Northwest annexation could lessen A&T student voting

By WALTER BELL
Special to the Register

Annexation to Northwest Greensboro that could lessen the impact of voting by A&T students will be discussed next week by the Greensboro Human Relations Commission.

The commission met to discuss the matter last week, but no one opposing the annexation showed up. Rather than making a decision after hearing only one side, the commission scheduled another meeting for Sept. 8.

It plans to make a decision to support or oppose the annexation at the meeting.

Dr. George Simkins, president of the Greensboro NAACP, said later that there was no one from his group present because the U.S. Justice Department has already ruled that the annexation would dilute the Black vote which is prohibited by Voting Rights Act.

A&T is conducting voter registration on campus.

The commission wants to take a position in the case because the city wants to appeal, said Richard Moore, commission vice chairman.

The proposed annexation area is adjacent to northwest Greensboro. It would increase the white population for Greensboro from 6.5 percent to 67.3 percent and decrease the Black population from 33 percent to 31.1 percent.

Jim Baugh, assistant city manager, said that the annexation would be beneficial to Greensboro because it would open avenues for quality growth.

Baugh also said the number of residents, needing joint water and sewer lines would increase. Eighty-nine percent of the streets in Greensboro would also receive maintenance services badly needed because of revenues from the area, he said.

Other speakers included Donald Gillespie, a white Greensboro citizen, who said the annexation issue is a move by frustrated politicians to keep their positions. He also said it would increase taxes.

Simkins said he is doubtful that he or any representatives from his group would attend the next meeting.

New eating system eliminates Non-student cafeteria abuse

By DEBI McGOUGAN
Staff Writer

In previous years, anyone could literally walk in off the street, say "I forgot my ID card" and eat a meal in F.A. Williams Cafeteria.

This year, students are required to present their meal card at the door.

This prevents non-A&T students from using the facilities.

This year students can have seconds.

And this semester, Food Service Director Calvin Williams says he plans to have special-menu days serving premiere entrees such as steak, shrimp and ribs. On these days students will be given tickets at the door when they present their meal cards. That should take place at least once a week.

Seconds on entrees won't be served on these days, Williams said because items like steak can be costly.

To compensate, he said, the cafeteria will attempt to increase entree portions from the regular 4-5-ounce serving, to as much as 8 ounces.

Another new feature is the daily posting of the next meal's menu on a highly visible Coca Cola billboard.

A few special events have been planned including a pre-dawn meal, Oct. 29, a Thanksgiving dinner and a Christmas party.

Monday, the cafeteria will sponsor a Labor Day picnic in front of the dining hall.

The menu will consist of a regular picnic luncheon with hotdogs, hamburgers, baked beans and watermelon.

It's scheduled to begin at 11 a.m., and students are asked to present their meal cards in order to be served.

A&T Security a certified law enforcement agency

By TERRA SINGLETON
Staff Writer

A&T's security system is not just campus security anymore. It's a certified law enforcement agency.

Its officers can make arrests the same as city police.

The officers became tired of being undermined and not being respected by students, Officer Keith Bridgers said. So they sought means of improvement.

The station has new equipment including its Police Information Network which gives it access to the Department of Motor Vehicles and the National Criminal Information Network.

The officers can find information on criminal history, driver's history or wanted individuals.

They have new uniforms, badges and name tags and a new patrol car.

The agency has various departments such as its Crime Prevention Program and a detective division.

Chief of police is J.O. Williams and director of campus police is J.E. Daughtry.

The staff consists of 23 uniformed officers who are highly-trained in all areas of law. They are available 24 hours for service to the campus and the surrounding community.

Officers' duties include protecting the lives and property of campus and community citizens, and arresting anyone in violation of the law.

They periodically patrol dormitories throughout their eight-hour shifts to deter violation of dormitory regulations.

'Better attitudes would help registration'

By SHEILA HARVEY
Special to the Register

Despite a new computer, students registering at A&T last week faced the usual long lines.

Also, some students complained about an indifferent attitude among Registration and Records staff members.

"I hope that I will never have to experience anything like that again," said a freshman psychology major who asked not to be named. A native of Aurora, she said staff members should be blamed for registration hassles. She added that she thinks that a registration process should be devised that more conducive for students and staff.

