MEAC Actively expanding membership

By RICHARD WILLIAMS
Sports Editor

The Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference is actively looking to expand its membership of predominately Black institutions from the current seven to as many as ten schools, MEAC Commissioner Ken Free said.

Free, the first full-time commissioner of the conference, said it is "an on-going process to increase its membership to a minimum of eight to ten team."

"We will be trying to expand from now on," he said. "At this particular time we would like to have a minimum of eight to ten teams."

The commissioner has unsuccessfully sent requests to schools belonging to the Central Intercollegiate Athletic Association conference. He alluded to Virginia State and Norfolk State universities, both predominantly Black schools located in Virginia.

"It would be nice to have a team in Virginia and in Georgia, too," he said.

If a CIAA school, which belongs to Division II, would join the MEAC, Division I, it could possibly add as much as $600,000 to the already successful conference. The additions would allow for more interest to rivalries and more regional televised coverage.

The entire conference benefits when one of its members is on television.

But broadcast stations will not show games between Division I and Division II teams (i.e. A&T vs. Winston-Salem State University) because of the differential of revenue allotted to the two divisions.

Free said ABC and CBS television stations will pay the MEAC $600,000 for a regionally televised game, to be divided into shares with all conference members and the majority going to participating teams.

A Division I school would receive only $15,000, all going to the conference itself.

"It's really hard to compare the two leagues," Free said. "The CIAA is one of the forerunners of intercollegiate athletics. We are the new kid on the block," he said of the conference, which was formed in 1970 with seven members.

We have a good understanding with the CIAA. They're much older than we are (it began in 1914 as the Colored Intercollegiate Athletic Association), but we operate basically the same."

When asked if the MEAC now had an identity, he replied, "I think so, of course."

Room inspections to be routine

By PENNY TAYLOR
Staff Writer

Despite protests from female students, their dormitories will be routinely inspected without notice said Housing Operations directors Dr. Judge Kornegay.

"This policy will allow us to set up a trend that states: 'we are not going to allow certain things to go on anymore,'" he said.

"Last year this policy was unorganized and not enforced," he continued. The policy is designed to prevent cooking in the rooms which he said is "dangerous and illegal."

But many female students were outraged by an unannounced inspection at the beginning of the semester. Some complained that it was an invasion of privacy and unfair.

They held a meeting with Kornegay, hoping to have the inspections stopped. Instead, Kornegay said that counselors have the right to check students' rooms--whether they are in or not.

"I do not expect anyone under my supervision to steal anything," he said.

The counselors check for unauthorized items such as hot plates, crock pots, toaster and microwave ovens.

Because the policy was not enforced last year, Kornegay said there were numerous complaints of insects in the rooms, (spiders, roaches, ants, crickets and water-bugs), clogged sinks--due to food that was stuck in the pipes, and an increase in the amount of garbage in the bathrooms.

Kornegay said he believes that the room inspections should be announced. However, "When most students learn of the coming inspection, they will merely shift the equipment out of sight."

Attendance policy remains unchanged

By KAREN LEGGETT
Staff Writer

The School of Arts and Sciences decided not to change its policy of non-compulsory attendance, however, it did agree to establish competency requirements for its majors.

The Academic Policy Committee held a series of meetings to discuss the class attendance policy and competency testing the 1981-82 academic school year.

The meetings were prompted by the General Education Committee, which suggested reforms to improve general education in the School of Arts and Sciences said Dr. T. Hall Partrick, policy committee chairman.

Partrick's committee presented a minimum compulsory attendance policy to the Arts and Sciences faculty in a meeting last spring.

"The faculty wanted further discussion," he said. "The voting was postponed until Sept. 8."

The faculty rejected the proposal at its September meeting.

Partrick said the policy might have been adopted had amendments been allowed.

The school, however, did agree to establish minimum competencies in language and math that students must meet before being allowed to concentrate in a major.

Social Security student benefits continue

Social Security benefits to students 18-22, which were stopped last May, will begin with the September check, which will be issued in early October, a Social Security spokesperson said recently.

In addition, the amount of the September checks will be about 25 percent lower than they were last spring. These changes are the result of a new law that went into effect this year, the representative said.

Students will receive a "beginning of school year" report during the first weeks of the fall term. The report asks about school attendance and work. The student should complete the top part of the form and then give it to the school registrar to complete and mail to Social Security.

If the report is not completed and returned promptly, benefits may be stopped. Students should also remember that their benefits may be affected if they worked during the year and have earned more than $4,440 this year or expect to earn more than that amount by the end of the year. Earnings a student had during months he or she did not receive benefits count toward this limit.

In general, $1 in benefits is withheld for each $2 of earnings above $4,440.

