Preregistration Episode Rowdy

By ROSALIND E. POSTELL

Preregistration brought its usual blend of hassles and health hazards to A&T and students think the current system should be changed before someone is seriously hurt.

The procedure, which involves picking up course cards from various departments, usually gets rowdy when students try to pick up cards for Speech 250, English 200 and 201 and Physical Science 100.

Students from all disciplines must take these courses and they usually crowd these departments in unorganized mobs, fearing that they can't get a class slot.

Anita Burke, a sophomore fashion merchandise major from Orlando, Florida, said, "I was dragged through seven cities and hell" after a day of preregistration.

Most of the students questioned agreed that preregistration was unorganized.

Jennifer Barnes, a freshman marketing major from Wilson, N.C., said, "The administration should show more concern for students, not the uncaring attitude they presently have."

But, Beverly Wilson, also a native of Wilson, had no qualms about preregistration.

"It was less complicated, less crowded and more organized," she commented.

The frenzy that has accompanied preregistration over the years has produced the need to have security officers monitor each card station, but this has not lessened the confusion.

Many students were up early the first day of preregistration, trying to beat the card rush.

The situation seemed to be worse in Crosby Hall where students went to get English and speech cards. The lines became a swarming mass and noises made by card seekers penetrated nearby class room.

A security officer tried to restore order, but his efforts were in vain. Some students decided to go to class rather than fight the mobs at the card tables.

"Preregistration was like a dog fight. We had to act like cats and dogs in order to get course cards," said Lisa Lilly, a freshman architectural engineering major from Augusta, Ga.

A freshman industrial technology major from Pamlico County, sarcastically replied, "I liked preregistration. It's a lot of fun. Pushing, shoving and knocking people down is fun."

Most students questioned said they felt that preregistration was no improvement from last year.

"There was no improvement from last year," said New Jersey sophomore Sharon Sharpless. She suggested that preregistration be conducted by classes with single lines and guards.

agreed that preregistration should be conducted by classes.

She also said, "It will provide improvement."

Valarie Richards, a sophomore accounting major from Charlotte, commented, "It went smoothly for me. The Business Department was more organized since cards were issued by numbers."

Most students agree that the entire preregistration process is unorganized and frustrating.

Suzette Daughtry, a senior accounting major from Kinston, N.C., said, "It is ridiculous to have to get up at 5:30 a.m. to get course cards."

She suggested that students complete a schedule form, then submit it to the Dudley Building to be processed.

"If the high school can operate on this system, so can A&T because (Registration and Records) knows the number of students enrolled," she added.

Daughtry also suggested keeping the classes of majors together so they can take all their classes together in order to establish rapport with their peers and advisors.

The subject of preregistration was addressed in a meeting held Thursday by Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs Dr. Nathan Simms. Dr. Rudolph Artis, director of Registration and Records, said the Registration Committee will meet soon to discuss ways to improve preregistration.

School Of Engineering Receives $300,000 Grant

A&T's School of Engineering recently received a $300,000 grant from the Exxon Education Foundation, the largest single grant for development that the school has received, according to university officials.

The award, part of an $1.8 million dollar package marked for six traditionally Black colleges with engineering schools, is to be used for faculty development during the next three years, beginning in 1982.

The $1.8 million program is a complement to the $15 million Exxon centennial program announced last September to support engineering education in 66 colleges and universities throughout the United States. A&T was not included in that number, but Dr. Suresh Chandra, dean of the School of Engineering, contacted Exxon officials and explained to them how the award would benefit A&T's program.

"Our contact with the Exxon Education Foundation has been established over the past several years. From time to time we take advantage of these contacts and let them know our needs and the kinds of work we have been doing," Chandra said.

Some of the Engineering School's needs, according to Chandra, were caused by the dramatic increase in the school's enrollment. In 1974, 340 undergraduate students were enrolled and this number increased to 1,200 in 1981.

"Money is needed for scholarships and financial aid, retention of students, student projects, library books and journals and faculty development," he said.

"A problem arising from a shortage of resources is that our senior faculty members are overburdened. Recruitment and retention of faculty in the face of adverse market conditions is extremely difficult. The Exxon grant is expected to alleviate that situation in a very significant way."

Other recipients include Howard University, Washington; Prairie View Agricultural and Mechanical College, Prairie View, Texas; Southern University, Baton Rouge, Louisiana; Tennessee; and Tuskegee Institute, Tuskegee, Alabama.

Vincent Howard Embodies Honesty and Benevolence

By H. MILTON TYSON

All Aggies who yearn for the days of honesty and truth, take heart, for all is not lost. There is, here in our midst, one who embodies the qualities that seem to be so lacking in today's dog-eat-dog world. Vincent Howard, a freshman speech communications major from Portsmouth, Va., is our man of the hour.

Vincent Howard

Howard, a student who does his work study in the Physical Education Department in Corbett Sports Gym had an experience a couple of weeks ago to tax his honesty.