Although a new computer system was provided this semester, the lines and the confusion seemed to be worse.

Many of the students signed up for certain classes. But when the computer readouts returned they learned that the classes were closed.

Karen Scott, a sophomore home economics major, said that she thinks the employees working during registration help build up a lot of pressure inflicted on freshmen.

"Registration staff should improve its attitude because it just makes students feel worse," she said.

Several seniors criticized the $20 late registration fee. They said they feel that there should be more concern for the students.

"Sometimes its hard to get your money together to return to school, and when you do you still have to pay extra to try and get an education," said one student.

No one in Registration and Records could be reached for comment.

R.J. Reynolds awards A&T scholarships

Ten A&T students, three from Greensboro, have received $1,000 scholarships after being named R.J. Reynolds Scholars.

The 1982-83 winners from Greensboro are Robert M. Martin Jr., 4105 Queen Beth Drive, an electrical engineering major; Levette Howell, 2109 Drexel Drive, and Sherri L. Penn, 1108 Perkins St., both accounting majors.

Other winners from the School of Business and Economics are Stephanie Proctor, Ruffin, Sharon Richardson, Elizabethtown, and Shaunne N. Thomas, New Bern.

The School of Engineering's scholars are Berdenia P. Walker, Raleigh, Joy D. Teel, Beaufort, Lewis A. Parker, Conetoe, and Darryl A. Dunham, Fayetteville.

To support the scholarship program, A&T has received a grant of $160,000 from the R.J. Reynolds Industries, Inc. The grant is the largest ever received from a North Carolina based corporation.

A $30,000 payment on the grant was made Wednesday to Chancellor Edward Fort by Dr. Marshall B. Bass, vice president of R.J. Reynolds Industries Inc., and is being paid over a period of seven years. At its peak, the scholarship program will support up to 40 students.

A&T's School of Engineering has been nationally accredited by the Accreditation Board for Engineering and Technology, Inc. The school offers undergraduate programs in electrical, mechanical, architectural and industrial engineering, a master of science degree in engineering and master's programs in electrical and industrial engineering.

A&T has been authorized by the Board of Governors to establish a master's degree program in mechanical engineering and a bachelor's degree program in chemical engineering. The school is authorized to plan a B.S. degree program in civil engineering and the M.S. degree in architectural engineering.

A&T's School of Business and Economics is one of only three historically black universities with a nationally accredited undergraduate business program.

You'll need a quarter to dry

By KEITH MATTISON
Special to the Register

There. You've washed all 16 loads of your dirty laundry and they're ready to be dried.

Better hope you've got a quarter handy, because you'll need it to dry your clothes.

Oh you'll get your quarter back; you just need it to start the dryer; that's if you live in Scott or Barbee Halls.

This is an experimental program designed to eliminate non-boarding A&T student use of the laundry facilities.

According to Dr. Jesse E. Marshall, vice chancellor for student affairs, hundreds of dollars are spent on repairing vandalized laundry rooms.

"During the summer, people will break locks, windows and doors in an attempt to get a free wash in the laundry room," he said.

"Now, when they realize that they need to pay, it will deter them from committing vandalism."

Marshall said that laundry fees will not increase, and that having to use quarters is only temporary.

"This is still in the thought process, but hopefully we'll get to the stage where each student will receive a free token which can be used to start the machine," he said.

Another possibility is the use of tickets that could be used in the machines.

The tickets would be distributed at the beginning of each week.

SNEA now accepting new members

The James B. Dudley Chapter of the Student National Education Association (SNEA) is now accepting membership for the 1982-83 school year from all majors.

Interested students are asked to see Estell Harper, SNEA adviser in room 211-213, Hodgin Hall.

Harper said SNEA prepares its members to be qualified teachers by providing additional educational materials and faculty involvement as an opportunity for self-improvement.

As SNEA members, students will help formulate ideas, policies and program activities at the local, state and national levels.

Some of SNEA's objectives include having university involvement in all areas of education, assisting and evaluating various educational programs in the local schools and formulating programs and activities that involve all students.

"This year we hope to work with outside educational activities such as grading programs, testing programs and workshops," Harper said.

