colleges and universities.

As students on Black college campuses, we can no longer accept this threat to our educational future. We must take up our own defense and begin a vigilant struggle to protect our institutions.

The National Organization of Black University and College Students (NOBUCS) Board of Directors held an urgent meeting at North Carolina A&T on Labor Day weekend. At that meeting, the board called for a national conference of African-American students on Black college campuses. This conference is designed to educate, organize and develop strategies for the liberation of African-American college and university students.

The NOBUCS conference is scheduled for November 8-11, at Howard University in Washington, D.C. The conference will be used as an amplifier to pronounce to the world that African-American students are ready to accept the challenge of fighting for Black college survival.

This work-oriented conference will give birth to a short- and long-range survival strategy that can be used by our organization to respond to the crisis facing African-American colleges.

Tony Brown, a nationally known journalist, recently commented that "NOBUCS is one of the few groups in the country who has enough nerve to say, We Want To Keep Our Black Colleges."

NOBUCS, in order to escalate the struggle of African-American schools, must have your student body's active participation. After all, if we don't fight to save our schools, who will?

We would like to make one final request. When you make preparations to attend the conference, please include an underclass student in your delegation. This would substantially enhance the transition for next year (at least three delegates are requested).

We are encouraging student government leaders, campus editors, campus queens and major campus organizations to attend the conference.

In unity and prayer,
Garland Hunt
NOBUCS Board of Directors,

NEA To Give Support In Presidential Election

The president of the National Education Association announced September 28 that the 1.8 million-member organization is "proud" to give its enthusiastic support to President Carter in the 1980 presidential primaries.

"President Carter's performance on education and many other complex domestic and foreign issues is commendable," declared Willard H. McGuire. "The President deserves the wholehearted support of teachers and other citizens," added McGuire, who acceded to the NEA presidency on September 1.

The action was approved by the NEA Board of Directors meeting here September 28-30 on a recommendation of the association's Political Action Council (NEA-PAC). The council includes representatives from each of the 50 states, the District of Columbia, and NEA's governance and caucuses.

The Board's support of Carter means that the Association's political action resources, both money and volunteer assistance, can be utilized in the primaries. The Board's action, however, has to be approved in each of the primary states by the appropriate NEA state affiliate body.

Further, NEA and its affiliates will assist teachers to run as delegates in support of Carter in the primary states. In 1976, some 265 NEA teachers served as delegates or alternates to the Democratic National Convention, the largest block from any single organization.

The NEA noted that formal endorsement of an incumbent president--in this case Carter--or a presidential candidate other than the incumbent president, requires approval by 58 percent of the association's representative assembly. The assembly, which includes 9,000 delegates, is NEA's policy-making body.

McGuire described President Carter as a "compassionate man of great integrity," who has demonstrated courage in facing up to many complicated--and politically unpopular--problems, nationally and abroad.

McGuire cited President Carter's record as being impressive on several of NEA's major legislative priorities, which include both domestic and foreign affairs.

"We are particularly gratified by President Carter's leadership in pursuit of the Cabinet-level Department of Education approved by Congress yesterday," said McGuire. "The President displayed extraordinary vigor."

Education funding under the Carter Administration, asserted McGuire, has been the greatest of any single administration in history.

"The Administration has given education funding a significantly high priority in spite of an adverse economic climate," said the NEA president.

On the issue of tuition tax credits, the Carter Administration was "outstanding" in helping NEA and its allies block the legislation in Congress. The Administration demonstrated its "commitment, energy and creativity on this crucial issue," explained McGuire.

The Association gives the Carter Administration high marks in the handling of foreign affairs.

"Consonant with NEA's position on equity and peace in international relationships, we must note the extraordinary performance of the Administration in regard to the Panama Canal Treaty, detente in the Middle East, and SALT, all of which eluded earlier administrations," said McGuire. "We also note with pleasure increased sensitivity in foreign policy as it related to Southern Africa, as well as uprisings in Barbados, Nicaragua, and Iran."

The Carter Administration was also praised for its vigorous support of the Equal Rights Amendment and for its general support of NEA's legislative, litigative, and administrative work in the areas of desegregation and affirmative action.

"The President's personal commitment to human dignity, particularly in foreign relations, is well established," said McGuire.

At least 35 presidential primaries--a record--are scheduled in 1980 and President Carter is expected to enter all of them. The primaries by state: Alabama, Arkansas, California, Connecticut, District of Columbia, Florida, Georgia, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Montana, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New Mexico, Nevada, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Puerto Rico, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Vermont, West Virginia and Wisconsin.

Go ahead and be cynical. But listen.

The facts are not just that we have more bona fide opportunities for new graduates than ever. The clincher is that all of these entry level openings are enthusiastically endorsed by our technical managers and operations directors.