As he worked one day in Corbett, he noticed a wallet stuck between the cushions on a couch. He removed the wallet from the couch and looked at the ID inside.

"I could tell that there was something inside the wallet, but I wasn't even thinking about keeping any money."

The wallet belonged to Cal Irvin of the P.E. Dept., whom Howard knew rather well. After learning this, Howard went to Irvin's office and asked him for change for five dollars knowing that Irvin didn't have his wallet. Much to Irvin's surprise, Howard had the wallet. After thanking Howard for his honesty, Irvin decided to give him a rather sizable reward.

Howard says that most of his friends say that it was nice of him to return Irvin's wallet (See Vincent Page 3)

Law Hosts 'NBN Night Talk'

Bob Law, a veteran broadcaster, writer and radio-television producer, will host the "NBN Night Talk," the new five-hour call-in program that will make its debut this month on the National Black Network.

The program, to premier on Tuesday, November 17, at 12:05 a.m., will focus on a variety of topical issues that affect Black Americans. It will be the first nationwide forum with the potential of linking 30 million Black citizens for a free exchange of views on current concerns.

Law, whose career in the communications field spans nearly 15 years, was public affairs director of radio station WWRL from 1973 to 1978. With that station, he was the host of "Black Dialogue," a two-hour weekly telephone talk show.

He also created WWRL's "Respect Yourself," and "Stop the War in the Black Community," campaigns, and was the producer of a number of radio documentaries, most notably "From Montgomery to Memphis," "From Rosa Parks to Barbara Jordan," and "Community or Chaos."

Law also was the producer/writer for a television public affairs documentary titled "Angel Dust and its Impact on Youth."

Audience participation will be the watchword for the "Night Talk" program, which will be beamed to NBN affiliates across the nation from 12:05 a.m. to 5 a.m., Tuesday to Saturday.

About 75 million people listen to radio one or more nights each week between the hours of midnight and 6 a.m. These listeners include physicians, students, travelers, truckers and people who work the overnight shifts at hospitals, airports, data processing departments, factories.

"Night Talk" will enable listeners to discuss their problems, and also describe their achievements in their respective communities as they relate to the national scene.

The program will feature stimulating and informative interviews with the nation's top newsmakers--public officials, scholars, stars of the entertainment world, authors and people of prominence in many other fields of endeavor.

Vince Sanders, vice president of news and operations for NBN, since

1974, will serve as Executive Producer of "Night Talk."

The National Black Network, which celebrated its eighth anniversary in July, was the first line-connected, nationwide, Black-owned and controlled radio network in U.S. history.

NBN affiliates cover nearly 100 Black markets and have the potential of reaching approximately 80 percent of the total Black population in the country.

The network provides news and sports programs as well as a number of special features.

Security Urges A&T Become Crime Prevention Conscious

The holiday season is approaching. In an effort to protect your property on campus, the Security Division asks that the entire Aggie family become security conscious about crime prevention.

Help erase the incidents of crime that occur in the university community.

Records indicate that some form of crime, largely theft, occurs on campus each week and especially during the holiday season.

An accelerated effort by the entire Aggie family can reduce and prevent certain criminal activities from occurring in this university's environment.

Here are just a few ways members of the Aggie family can help reduce campus crime.

- Tips On Crime Prevention
1. Don't load your vehicle the night before leaving for the holidays or break.
 2. Be sure your room door is locked at all times.
 3. Do not leave your valuables (stereo, radio, and so forth) in sight. Lock them away in a safe place or carry them with you.

4. Make sure all windows, doors and desks are locked at all times.

5. Be sure you know where your keys are at all times. Do not lend keys to others.

6. Report any strange person, loitering in the dormitories or work areas, to the campus police.

Security is everybody's business. Help us make this a safe campus.

Bookstore '81 Gross, $400,000

By FRAN PRIMUS

The campus bookstore grossed a profit of $400,000 for the 1980-81 school year, most of which was used for operating expenses.

Roughly 92 percent of the money that was made, which also includes student book rental fee, was used to re-order textbooks, paperbacks, sundries, T-shirts and mugs, said Clay Harris, director of auxiliary services.

Salaries of bookstore employees, utilities, office supplies and remodeling costs are also included.

A&T Delegation Attends Kansas City Conference

One of the largest delegations of future teachers and leaders of vocational education in agriculture from A&T will be represented at the National Student Teachers Conference, National Future Farmers of America Alumni Meeting, and the National Alpha Tau Alpha Honorary Fraternity at Kansas City, Missouri, this week.

This year's Theme is: "Vocational Agriculture--Growing For America".

Students tentatively selected to represent the above organizations include David Barnes, Roger Bryant, Chester Neal, president of the Alpha Xi Chapter of Alpha Tau Alpha; Andre Herring, president of the Ag-Ed Association; Keith Ellis, Joseph D. Knight, III, Joseph Sharpe; Augustine Nyikwagh from Nigeria and Akbar Ghattan from Iran, representing international students.