This year's officers are Michelle Harrison, president; Julius Moore, vice-president; Pamela Christian, secretary; and Terrie Cooke, treasurer.

The initial meeting will be 6:30 p.m. Sept. 21, in Hodgin Hall Auditorium.

Ice cream will be served.

Air France offers 1983 Youth Fare

Students considering going to Europe between now and the end of June can go for about half the regular economy fare by taking advantage of a new fare being introduced by Air France this fall.

The Youth fare, $629 roundtrip from New York to Paris, is effective Oct. 1-June 25, 1983, and is available to anyone between the ages of 12 and 22 at the time of departure.

The student must stay for a minimum of two weeks, but can stay for a maximum of one year.

Both outbound and return bookings must be made at the time of reservations and ticketing; however, the return portion may be left open for a $50 additional payment. There is also a $50 surcharge for students departing the United States between Dec. 11 and 24.

The special Youth fare is available on all Air France flights departing New York at 7 p.m. weekdays, and all 9:30 p.m. departures except Tuesday and Wednesday.

For more details, ask your travel agent or Air France.

ROTC awards scholarships

By DEBI MCGOUGAN
Staff Writer

Twenty-one ROTC students have been awarded scholarships this year.

The recipients were announced in Campbell Hall Thursday.

The scholarships are four-year, three-year and two-year awards.

To receive a four-year scholarship students are interviewed by ROTC detachments across the country. Selection is made by a board of officers at the Training and Doctrine command in Fort Monroe, Va., and is based on academics, Scholastic Aptitude Test scores and leadership potential.

Three- and two-year awards are given to students interviewed by the A&T Department of Military Science and other faculty members. Students in engineering, nursing, math, chemistry or biology must have at least a 2.5 cumulative average to qualify. Other students must have at least a 2.9.

The scholarships cover tuition, books, lab fees and all other academic supplies, and include a cash living allowance of up to $1,000 per year.

Four-year scholarship winners are Derrick Hood, Wilfred Phillips, Kevin Elmore, Kenneth Fenner, Vann Galloway, Michael Peterson, MARRITA Winbush, Stephanie Proctor, Debra Washington, Sherman Brown and Kenneth Waller.

Three-year winners are Charese Baker, Thomas Melton, Glenn Graham, Wallace Means, Arthur Wooding and Ulysses Johnson.

Two-year winners are Sandra Adams, Todd Gaines, Perry McLeod and Terrance Ross.

Impromptu inspection angers residents

By CASSANDRA STRAUGHN

Special to the Register
Residents of Morrison Hall, angry over an impromptu room inspection, plan to meet with the Director of Housing, Dr. Gwendolyn Kornegay Friday, to discuss the room inspection rules.

The inspection Monday triggered negative reactions throughout the female dormitory.

"The inspection was held to find concealed appliances," said Dormitory Counselor Jacqueline Lindsay. "It is a university policy that no hot plates, toaster ovens, microwaves or crock pots be used inside residence hall rooms."

Several residents of Morrison Hall did not like the way the inspection was held.

Residence hall counselors entered every room in the hall, whether or not occupants were present.

Counselors checked under beds and in closets. Students say this was an invasion of privacy.

"I feel it is unfair to have an unannounced room check, that's why I refuse to let the counselor into my closet," said Marsha Rose a 20 year-old junior psychology major.

"If a lock is on my closet it obviously means what's in there is not open to the public," said Sandra Napper a 19 year-old early childhood education major.

Another major concern was who would be held responsible if something was lost or missing after a room inspection.

Ham radio operators can have an A&T forum

By NANNETTA DURNELL
News Editor

How would you like to communicate with more than 300 countries around the world without paying a cent?

If you would, then join the newly-formed A&T Amateur Radio Club.

"Amateur radio is free and experimental use of short-wave radio to make contact with the United States and international areas," said Steve Goldbert, amateur radio instructor and a visiting electrical engineering faculty member from Hewlett Packer Co. in Palo Alto, Calif.

It will be a new campus organization. An electronics background isn't essential for membership, only an interest in communicating with people around the world.

"Amateur radio is different from citizens band radio. CB has only 40 channels and amateur radio, also known as "ham radio" has an infinite number of channels. You can make telephone calls from your car and communicate with people all over the world from such places as the South Pacific, Russia, Antarctica and the Islands."