Benefits to students 18-22 who are still eligible will continue until they reach 22 or April 1985, whichever comes first.

People now becoming eligible for benefits can receive benefits until age 19 as long as they are full-time high school students.

More information about Social Security benefits for students can be obtained at any Social Security office. The address and telephone number of the nearest Social Security office can be found in the telephone directory.

VA suggests ways to avoid student payment delays

The Veterans Administration has some suggestions to help students avoid delays in their VA education payments.

Every month 600,000 VA checks worth more than $200 million are mailed to veteran students and to eligible dependents, and the agency wants to do everything possible to avoid delays.

In an attempt to avoid possible delays, the VA suggests the following:

When a student feels the initial payment for the school term has been delayed, he or she should check with the school to find out the date the enrollment certificate was sent to the VA. At least four weeks should be allowed from that date before an education check can be expected.

If an advance payment check is expected, the student should make sure the required written request was signed. The specific request for the advance money should have been submitted to VA at least a month before the beginning of the semester.

Students who have gotten education benefits in the past should consider whether an overpayment is outstanding. If an overpayment exists, current benefits are withheld until the VA recovers the overpayment.

For further information on possible education payment delays contact the nearest VA regional office. Toll-free numbers are listed in the white pages of the telephone book under "U.S. Government."

Reggae gets cutback at WNAA

By GINA DAVIS

Special to the Register

Listeners of Reggae music are disappointed about the recent cutback in Reggae on WNAA, 90.5.

Reggae, Jamican music made popular by the late Bob Marley, originated mainly for Blacks with lyrics that speak of today's Black problems.

Reggae was once heard on WNAA for eight hours every weekend. It was recently cut back by two hour.

Shawnette Bean, a junior in early childhood education said, "it is very unnecessary. Reggae is music with a message and I enjoy it."

"The only chance," Bean continued, "I get to hear Reggae," Bean continued "is on WNAA. WQMG has reggae, but it's commercialized--not to mention old."

Shannon Simmons, a senior majoring in electrical engineering said "I'm a bit disappointed, to say the least." He said that "with the new program director and the 24-hour jazz format," they are probably "trying to stay within their guidelines."

"WNAA is the only station where I get to hear reggae in Greensboro," he added. "To me the cutback is a definite disadvantage. Reggae is the only music I really prefer and I looked forward to those eight hours."

A senior industrial technology major who asked that his name not be used said, "I looked forward to reggae weekend mornings. There was no way I could miss it. I was able to wake up, flick on my radio and there is the dub."

"I enjoyed the eight hours, because the reggae or WNAA is new, more progressive and in great abundance," he continued. "(W)QMG's Reggae is stale."

"The gospel is fine, after all it is Sunday, but don't cut the reggae, put the jazz back two hours," he said.

A WNAA Reggae air personality Caroldey Douglas, a senior majoring in Agriculture said "the cutback is just for this period. "We have a new program director who is just getting her bearings."

"Coming from Bermuda," she continued, "I know most Americans don't see Reggae as I do. They don't hear the message in it."

"WNAA's Reggae has meaning, lyrics that keep you in tune with third-world issues."

It's only a matter of time before the hours are back, she said.

Choir Performs First Concert Sunday

Show a joint performance with St. Stephen Choir

The University Choir will open its concert series 6 p.m. Sept. 26, in a joint performance with the St. Stephen Choir at St. Stephen United Methodist Church on Gorrell Street.

The choir is off to an excellent start. It's composed of a good group of students; the best ever, musically, intellectually and otherwise.

A special feature of Sunday's performance will be Listen to the Lambs, performed in memory of the Centennial Celebration of the birth of R. Nathaniel Dett, a prominent Black musician whose career reached fruition and success while at Bennett College and Provident Baptist Church.

Everyone is invited to come and support these talented young artists.

Blacks in the military

A recent study on Blacks in the military says that the number of Black soldiers is disproportionate with white enlistees.

The Washington, D.C.-based Brookings Institute report places the number of Black military personnel at 33 percent.

The white percentage is at 22 percent.

This includes all branches of the military.

High unemployment has caused the upsurge in Black soldiers--a phenomenon called the "poverty draft."

The result is a plethora of new enlistees that represent 42 percent of all Black men.

The study also projects a disproportionate number of Blacks considered eligible for combat duty, and the number of Black casualties on the front line.

That projection is supported by a Defense Department report which says that 57,000 American soldiers died in Vietnam. Of that number, 7,200 or 13 percent were Black.

And even more alarming is the fact that the period includes the years between 1961 and 1968 when Black soldiers composed 11 percent of the Army's enlisted men.