Cooperating teacher Henry Armstrong will address the National Student Teachers Conference on, "Teaching Adult Farmer Education in the Hillsborough School Community".

This marks the second time that a vocational agriculture teacher from A&T will have addressed this National Body.

Also, Walter C. Jones, cooperating teacher from Southwest Edgecombe High School, and a local State and National member of the FFA Alumni, will accompany the group.

Dr. Arthur Purcell of the Agricultural Education faculty, will be the university leader, according to Dr. A.P. Bell, chairman of the Department of Agricultural Education.

A&T Offers HCAAP Program

Have you considered a career in one of the health professions: medicine, dentistry, veterinary medicine, pharmacy, optometry, podiatry or radiology? Or, are you interested in graduate biomedical sciences?

Are you aware that A&T is providing a Health Careers Academic Advancement (HCAAP) that is designed to prepare minority students to pursue the health careers and graduate biomedical sciences?

Do you know that there is a critical shortage of minority health professionals? More Black Americans, American Indians and other minorities are needed in all health fields.

If your answers to these questions are an emphatic "no" or even "yes," you should ask yourself the question, "Why shouldn't I consider preparing myself for a life job in the health careers or graduate biomedical sciences where there is a great need and where I can use my talents while building additional skills?"

A&T is one of four state universities that have been funded through a special grant to N.C. Health Manpower Development Program from the Health Careers Opportunity Program, Office of Health Resources Administration, Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Students interested in a health science career should come to 109 Barnes Hall or the HCAAP Learning Center in Crosby 225 for more information.

Harris pointed out that the remaining 8 percent of the total budget goes to the university to cover the costs for the use of the accounting and purchasing departments, security, computer center and heating, which is supplied by the Physical Plant.

Like many other businesses today, the bookstore is waging its own battle against inflation.

James Meachum, manager of the bookstore, said that many publishing houses require checks in advance and this causes a delay in the ordering of books.

Clay Harris said he believes the bookstore is tied in directly with the economy.

"Roughly 82 percent of our students are on financial aid. With this number on financial aid, it's hard to order supplies in July when the money doesn't arrive until October," said Harris.

He also said, that many vendors, especially if their business is small, want cash in advance or in at least 10 to 15 days.

This represents a problem for the university system.

Cameo will perform along with Roger and Zapp, Brick, Slave and One Way featuring Al Hudson in the Greensboro Coliseum tonight. Show time is 8:00.

Cameo, Zapp, Roger And One Way To Be In Coliseum

By RONALD M. JOHNSON
Al Hayman and Hartman Entertainment Inc. presents the fall concert of the year.

The concert consists of five of the 80's most dynamic groups including Cameo, Zapp with Roger Troutman, Brick, Slave and One Way featuring Al Hudson.

Cameo, an 11-member band from Englewood Cliffs, N.J., recently relocated to Atlanta, Ga.

Cameo consists of Larry Blackmon, Anthony Lockett, Gregory Johnson, Nathan Leftenant, Arnett Leftenant, Tomi Jenkins, Aaron Mills, Thomas "T.C." Campbell, Jeryl Bright, Stephan Moore and Charles Singleton.

The group's latest album is Knights Of The Soundtable produced by Larry Blackmon, leader of Cameo. It's presently with Cecil Holmes' Chocolate City label distributed by Casablanca Records.

Selections from the album include "Freaky Dancin'" and "I Like It."

Zapp featuring Roger Troutman will perform songs from the album The Many Facets Of Roger featuring the singles, "I Heard Through The Grapevine" and "So Ruff-Tuff."

Zapp has only been on the musical charts for a year. It has produced one album called Zapp featuring the single "More Bounce To The Ounce."

The group was produced by Roger Troutman and William "Bootsy" Collins, for Warner Bros. Records.

Brick is a six-member band from Atlanta, Ga.

It is with the Bangs Records of Atlanta. Its most recent effort is Summer Heat which includes "Wide Open" and "Sweat til you get wet."

Their last two big hits were "Push-Push" and "Dusic".

Also, on the card for the evening will be Slave.

The group has a new album called Show Time featuring their new single hit "Snap Shot".

Slave is really going strong since its last solid gold single hit, "Watching You" from their Stone Jam album.

The guest attraction for the concert will be One way. The group was the background band for Al Hudson, until a year ago.

When, the group released "Push," it hit the pop charts as their first top hit. One Way's new album is Fancy Dancer.

The concert will be 8 p.m. today at the Greensboro Coliseum. Tickets are on sale at the box office and usual outlets.

TGSO Offers Bahamian Cruise

Thank God School's Over, a new non-profit organization on campus, is offering its final call for a five day/five night cruise to the Bahama Islands May 10-14.