The Club will be affiliated with the National Organization for Ham Radio American Relay League.

"Every major engineering school in the United States has an amateur radio club. A&T has not had a club for more than five years. The university will provide the equipment and a station."

According to Debra Derr, program director, the station will feature jazz as well as special programs such as jazz and blues featuring different jazz artists, jazzology, a look at the history of jazz, and jazz focus, a profile on different jazz artists.

There will also be a number of talk shows including "Voice of an Era" produced by the Black United Front, a local political organization.

Poetry and gospel begins Sunday.

Derr said the news department will be under the direction of Gil Harris who will also serve as public affairs director.

'T&A'

Let's call this a belated welcome to the newbies. You've been here about three weeks, organized your priorities and decided what folk you're going to be seen with. Some of you have had your world shattered and your minds blown.

And others of you set about filling in your free time, perhaps via a campus organization.

So, have you decided? Are you going put your God-given talent and ability to work and donate some time and energy co-curricularly. If you have and you are, certainly hope you're serious.

Will you be one the organization's most dedicated and supportive members (and not at academic expense)? Let's hope as much. Because the group has little to no use for you if you refuse to devote the time and interest to its success.

You see, when one joins such an organ, he basically commits himself to serving and contributing to its growth. And when he fails to do that, he's reneged on his promise as a productive group member.

It's all about attitudes. Organizations need talented and able members whose attitudes won't veer off into the apathetic and vindictive. Those attitudes serve no useful function. They benefit no one. They're ugly, childish and they hamper progression.

Upperclassmen: if your names are recorded on various club rosters but feel your organizational participation will become lax, do all involved a favor by gathering your nonchalance and taking it where it will be appreciated.

Newbies: take your lead from nothing seen to date for you have no reputable role models. If you are a talented & able person, and/or have a sincere interest and are a productive individual, you are needed.

'Should I? Shouldn't I?'

By Nannetta Durnell

Labor Day weekend was not planned with the average college student in mind. Maybe that is why many colleges and universities register their fall semester students after the holiday.

Aggies have a tough decision to make with this being the last summer holiday and first school break from classes.

"Should I catch up on my school work and get a jump on my classes this weekend or should I participate in the weekend's activities such as barbecues, family reunions, parties, and, of course, catching up on sleep?"

Most Americans look forward to the relaxation and fun of a holiday.

But as college students, be forewarned this weekend of friends in devilish disguises that taunt you and say, "All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy."

When temptation strikes, you can either surrender to it and enjoy what is rightfully yours or you can try to kill two birds with one stone.

Or you can be the model student who plans ahead of time by getting your studies out of the way and living the weekend to its fullest without having to hear that little voice in the back of your mind say, "You should be studying, You should be studying."

Remember, the weekend is yours--so is the decision.

Off the yard

By Audrey L. Williams

On-campus housing, believe it or not, has its advantages.

When you start to feel that you just can't cope with campus life, think about the poor souls who are managing apartments on their own.

Now being independent and managing on your own is fine if you can swing it, but there are many who can testify that living off-campus is a big step!

It is a wonder that these students have time for anything, what with carrying an average 15-hour course load, working an eight-hour job and studying.

Not only do they have to manage such a hectic schedule, but the bills never fail to come in on time.

Ever been inside the refrigerator of an off-campus student? Don't bother there's nothing inside.

Not only are on-campus students "fortunate" but the least of your worries is looking the landlord in the face at the end of the month and wondering when did the month end!

Being independent is nice but one must realize the pressures and headaches that accompany it. If you fail there's always that risk of someone standing over your shoulder saying, "I told you so."

So the next time you think that campus life is invading your privacy or just becoming a drag, think about the off-campus student who wishes he were in your place.

A salute goes out to those courageous warriors of off-campus housing, they deserve it.

Coaches discuss MEAC season

"After listening to the coaches here, I'm a little sick," said A&T rookie Football Coach Mo Forte at the annual MEAC football press conference here.

"However, it is an honor to join the MEAC family. It is a pleasure to be in such an accomplished conference."

Forte's team was picked to finish sixth in the conference by the media that covers MEAC.