This is no chance happening; it's by design.

American conversation today centers largely around economics: budgets, cutbacks, slashes, trickling down, truly needy, tax brackets, hikes, and other jargon.

It became popular in 1980 and probably has passed baseball as the American pastime.

The present presidential administration by design is beefing up the armed forces with the Black unemployed and destitute.

Massacre

Over the weekend most of you were leisurely enjoying the pleasures of Saturday and Sunday with your most important worry probably the test this week or how to maneuver that someone special in your arms.

But while you faced these trying dilemmas, there were other people in another part of the world facing an even more trying one.

Hundreds of Lebanese refugees Thursday were slaughtered as they sought safety in refugee camps set up by the Israeli government.

Men, women and children were gunned down in front of firing squads. It is unclear why these people were victims of a mass killing, total families being wiped out in seconds by machine guns and bulldozers.

In Associated Press photos, scenes of grieving mothers, mangled bodies and children covered with blood were horrifying.

Although several groups have laid claim to the massacre, the so-called "Christian" Militia has been partially blamed for the tragedy.

Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin said the Israeli government is not to blame.

But why and how did it happen in refugee camps set up by Israel? How did some 1,200 to 1,400 murderers slip by Israeli command posts and detection radar and kill hundreds for three days? Why didn't someone come to the rescue of these people?

The U.S. government is looking into the slayings to determine who is responsible. If it is discovered that the Israelis did indeed have a hand in it, it is time the American government revised its arms policy of supplying weapons to Israel!

Let's hope that the culprits of this senseless tragedy are revealed and brought to justice immediately.

Be not dismayed

F-I-G-H-T! Everyone likes a good old-fashioned spirited pep rally. But in today's world of sophistication, it is not easy for cheerleaders to get students to let loose their inhibitions and get involved in the school spirit.

Fortunately, that was not the case at Thursday's pep rally.

More than 1000 students, it seemed, from as far as Barbee Hall and as near as Haley Hall, participated in the pep rally.

And Chancellor Edward B. Fort led the cheers along with Coach Mo Forte, SGA President Bobby Hopkins and Miss A&T Robin Davis.

Highlighting the pep rally was a humorous mock football game between the A&T cheerleaders, who represented the S.C. State Bulldogs and female members of the Aggie Pep Club, representing the Aggie football team.

In the outcome of the mock game the Aggies won. At Saturday's game in Aggie Stadium, the Aggies were defeated 27-6.

But be not dismayed. The fellows gave it all they had and will need the spirited support of the student body in order to regain that momentum needed for a winning team.

Remember, although A&T did 'lose' Saturday's game, students should not 'lose' their school spirit.

Blood Drive Results

Editor of the Register:

The Army ROTC program would like to thank the campus community for its support during the Sept. 9 blood drive.

Thanks to the many participants, the goal of 160 pints was surpassed by 45 pints.

There were 57 first-time donors and 148 veteran donors.

The organization donating the most blood according to its membership was the Persing Rifles with 85 percent participation.

They will be awarded $100 by Loretta LeGrand, AFROTC secretary, Oct. 4.

Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity Inc. will also receive $100 from the spring 1982 blood drive, simultaneously.

Once again we thank you for your support and look forward to seeing you again during the spring semester blood drive.

Cadet Captain Vallerie Pringle

Players of the Week

Nathaniel Koonce of Florida A&M University has been named Mid-Eastern Athletic Association Offensive Player of the Week for his performance in the 39-23 win over Delaware State University.

Koonce, a 6-foot-2-inch, 185-pound quarterback, completed nine of 19 passes for 299 yards, and threw four touchdown bombs covering 23, 27, 54 and 64 yards.

Koonce is a senior from Miami, Fla.

Marion Drummond of S.C. State University, a tackle moved to center in the 27-6 victory over A&T, is MEAC Offensive Player of the Week.

Drummond keyed the Bulldog blocking which accounted for 237 yards rushing, and graded out more than 90 percent on the game film.

He is a junior from Spartanburg, S.C.

Al Washington of Bethune-Cookman College is the MEAC Defensive Player of the Week for his play in the 19-9 win over Howard University.

Washington, a 6-foot-2-inch, 215-pound linebacker, recorded six solo tackles and 10 assisted tackles in the contest.

He is a senior from Chicago, Ill.

A world of opportunity awaits those graduates who choose to enter careers at the National Security Agency. From the very outset they will influence the growth and direction of their fields of specialization. They will work in a challenging and stimulating environment where matters affecting the security of the nation are part of our day to day activity.