Cynthia Henderson, a senior biology major and tour coordinator, explained that a special discount rate of $375.50 per person is being offered to graduating seniors.

A final $25 deposit, according to Henderson, must be made by Nov. 15 in order to hold a reservation.

The purposes of TGSO, Henderson explained, are to give young Blacks the opportunity to travel abroad, broaden horizons and to promote Black awareness overseas.

"Many of us say we would like to travel, but never had the opportunity or think the cost is out of our league," commented Henderson.

Henderson also explained that the idea originated from a recent summer visit she had with her aunt and uncle, who are owners of the Henderson Travel Agency, the first Black travel agency located in Atlanta, Ga.

"It was through a casual conversation with my aunt who suggested I plan a senior trip overseas, of which their firm would handle all the details and arrangements,"

Henderson said.

Henderson's aunt, in persuading her to sponsor a tour, told her about the local colleges of Atlanta such as Spellman, Morehouse and Atlanta University that take these trips all the time.

Henderson later made up her mind to initiate the idea.

"After engaging in a highly persuading conversation with the travel agency employees, I was able to bargain for the price of $375.50," she said.

"I'm just hoping my fellow Aggies will not dwell on what kind of personal gain this would be for me. I always wanted to do more than just major in biology."

because Irvin is a "nice guy."

A couple of days later, as he left the Student Union, Howard found, lying on the ground, an open envelope containing a $36 check and a $12 money order. Before sealing the envelope and mailing the lost letter, he noted the address of the sender on the money order. He called the number (collect) and, under an alias, informed the mother of an A&T student that the check and money order had been properly mailed to the California watch company on the address.

When asked about whether or not he had any regrets about not keeping any of the money that he has found, Howard quickly makes it known that, if he had it all to do over again, he would do the same thing.

"I felt good. It makes me feel that I've done something really good."

Free Leaflet Has Inflation-Fighting Ideas

Now there's a free leaflet available that can help make Christmas merrier than ever. Good news is that you needn't dent your household budget while providing a table full of enjoyment for family and friends.

"California Dip," the famous blend of onion soup mix and sour cream, has long been a favorite for munching with chips, fresh vegetables and other "dippers." Now, this same party standby can be the basis for some sensational but easy and inexpensive party recipes.

The Lipton Kitchens have published a leaflet chock full of tempting recipes for such holiday treats as Santa's Stuffed Mushrooms, Caroler's Alpine Dip, Party Pinwheel Sandwiches and Onion Tart Scandia. All have a foundation of the famous "California Dip."

For a "sea-sonal" sensation, try Holiday Tuna

Spread. Make it by combining 1 cup Lipton California Dip, 1 (3-1/4 oz.) can tuna, drained and flaked with 2 tablespoons sweet pickle relish. Chill and serve on cucumber slices or assorted crackers. This mixture makes about 1 1/2 cups of spread at a small cost.

For free copies of the leaflet, write to: Party Appetizers, Thomas J. Lipton, Inc., 800 Sylvan Avenue, Englewood Cliffs, N. J. 07632.

‘Crosby Hill’

This week began no differently from any other. There were classes to meet, lessons to weep and rendezvous to keep. But a different attitude seeped into the Tuesday morning air. Students were scurrying about like ants collecting winter goodies, but were they en route to class? T'was only 7:30.

As you approached Crosby Hall, you saw communications wire and the camouflage canvas spread near the entrance. Instructors, normally seen relaxed and smiling, were now clad in fatigues and they talked very cautiously amongst themselves. A box of computer cards was guarded by two heavily armed sentinels and automatically you realized what was happening: It's Preregistration Week!

You tried to escape, but it was too late. Suddenly, a crowd of students rushed the command post. The troops had orders not to fire until they received word from headquarters commander. The commander tried to reach his troops, but the swarm severed the communications link and total chaos followed.

The mob broke through the ranks, grabbed the prized booty and escaped, leaving the troops frustrated and low in spirits. And to make matters worse, the troops received no pay for this hazardous duty.

A safer method of preregistration must exist that will leave students and instructors free from bruises and scraps. Why not do it by class, beginning with the upperclassmen? Or, let students complete their schedules and let the computer take care of the footwork.

The University must soon find a workable alternative to the current system, or instructors might join the National Guard--at least it pays for service beyond the call of duty.

Which Veterans?

By Audrey Williams

Vietnam veterans: fighters of a lost and unknown cause.

Nov. 11, commemorated Veterans Day 1981.

America's mail ceased, banks closed and flags flew high.

But this day of mourning and homage was seemingly held dear for only a few veterans.

Those few were World War II vets.

Yet, the war which carried more casualties (Vietnam) didn't seem to be a part of this most honorable day to men of service.

This war cost too many lives, caused too much destruction, left too many minds trapped in turbulent personal wars and left too many unwanted children.

Survivors of this disaster are subjected to unpatriotic treatment from its own government.