For the second year in a row, S.C. State College was selected to win the MEAC.

The defending champion team accumulated 76 points out of a possible 80. Florida A&M University was picked to finish second with 68 points. Howard University was predicted third with 38 points, Bethune-Cookman College a close fourth with 36. Delaware State College and A&T were picked to finish fifth and sixth with 16 and 14 points respectively.

More bad news for Forte, his team was picked no higher by the conference prognosticators comprised of MEAC head coaches, sports information directors, and the conference office, had picked FAMU over S.C. State earlier, and the other four places were the same as the media choices.

"Bill Davis, (S.C. State's head coach), said that he is looking for a second quarterback, I'm just looking for a quarterback," Forte said.

"We just want to go out and win. We have a few goals in mind, but coming in so late, there's not a lot I can say. We had only 16 days of spring practice and the recruiting was completed before I arrived.

Forte said A&T does not have a lot of players returning, but defensive tackle Leon Byrd and defensive back Perry Foggie, had an excellent spring. We also have Mike Peppers, a linebacker is doing well in practice, Forte said.

On offense, tailback Waymon Pitts (5-6 160 pounds), who rushed for 559 yards last season in six games, should have a good season, Forte said.

"He has the quickness, the speed, and the athletic ability, but he is still in the growing stage," Forte said.

The Aggies do not have any returning offensive linemen or tight ends nor any big and fast wide receivers.

"However, we are looking to accomplish some goals which are realistic," Forte said. "What we are trying to do is develop a winning attitude at A&T to go along with the academics that A&T projects throughout the country. We are looking for a winning attitude from the players we do have, and we want to instill some discipline.

"We want them to feel that they can do something to become champions of the future. I don't know of any coach who goes into a game believing that he is going to lose that game. It goes against all principles of leadership and being a competitor.

"On the other hand, you have to be a realist. After listening here, we know it's going to be a long shot, and whoever made up the MEAC rankings knew it was going to be a long shot. We are going to mess around a little bit, and see what we come up with."

Howard's head coach Floyd Keith was extremely optimistic about his returning team.

"Our problems in the past have always been the fact that we had to look up in the stands in order to find a good football player," Keith said.

"This year I feel pretty good because we are not in that situation."

Keith said that Howard has improved its kicking game with the addition of Duke Mayo, who was recruited from the soccer team and John Nicholaisen, a top recruit from Norway.

At wide receiver, Tracy Singleton, last season's MEAC player of the year, is returning.

Howard recruited four quarterbacks, but also has starter Sandy Nichols, who led the MEAC in total yards last season, and backup Brian Sloane returning.

Returning on the offensive line are John Bilberry, a two-time All-Conference performer, Steve Alsbrooks and Tim Robinson.

"Our defense has been a sore spot for us in the past," Keith said, "but this year we have nine starters returning, so we should improve. A couple of people to watch in the secondary are Robert Forte and Doug Jones. We also have two outstanding linebackers in Martin Brown and Robert Sellers."

"Overall, if we stay healthy, we will be able to maintain the performance we have had the past two years, and we had a solid recruiting year," Keith said.

S.C. State Coach Davis said he hopes for a season as good as last year.

"I was fortunate last year to have good coaching and good football players," Davis said. "We lost some good people both offensively and defensively. The secondary returns just one starter from last year. The top returning people on our offensive unit are Desmond Gatson at quarterback, Larry Warren at center, and backs Henry Odom and Anthony Reed.

"With Odom, Reed and Gatson in the backfield, we have plenty of speed. I think the slowest one runs about a 4.6 forty."

Odum has scored 25 touchdowns in the last two years, and made the All-MEAC squad in 1980. Gatson was a member of the 1981 All-MEAC Team. Also returning are Larry Warren, a three-year repeater and Anthony Reed a Kodak All-American. Pre-season All-American end Dwayne Jackson, and defensive tackle John Courtney should lead the defense, Davis said.

"Things look very promising in this area, but I'm concerned about depth," he said. "Our linebacker corps returns in tack, and Barney Bussey, who I feel is the best defensive back in the country, should help us tremendously. He is one of the best open-field tacklers in the ball club, and I get excited just watching him.