That's right, you shouldn't take that for granted, at any company. But what this positive attitude at CSC means is that it's not likely you'll come on board only to find yourself on the wrong side of a professional "generation gap." The chances are outstanding that you'll quickly find yourself working with (as well as for) nationally preeminent individuals in their fields who are eager to help you make the right decisions, without being oppressive about it!

The motivation behind this attitude is worth knowing. Because the expansion curve here has been so steep, more top posts have been created. Now most of these have been filled by the mid-level staffers already on board who demonstrated their upward mobility. This in turn created a whole new array of mid-level openings, most of which are being filled by our junior people on the rise.

Room at the bottom has never looked so good.

— because it's been created by more room at the top.

All of which creates a pretty vigorous "career suction" at the entry level.

And although you may already know that CSC corporate-wide is one of the largest information sciences companies in the world, you'll want to learn more about the Systems Division's role creating some of the world's largest computer-based communication systems, command/control/communication systems, satellite information systems, advanced energy management and control systems, and turnkey computer-based systems of high sophistication that will help people and governments everywhere.

If your degree is in EE, Computer Science, or their equivalent, we'd like to introduce you to people very much like yourself who have helped make CSC the industry leader in software and computer-based systems.

We couldn't have gotten there without them... and we can't expect to stay there without you!

We'll be interviewing on campus Thursday, October 18

Coach Jim McKinley's Aggies will be searching for win number three this weekend when they travel to Norfolk to face the undefeated, but twice tied, Norfolk State Spartans.

Norfolk, in Winston-Salem last week, rallied from a 21-0 deficit to tie the Rams 21-21.

In the game, the Spartans' second string quarterback, Herbert Hodge, ran for two touchdowns and passed 17 yards for another, leading the Spartans' exciting comeback.

A&T is in for a battle Saturday. The Spartans supposedly have the best defense among all small colleges. If that's the case, the Aggies will encounter many problems, trying to move the ball.

Maybe Coach McKinley can get the offense moving. another offensive production like last week's won't be enough to defeat Norfolk. Norfolk won't make the inexperienced mistakes which plagued J.C. Smith.

Nevertheless, the Aggies must prove themselves as a Black college football power. We've had opportunities, but we haven't been able to win the big games.

A good offensive production was important for the Aggie offense last week. A&T needed a confidence-booster because their remaining games are against teams they must defeat in order to achieve satisfaction this season. The longer the offense sputters, the less confident the players may become. Let's go offense.

Norfolk State's statistics are impressive, but one must note the quality of opponents Norfolk has faced. You can't compare the teams A&T has met with Norfolk's competition. Compare the opponents both teams faced and the Aggies come out ahead with a 14-7 victory over WSSU compared to Norfolk's 21-21 tie.

Volleyball is rolling around 'Aggieland.' After A&T's win over Shaw and WSSU, the Aggies suffered a disappointing loss to the Belles of Bennett College in three consecutive matches. The Belles' victory was quite emotional because they had twice as many supporters than the Aggies at the game, which was played in Moore Gym. Come on, students, let's support the Aggiettes.

William Sheffield's intramural program is in full swing. Son-of-Sam, four year champions in football, seems to be the team to beat. But right over their shoulders stand the Kappas whose organization is unusually good for an intramural football team. Watch out, Son-of-Sam.

Getting back to A&T's battle with the Spartans, it will be a close game. It's homecoming for Norfolk so you know they'll be fired up. A&T's injury report is improving with Roland Meyers back to full strength and Charlie Sutton returning, eager, and ready to go. Look for Coach McKinley to utilize Meyers' quickness this week by running more options. The Aggies will be 3-2 after Saturday's victory.

Hornets Get First Victory

The Delaware State Hornets and new head coach Charles Henderson got their first taste of victory for 1979 by a 19-13 score over the University of Maryland-Eastern Shore in a football game played Saturday at Princess Anne's Hawk Stadium. It was UMES's fourth straight loss after winning its first. In other games that day, Morgan State downed North Carolina Central 20-6, North Carolina A&T beat J. C. Smith 23-7, Florida A&M nipped Howard 21-13, and South Carolina State suffered its first defeat this year as Alcorn won 20-9.

Baron Harmon led the Hornets to a touchdown on the first possession when he eventually scored on a two-yard run. In the initial quarter alone, the junior runningback gained 82 yards on seven carries, but he was injured and did not return to the game. DelSt. scored again in the second stanza with a one-yard run by James Smith, and took a 13-0 advantage at the half. The teams struggled through a scoreless third quarter, but UMES struck early in the fourth, tying the game. Reginald Ennis scored on a three-yard scamper, and 4½ minutes later at the 10:30 mark, Adolphus Meachum ripped off a 59-yarder. DelSt. got its game-winner only two minutes afterwards when Kelly Williams drove into the endzone from the two-yard line.