Today, many Vietnam veterans feel left out and unwanted because of detailed paperwork and red tape which eventually adds up to "I'm sorry, but you're ineligible for disability benefits, Mr. Jones."

Agent Orange, a chemical which was used for jungle spraying operations during the Vietnam war, according to some veterans, has caused them mental and/or physical deterioration.

Research continues as many veterans await legislation declaring Agent Orange a dangerous herbicide.

More than 10,500 veterans have filed claims for disability compensation, but until the government decides the chemical was a hazard, the veterans will continue to fear for their lives.

Children Of A Lesser God

By Tony Moore

It's death march time.

It's that time of the semester when brides/grooms, widows/widowers, mummies/monsters, statues/doughboys & girls prove to big brother and sister that I have learned to love my frat/soror; I love no other better; there is nothing I would not do for my sibling; yes master/mistress.

For the mere price of $000.00, one can buy eternal brother/sisterhood.

He can better prepare himself for life through such asinine antics as baptizing his liver in alcohol, leading a toy duck on a leash and feigning pleasure in masochistic treatment, just to name a few.

He need never worry about employment, what with so many siblings infiltrating industry--aw pish!

The order contends that outsiders do not understand such activity.

That is so true.

It's difficult to understand why people willingly subject themselves to an indignity such as pledging and (illegal) hazing.

What makes people sacrifice their self-respect for the privilege of calling someone brother/sister, or being branded like an animal--no like an Alpha.

Same thing.

Jones Responds To Students' View Of SGA Pres.

Editor of the Register:

I would like to inject my comments on last week's article on Stephen Kirk, our SGA president. I have been involved with the last two SGA administrations and was acquainted with both SGA presidents (Kelvin Buncum and Pam McCorkle, respectively), and believe these were good administrations.

Today, I am a member of this year's SGA and I believe Stephen is doing a fine job. Despite all the negative response he has received, Stephen and the SGA are still progressing.

Understand my fellow colleagues, that each president has his or her own philosophy on how to administer the SGA. You cannot expect Stephen to be like Pam McCorkle for he has his own objectives. Also, the SGA has been caught in the transitional state, where we have a new chancellor, vice-chancellors and other administrative alterations.

So, many things that Kirk and the SGA had planned for the students were either cancelled or postponed.

Many of you criticized Stephen on the turnout of Homecoming. First of all, Homecoming was good. What I mean by "good" is what can you expect the SGA to do with only $29,000, that has to be allocated for a whole week of festivities?

Most major groups (Phyllis Hyman, Teddy Pendergrass, Earth, Wind and Fire) cost between $25,000 and $200,000, and this does not include such additives as sound and lights, security, stage crew and cleaning services.

I cannot comprehend the logic of some of the opinions in the article. For instance, a student stated that, "...Kirk could improve more by having more meetings in the auditorium..." What is the sense of having more meetings when less than one percent of the total student body attends the scheduled Student Body Meetings?

Another stated that, "Although I don't know all his responsibilities, I think he is a little slack." How can he be slack in his job when you do not know all of his responsibilities?

Another student stated that the SGA should promote more activities. Let me take you back when the SGA sponsored bus trips to Washington, D.C., Orangeburg, S.C., and Raleigh, N.C., and these were free trips. Yet, many people did not participate. Also, someone said that we should sponsor discos.

The SGA does not sponsor events (especially weekend discos) when other organizations on campus (approximately 87 organizations) sponsor discos and other events.

Secondly, when the SGA does sponsor events such as lecturers, speakers and political figures, there is a lack of participation from the students.

Some students claim that Stephen does not expose himself enough. Stephen is a student and he attends his classes. As president, he has meetings to attend with our administration, faculty and staff. Maybe, it's the students who do not expose themselves.

How often would you see President Reagan if it were not for television and newspapers?

Some students stated that Stephen cannot communicate with others. I strongly believe Stephen is an effective communicator, for he is clear, precise and well-defined. He also communicates with our administrators—almost on a daily basis.

Students stated that "There is no unity." Questions: When has there been total unification on this campus? I believe many students are quick to criticize the SGA, but when asked for help, many students claimed, "I don't have the time..."

I petition students to get involved. If some of us have time to party at the Trevi, form panty raids, start food fights and degrade our SGA president, why not utilize that energy and invite yourselves to the SGA office and help out. Share your ideas, so we can remove these negative attitudes and create a positive, unified force.

YOUNG EXECUTIVES NEEDED.

Good Salary. Excellent Future.
Job Satisfaction.

We're the United States Coast Guard. Although we're small—about 38,000 strong—our work is some of the most important in the country.

As you probably know, we're in the business of saving lives and property.

But we're also charged with protecting our coastlines, our Great Lakes, our waterways. Regulating the 200-mile fishery conservation zone. Intercepting narcotics trafficking. Monitoring the vessels that traverse all of our major ports.

All big jobs. Requiring top people.