"Al Gardner should handle the kicking chores for us. We had a successful recruiting year as far as size goes, but in terms of ability, we cannot make any judgement," Davis said.

Coach Joe Purzycki of Delaware State noted that his team opens its season against S.C. State, and then plays Florida A&M.

"Everybody says it's great that we play them at home this year," he said, "however, I don't know if that's good or bad. I have tremendous respect for both of those teams, as well as the others in the conference.

Eight of Delaware State's games last year were decided by a touchdown or less, Purzycki said.

"I am a realist. I don't think we are ready to win the conference, but I am also a dreamer, so I like to think that we can.

"Our strengths have got to be in our offense, although we were a little anemic last year. We didn't score the points we wanted, but we think we have some quality players in that group. We have a great running back in Johnny Rowe, an All-MEAC selectee. Rowe is not the type of kid who will electrify the crowd, he is just an excellent football player," he said.

Greyhound has student tips

Greyhound Bus lines offers some basic shipping tips for students traveling to school by bus.

Always put identification stickers or tags on the inside and outside of your bags and write on boxes with a felt-tip marker. Also, prominently mark the outside if the contents are fragile or perishable.

Remove all old destination tags so they don't mislead baggage handlers.

Make sure your belongings are properly packed. For fragile items, use air bull plastic sheets, styrofoam sheets or pellets, molded plastic or specially designed creped wadding products. Crumpled newspaper, clothing or linens do not provide adequate protection.

Check footlockers, bicycles and extra baggage at least an hour before your bus departs.

If you are sending your belongs on ahead, arrange to have them picked up at the destination. Greyhound allows two suitcases per adult passenger for free.

No matter how you travel, never store valuables or medication in your luggage. Keep them in your personal bag. And never store breakable or fragile radios and cameras in luggage.

Even bicycles, skis, footlockers and similar gear will fit in the large baggage compartment on Greyhound buses. Bicycles must be in a box that does not exceed 8 feet by 32 inches by 60 inches. Most bicycle shops can provide suitable boxes. The wheels, handle bars and pedals will have to be detached to fit in the box.

Footlockers should be securely padlocked. Greyhound handles packages with a maximum weight of 100 pounds each. Except for bicycles and skis, the total length, width and height dimensions of a package cannot exceed 141 inches, with the longest measurement being 60 inches.

Orby Z. Moss Jr. has been hired as A&T's new athletic director effective Sept. 15.

Moss resigned from a similar position at the University of the District of Columbia. He is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin-LaCrosse, with a bachelor of science degree and a masters from Winona State.

When Darwin Valentine left A&T last spring to join the ranks of Prairie View A&M University in Texas, he took the best recruits and left A&T with untested talent, according to Craig Raye, recruiting coordinating.

"Many of the spring signees have either quit the team or they never showed up," he added.

Valentine, who manned recruiting efforts during McKinley's reign, caused the Athletic Department to lose thousands of dollars.

Raye said he believes that Valentine recruited two athletes at the position sending the better one to Texas and McKinley, whom he would later join.

"About five out of the 16 players showed any promise. I don't see what he could have told some of these guys to make them believe that they could play college ball," he said.

When A&T's new coaching staff came in last spring, it had little time to do any recruiting.

"I think we had about two weeks," Raye said. "And that's not a whole lot of time to recruit athletes."

Things may be going bad for Raye and the rest of the coaches, but he believes in winning and thinks A&T will surprise a lot of people.

For a team predicted by every prognosis to finish in the cellar of the MEAC, A&T can look forward to a long season.

Head Coach Mo Forte continued to lose players through ineligibility this week.

Some players who were expected to play this year have joined the staff as "special assistant" coaches, including former All-MEAC Corey Junkins.

Two players who started in high school for Coach Craig Raye will again start for the former Henry Ford High School coach. They are Marion Haygood, offensive guard, and Kenneth Brown, center.

James "Frog" Williams has been released by the Baltimore Colts of the National Football League. A defensive end, Williams played out his eligibility at A&T last year and was drafted by the St. Louis Cardinals in the 11th round. The Colts picked him up when he was waived by the Cards.

South Carolina State University, predicted to win the MEAC, will tuneup for a Sept. 18 date with A&T when it hosts Eastern Kentucky Saturday.