In a contest of turnovers and miscues, Morgan took advantage of more opportunities and whipped NCCU on its home field. Both squads had an excuse because Durham was showered all that morning and it rained throughout the game. Central drew first blood when Charles Yuille hit Carl Sanders with a second-quarter 15-yard scoring pass. The Eagles had been set up on the 30 after Juan Jones failed to get a punt away. With but 6:00 to go in the half, MSU scored on its next two possessions set up by a blocked punt on NCCU's four, and a recovered fumble on the Eagles' 15. Quarterback Darrell Coulter dove in from the four and Elijah Sharpe went in from the three. David Booker booted both extra points. The Bears ended the scoring in the third when Craig Spencer returned a blocked punt 10 yards.

NC A&T ended its two-game losing streak as it held J. C. Smith to minus 36 yards rushing and 111 total yards, while amassing 291 total offensive yards itself. A&T scored early in the first period on a 19-yard sprint by quarterback Roland Meyers. The extra point was no good when Fred Freeman's run failed, but the Aggies went up 8-0 in the second quarter on a safety, and 14-0 on Meyers' one-yard keeper. JCSU made it close in the third when John Thomas hit Lloyd Oakley with a two-yard TD toss and Ray Patterson kicked the extra point. A&T came back with a Keith James field goal in that period and a Randall Ponder 19-yard interception return in the last quarter to put the game away.

In Lorman, Mississippi, SC State fell behind 10-0 in the first quarter before getting a one-yard TD run from Chris Ragland and an extra point from Malcolm Montgomery. The Bulldogs got within one point in the second period when Alcorn's James McFarland was called for illegally grounding the ball in the endzone. Alcorn padded its lead in the fourth on a Wilfredo Rosales field goal and a Gregory Jones 10-yard run. It was Jones' second TD as well as Rosales' second FG.

The Howard Bison played Florida A&M very tough and were down only 14-13 going into the last period. Both teams scored TDs and extra points in the initial stanza, with Howard's coming on a 65-yard bomb from Ron Wilson to Greg Scott. FAMU ran another TD in the second and HU answered with a 27-yard Howard Ward field goal. Ward booted a 33-yarder in the third. The defending NCAA Division I-AA champion Rattlers opened their slim lead on a 19-yard scoring pass from Knight to Davis.

Consumer Can Lose $200 Million In Insurance

It's a costly mistake to buy a whole life insurance policy and then drop it after a year or two. If you do, you'll usually get next to nothing back.

Few people plan to drop a whole life policy right after buying it. But one person in five does just that.

In 1977, consumers had an estimated $141 billion in the savings part of whole life insurance policies. In that same year, consumer losses--just through first-year policy lapses alone--was $200 million.

Because of heavy sales and administrative expenses during the early years of the policy, the cash value of a whole life policy builds up very slowly. In fact, for most whole life policies, the cash value in the first year is zero. This makes whole life insurance a very uneconomical way to save in the short-term.

The average annual return on the savings component of a whole life insurance policy is about minus 10% if the policy is surrendered in the 5th year; the return is between minus and plus 1% in the 10th year. (A "minus" return means the amount of money you receive at the end of the period is less than the sum of your savings deposits.) Therefore, the staff of the FTC recommends that you not buy a whole life policy unless you plan to keep it at least 10 years.

There are many reasons consumers let their policies lapse so soon: 1) They can't afford the payments; 2) They bought more insurance than they really needed; 3) They were carried away by the enthusiasm of the salesperson; 4) They suddenly are faced with a financial emergency. Whatever the cancellation reason, the fact remains that 45% do cancel within 10 years and many do lose money because they cancelled.

If you want insurance protection for your family while you're young and as a source of money when you're older, there are two things you can do: 1) You could buy a whole life policy with its built-in savings program. 2) You can buy a term policy with t same coverage but a lower premium and each year invest the difference in a savings account or some other safe investment. If you buy a term policy and you're the kind of person who can save regularly, and many people are, you'll build up a sizeable sum of money by the time you're 65. You can then use this sum for the same purposes as a whole life policy.

In addition, if you are considering whole life as a way of saving, you should compare its features with other types of savings programs, especially passbook savings accounts. The best way to compare them is to look at the average annual rate of return.

1. Buy only what you can afford. If you drop your whole life policy within the first 10 years, you could lose some of the money you paid in. And, you might not be able to afford this.

2. If you are eligible for group life insurance coverage, give it some serious thought. It may be the easiest and least costly way to meet your life insurance needs.

3. Don't leave yourself under-insured. During your younger years, when your insurance needs are generally the greatest, term insurance will give your beneficiary more face-value protection for the same premium dollars.

4. Shop around. Many people think all similar policies cost about the same. They don't.

5. Check the rate of return. If you are thinking about using whole life insurance as a way to save, check the average rates of return of different policies and compare them with other savings and investments programs.