That's why we need good, qualified, ambitious men and women.

Put your Bachelor's Degree to work.

We're especially interested if you have a technical degree—in engineering, science, mathematics, or computers. We've got plenty of work that takes your special talents and skills.

Once you finish officer's candidate school—17 weeks in Yorktown, Virginia—we'll give you a job with responsibility. You'll work with advanced equipment and technology.

The benefits. And the rewards. A starting salary of more than $16,000 that can increase by over 40% in your first three years with normal promotion and seniority raises.

- Free medical and dental care for service members.
- A living-quarters allowance.
- Tuition assistance for off-duty education.
- Thirty days of paid vacation a year.
- A generous retirement plan for those who make the Coast Guard a career.

All this, plus the reward of working with a group that saves lives, property and protects the environment.

The SGA will hold a concerned students committee meeting in Room 100 November 16, at 7 p.m. The Union Memorial Methodist Church, located at Lee and Bennett Streets, will present the A&T State University Choir in an all sacred program Sunday at 4 p.m.

Members of the SGA and the A&T Administration will present High School Day, Saturday at 9 p.m. in Harrison Auditorium. The SGA asks all organizations to meet in the Memorial Student Union, at 7 p.m. Friday for a brief meeting about the activities planned. All organizational support is needed!

The Games and Tournament Committee of the Student Union Advisory Board will sponsor a Las Vegas Night Sunday, 6 p.m. to 10 p.m. in the Quiet Games Room of the Memorial Union. All organizations must submit yearbook pictures to the Yearbook Office no later than November 19.

The Southeast Branch Library will show two films, Got To Tell It, The Mahalia Jackson Story and Sylvilla: They Dance To Her Drum, The Story Of Dance Choreographer, Syvill Fort--A Contemporary Of Katherine Dunham, 7 p.m. Wednesday For more information, call the library.

Interested in graduate biomedical sciences and professional health programs i.e., medicine, dentistry, pharmacy, veterinary medicine, and others? Find out about opportunities, selection criteria, curricula, financial aid and other important issues at the Health Careers Academic Advancement Program Nov. 20, Barnes Hall Auditorium. Registration is 9-10 a.m.; program begins 10 a.m.

The Biology Department presents the Annual Artis P. Graves Lecture Synthesis And Characterization Of Stable Plant Disease Resistance In Cotton by Dr. William M. Johnson (program director, CSRS Program, Langston University, Langston, Okla. and Associate Professor, Department of Plant Pathology, Oklahoma State University, Stillwater) 7:30 p.m. Thursday Barnes Hall Auditorium.

The Alpha Phi Omega Fraternity will issue the last of the Freshman Record books Wednesday and Thursday 8-10 p.m. in dormitory lobbies. Students who fail to obtain their copy at these times should contact any fraternity member.

The Women's Council will meet 7 p.m. Tuesday, Morrow Hall Parlor. All ladies are urged to attend.

Barbee Hall will host an Attitudes and Personal Growth seminar 7 p.m. Monday.

Morrow Hall will host a lecture: Abortions: Where We Are Today 7 p.m. Thursday.

A representative of the Fuqua School of Business will be on campus Friday, Nov. 20, to discuss the Duke MBA Program. Interested students may obtain further information by contacting the Office of Career Planning and Placement.

ADD TEN YEARS TO YOUR THINKING.

What we do at MITRE is as far as a decade ahead of what others consider the state of the art.

As General Systems Engineer for C³— Command, Control and Communications — for the U.S. Air Force Electronic Systems Division, it's our challenge to look beyond tomorrow to the world of 5 or 10 years from now. To analyze and engineer one-of-a-kind systems that will be more than current well into the 1990's.

Our efforts have attracted many of the most accomplished experts in their fields. Engineers responsible for remarkable advances in areas including computer systems, systems software, systems architecture, radar systems, and satellite and terrestrial transmission. Engineers you'll be working with who can advance your career a decade in technologies including fiber optics, computer security, sensor technology, and voice recognition.

Excellence is nurtured in every way possible at MITRE. Facilities, compensation and benefits to attract and keep the finest people. Full tuition reimbursement plus on-going, in-house lecture series from the unique MITRE Institute to promote your continued education. Plus exceptional project mobility and dual ladder career pathing to get you where you want to be, at your pace.

If you like 10 more years wisdom — without the wrinkles — come to MITRE.

North Carolina A & T Interviews Thursday, Nov. 19, 1981

MITRE will be conducting campus interviews Thursday, Nov. 19, 1981. Contact your Placement Office to arrange an interview if you are a BS, MS, or Ph.D. candidate in:

Electrical Engineering
Computer Engineering
Computer Science
Mathematics
Physics

If you are not able to interview with us on this date, send your resume to Philip H. Hicks at The MITRE Corporation, Burlington Road, Bedford, MA. 01730.

U.S. Citizenship required. MITRE is an equal opportunity employer actively seeking applications under its affirmative action program.

