STEPPING INTO THE REAL WORLD

Courage: Stepping Into The Real World

I have the wisdom and I feel within my heart that all I need is the courage. Courage is a firm determination that one needs to become successful. Stepping into the real world is a beginning for us once we leave college and start a life of our own. Once the first step is taken, there should be no turning back.

We only live for ourselves. Someone may give you inspiration, but courage is something that has to come from within. Once that is established, you always have faith and a strong mind. This one thing no one can take from you unless you let them. When you let someone discourage you of your determination, you deprive yourself of courage.

Having courage is all you need.