The volleyball team may have to cancel its Sept. 13 match against Guilford College. The team does not have a coach.

Assistant Football Coach Raye and Head Basketball Coach Don Corbett will meet next week to discuss the possibilities of attaining a prize recruit from Detroit, Mich.

Eric Jackson, 6 feet 11 inches, will graduate this year from Henry Ford High School where Raye once coached football.

"He is the best blocker on the team, has incredible balance, is very durable, and our success depends on him," Purzycki said.

But, he's unsure of his team's quarterback situation. The starter left school, he said, however, two veterans, Rod Lester and Kevin Samuels return.

Defensively, the team will be inexperienced except for pro prospects Victor Heflin, a defensive back and captain Anthony Sharpe, an end.

"We will go with about six sophomores on defense," he said.

"Our kicking game was boosted by late recruit Everett Morgan, who holds the state high school field goal record of 57 yards," he said.

"We think we have an excellent punter in David Wheeler. We figure our poor kicking game last year cost us 30 yards per game.

"As far as how we think we will do this year, we expect to be an improved football team. We need to win early to be able to have a winning season.

Rudy Hubbard of Florida A&M said his team's outlook is positive.

"On defense, we should be outstanding," he said. "At noseguard we'll have R.C. Eason, a squat guy (5-11, 240), who is a pre-season All-American and believes he's the best player on the field and tries to convince other people the same.

"Our ends will be manned by seniors Alonzo Johnson and Tony Hayes. Dorsey Hutchinson is one of our more underrated players at cornerback, but we feel he will solidify our defense.

"Offensively, our best player is Ray Alexander, a wide receiver who has great hands and the ability to get open and catch the football. Our quarterback Billy Koonce returns, and he has the potential to be just outstanding.

"Tailback Frank Middleton is back with his great running ability, but we're just trying to get him to do other things well, like catching the ball and blocking."

Hubbard said Nathaniel Newton, the top offensive lineman had an outstanding spring.

"Negatively, one area is the kicking game and the other is the offensive line," he said. "We were not the dominant force we needed to be last year. We came on late, but we still didn't do as many things that would make me feel as confident as I'd like."

Bethune-Cookman's coach Bobby Frazier was not present but sent a statement.

He said that the temptation to call this a rebuilding year is overwhelming.

"However, I believe we can overcome the loss of some key players and surprise everyone with a very successful season," he said.

B-CC plans to go into each game with expecting to win, he said.

Frazier added that he is optimistic about the talent at he has at B-CC, yet on paper he is not fielding a team which should be a contender for the MEAC championship.

Winner Of Jesse Owens International Amateur Athlete Awards Announced

Winner of four Olympic golds, Jesse Owens.

Evelyn Ashford

Winner of award, Sebastian Coe.

Jesse Owens Trophy Award

Edwin Moses

When most Americans think of Jesse Owens, they remember a man who was a superb example of the spirit of athletic achievement and comradeship among nations. It seems fitting, then, that a prestigious award to amateur athletes should bear his name.

The first amateur athlete to be so honored was Sebastian Coe of Great Britain, the world's fastest at the classic distances of 800 meters, 1,000 meters and the mile.

The 25-year-old student of social history and economics surged to a rush of 50 first-place votes with the five continent blue ribbon jury. Coe easily outdistanced Edwin Moses, America's top 400 meters hurdler, who was runner up with six firsts. In third place was Evelyn Ashford, the U.S.A.'s peak women's sprinter, who had the same number of firsts but was outscored on second votes 26 to 9 by Moses.

Interestingly, Jesse Owens once told Herb Douglas, vice president of Schieffelin & Co., importers of Hennessy Cognac, and founder of the Award, to "pursue track and strive for your Olympic teams, but stay in school and get a good education. Track was only a means to an end." Douglas kept this in mind. As a result, Schieffelin & Co. has become the original corporate sponsor of this event.

Other finalists in the competition to memorialize the name of Jesse Owens were Mary T. Meagher, No. 1 swimming star of the U.S., who was fourth, and Olga Bicherova of the Soviet Union, women's all-around gymnastic performer, who was fifth. They each received one first place vote.