A&T Lost Key Players In 1980

By RAYMOND MOODY

Last year this time, everyone at A&T was happy, especially if he/she followed the Aggie football team. The Aggies had just whipped Florida A&M 24-22 in Tallahassee, Florida, which raised their record to 7-2.

If you are still an Aggie fan now, football is the last thing on your mind. After A&T's 19-2 loss to Florida A&M Saturday, you're probably eagerly awaiting the unveiling of Don Corbett's 1981 Aggie basketball team.

Before the 1981 football season began, A&T was the favorite of two highly regarded magazines to win the Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference championships.

The Aggies, with their 3-6 1981 overall record, haven't looked like the 1980 record-breaking Aggies, who won more games than any other team in Aggie history. And why should they? This isn't the same team.

The Aggies lost some key players from the 1980 team; however, Aggie Coach Jim McKinley faithfully promised that these spots would be adequately filled. He was wrong.

Let's start with the Aggie offense.

At the quarterback position, the Aggies lost their top two players in Roland Myers and William Watson, who is now serving as a graduate assistant coach.

Myers, in a back-up role, rushed for 162 yards and four touchdowns in six games. Watson, the starter, had an excellent 1980. He rushed for 623 yards and five touchdowns. He was a leader on and off the field.

McKinley's replacements haven't done a good job of making fans forget Myers and Watson. But, let's remember, one is a freshman and the other is a junior college transfer. They may be future stars, but this is the present.

When you think of last year's running attack, who comes to mind? Wayman Pitts and Charlie Sutton, of course. The forgotten man is Cleotis Johnson, a back who always seemed to get a lot of yardage, but it would often go unnoticed.

Johnson rushed for 723 yards and scored a team high eight touchdowns in 1980. Pitts and Sutton were publicized, but Johnson was contributing.

Johnson has been missed, and Wayman Pitts' departure hasn't helped matters.

The Aggies didn't have to pass much in 1981, so no one was that concerned about the departure of Frank Carr and Billy Mims. The Aggies could easily replace them; right? Wrong.

Carr caught 20 passes and Mims caught 14 passes in 1980. Both caught five touchdown passes.

I'm not taking anything from our present receivers; they've done a good job. But, if Carr and Mims were in action this year, they'd be starting. It's that simple.

The offensive line lost Clifton Britt, a three-year starter at guard. The Aggies were expected to offset Britt's loss by moving Maurice Bryant, a former tackle, to guard, which would bring in former sub Thomas Boone.

Bryant was dismissed three weeks ago, and Mike West was recently injured. It's been that kind of year for the Aggies.

The defense was hit with some key departures. On the defensive line, the Aggies lost three players: Gerry Green, Norton Majors and Leslie Blackburn. They were steady players who did their job consistently, but they didn't

MEAC Players of the Week

(For November 7)

Offensive Player--Charles Bevel (RB), Florida A&M University.

Offensive Lineman--Nathaniel Newton (T), Florida A&M University.

Defensive Player--John Courtney (DT), South Carolina State.

Charles Bevel, a 6-0, 210-pound freshman fullback, rushed for 128 yards on ten carries, including a 53-yard touchdown run in Florida A&M's 19-2 win over A&T Saturday.

The Jacksonville, Florida, native was also one for one on extra point kicks, and kicked off for the Rattlers. He has been named the MEAC's Player of the Week for his efforts.

The Offensive Lineman of the Week is Florida A&M's Nathaniel Newton, a 6-3, 260-pound tackle. The junior from Orlando, Florida, led the Rattler blocking as FAMU accumulated 336 total offensive yards.

MEAC defensive honors went to John Courtney, a 6-1, 240-pound tackle for S.C. State. In Saturday's 10-6 victory over Bethune-Cookman, that clinched the Conference championship, Courtney had 10 solo tackles, five assisted tackles, and two quarterback sacks.

The senior from Melbourne, Florida, also recovered two fumbles and blocked down a pass attempt.

The Sports Report

This week our football team is getting a much needed rest. Tennessee State is ranked fifth in the NCAA-1AA. So McKinley's squad will have to be in tip-top form just to keep this contest respectable. The Tigers' only loss in eight contests was a season opener to Jackson State and the Tigers have beaten Grambling, Louisville, Alabama State and Long Beach State just to name a few.

Tiger Head Coach "Big John" Merritt has been battling a heart problem all season. Merritt is one of the top coaches in America and he left his hospital bed to coach the game against Grambling.

I was sorry to hear that Merritt was re-admitted to Vanderbilt University Hospital this week because of a breathing problem. It was later noted that his heart was the cause of the problem. I hope Merritt recovers quickly because his Tigers are definitely a threat to win the national championship.

Speaking of the national championship, a possible at-large bid is on the line when Grambling and S.C. State meet in Orangeburg. The Tigers have lost to Southern Methodist University and Tennessee State. The S.C. Bulldogs have already received a bid for the opening play-off on Dec. 5, but the Bulldogs still have an incentive for this contest. The Bulldogs and Tigers have battled four times and for S.C. State, it has been four losses.

This will be a regional telecast contest and the combination of QB Thomas Ezell and wingback Trumaine Johnson will be unstoppable and should propel the Tigers to victory.

I'm sure S.C. State Coach Bill Davis will have the "Dogs" fighting mad, but Eddie Robinson and his Tigers normally win the big one and this is the big one for Black College Football.

The A&T coaches are presently reviewing high school films looking for that diamond in the rough. A quarterback and possibly four of them should be high on the list. The only problem is that, with McKinley's luck lately, the Aggies will probably bring in chipped glass.

Changing the subject, our volleyball team is competing this weekend in the North Carolina Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women (NCAIAW) Division two volleyball championship at Lenoir Rhyne College in Hickory.

The Aggies are ranked third behind top-seeded UNC-G and Western Carolina University. Other schools participating are Wake Forest, UNC-A, Pembroke State, Gardner Webb, Mars Hill and UNC-W.

Stadium dedication ceremonies have been changed and now they are planned for the day we play Central. I hope the Eagles don't spoil it, but you know the incentive is there. McKinley has crushed Central every season and, last year, the Aggies smashed the Birds twice in the regular season and 37-0 in the Gold Bowl.

NCCU will play Va. Union in the CIAA Championship game. Can you imagine A&T beating the CIAA Champs?

S.C. State Victorious Over Bethune-Cookman

Durham--The South Carolina State College Bulldogs took on the strong challenge by conference rival Bethune-Cookman Saturday, came away with a 10-6 victory, and won the 1981 Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference football title.

It was S.C. State's second crown in a row, and seventh in the MEAC's 11 years.

Only this year, there is an added attraction. The conference champion has an automatic berth in the NCAA Division I-AA Playoffs.

The game in Orangeburg, S.C., had been billed as the "championship game," and it was played that way. Both teams were undefeated in conference play. S.C. State was the total offense leader, Bethune-Cookman, the defensive leader, and both squads were allowing only ten points per contest. S.C. State opened the scoring early in the second quarter when quarterback Ben Mungin scampered nine-yards and Alex Gardner kicked the extra point.

Dennis Daniels kicked a 22-yard field goal and a 46-yarder late in the quarter to close the gap to 7-6 at halftime. The defense continued to shine, and the only second half scoring was a 21-yard field goal by Gardner in the third quarter.

S.C. State held the Wildcats to 72-yards passing and 12 rushing on 35 attempts. Bethune-Cookman's defense allowed the Bulldogs 89 rushing yards and 41 passing.

In Greensboro, Florida A&M, still with a chance at the title had S.C. State lost, shut NC A&T down, and beat them 19-2.

FAMU's defense gave up just 62-yards rushing. Offensively, Charles Bevel scored on a 53-yard second-quarter run, and then kicked the extra point. The Rattlers then got fourth quarter touchdown runs by Emery Collier, 25-yards, and Curtis Burns, seven yards.

A&T avoided the shutout with a safety and just 4:38 left to play.

Delaware State scored first against Salisbury State in the initial period when Johnny Rowe scored on a one-yard run, and Bob Swoope kicked the extra. However, Salisbury tied the game in the second period with a scoring pass and went on to win 13-7 after a 37-yard run in the third quarter.

McKinley thought Leon Byrd's return would ease the losses, but teams have been running with success on the Aggies. Byrd has played outstandingly, but I think they miss the departing players. The record speaks for itself.

McKinley lost only one linebacker in Frankie Chesson, who was twice named All-MEAC and was voted the team's Best Defensive Player in 1980.

McKinley said Dave Peterson was just as good as Chesson before the season began. Peterson has looked good in many games this year, but he's not Frankie Chesson.

The Aggies lost two members, Joe Clyburn and Eric Westbrook, off their secondary. Clyburn was tied in the MEAC in interceptions with five, and Westbrook picked off four passes; Clyburn and Westbrook had nine.

Kevin Robinson currently leads the MEAC with seven interceptions, and support has been given by Perry Foggies and freshman Tim Williams.

The secondary has been steadily improving, but that can't help its present 3-6 record.

McKinley has the nucleus of his team returning in 1982. Let's forget the 1981 football season in Aggiland and look to 1982. It can't get any worse.

Cafeteria Workers Should Attempt Courtesy

Editor of the Register:

I was appalled at the seemingly "grouchy" attitude displayed by "certain" cafeteria workers Thursday evening.

I realize the fact that they, the cafeteria workers, have to deal with a lot of people, but that's no excuse for not exhibiting some form of courtesy.

Although some students might deserve a "show of discipline," it's not fair to assume everyone does.

I think everyone should work on being a little more courteous and considerate of others, including myself.