You too can experience this world of opportunity and challenge in any of these NSA career fields:

Electronic Engineering: There are opportunities in a variety of research and development projects ranging from individual equipments to very complex interactive systems involving large numbers of microprocessors, mini-computers and computer graphics. Professional growth is enhanced through interaction with highly experienced NSA professionals and through contacts in the industrial and academic worlds. Facilities for engineering analysis and design automation are among the best available.

Computer Science: At NSA you'll discover one of the largest computer installations in the world with almost every major vendor of computer equipment represented. NSA careers provide mixtures of such disciplines as systems analysis and design, scientific applications programming, data base management systems, operating systems, computer networking/security, and graphics.

Mathematics: You'll work on diverse agency problems applying a variety of mathematical disciplines. Specific assignments might include solving communications-related problems, performing long-range mathematical research or evaluating new techniques for communications security.

The Rewards at NSA

NSA offers a salary and benefit program that's truly competitive with private industry. There are assignments for those who wish to travel and abundant good living in the Baltimore-Washington area for those who wish to stay close to home.

Countless cultural, historical, recreational and educational opportunities are just minutes away from NSA's convenient suburban location.

To find out more about NSA career opportunities, schedule an interview through your college placement office. For additional information on the National Security Agency, write to Mr. William Shores, College Recruitment Officer.

The Open Gate

By RICHARD WILLIAMS

Last Saturday was an interesting day in Aggieland. Beginning with much warmth and brightness, it would soon become hopeless and dim for Aggie gridiron performers.

S.C. State University was in town for the annual Aggie-Bulldog showdown, hungry for a victory that they would not be denied.

The rain came later that night but it seemed as if A&T played under a cloud all afternoon as the Bulldog front four dominated the line of scrimmage all game against a young A&T offensive line. But A&T did manage to strike first when Keith James ran to the right side for an early 6-0 lead.

A&T, who was searching for its first victory, found out that when it rains it pours. Sixteen seconds later, following James' touchdown, Barney Bussey set a new Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference record when he returned a kickoff 101 yards.

When a famous writer wrote: "These are the times that try men's souls," he undoubtedly had Aggie Football '82 in mind.

Can A&T hang in there and keep its head high and show what makes an Aggie an Aggie?

Will the followers along the Open Gate continue to exhort that good old Aggie Spirit and continue to support the team when it needs a lift most?

Those are questions one should consider before he knocks the team. He should ask himself if he's doing his part before getting on team members' backs for doing the best job they can do.

Aggies host Wildcats

The Aggies should get untracked Saturday when Bethune-Cookman College comes to town. After a 0-2 beginning, it's unnecessary to push the panic button, but it is apparent that some offensive changes need to be made.

Alvin Grier could be a bigger help to A&T's cause if he wasn't saved until the last minute for heroics. Also, it would be a help to the team if Danny Thomas' talents were used in the backfield, his natural position, instead of at flanker.

The Open Gate received a lot fanfare for its prediction that A&T would defeat S.C. State by five last week. The Open Gate will again go out on a limb by calling A&T over B-CC in a close, well-played game by 3.

Volleyball

Talk about being serious Aggies.

The women's volleyball team is a serious group of women who play a serious game of volleyball.

During practice it's all work and no play. Before having a few scrimmage games the players stretch out their muscles to no end.

It may look easy hitting a ball back and forth over the net, but it's not. It's a lot of hard work.

This season the volleyball team is young with three returning veterans.

Third-year veteran Juliette Bowden said she feels that the team has a lot of talent and that this could be a promising year.

Rookie Rena Schnieder said she feels that they have a good team but it needs to learn to play together.

Rookie Donna Scalesgood "we have a very good choice of spikers and our offense is strong. But our defense is sort of weak and we need to adjust to playing with each other and get to know each other's style."

Contest satiates S.C. hunger

By RICHARD WILLIAMS
Sports Editor

For the second consecutive week, A&T's offense failed to show up and the defense was forced, in vain, to contain a determined team.

The visiting S.C. State Bulldogs, hungry for a victory Saturday, after a 0-2 start, came from a brief 6-0 deficit to defeat the Aggies 27-6 in their home-opener.

Their first score was a 100-yard kickoff return.

A&T Head Football Coach Mo Forte again was forced to watch a dismal performance by his offense and star tailback Waymon Pitts, who gained only 22 yards in nine carries.

An opportunity for A&T to regain the lead was a fiasco when fullback Truck Ruffin was stopped on fourth and goal from the two-yard line.

A&T's only touchdown was set up when lineman Herbert Dixon blocked a punt, caught it in mid-air and ran the ball 22 yards to the Bulldog 21.

Pitts, on his best run of the afternoon, turned right end for 14 yards on first down. Quarterback Keith James then faked to Ruffin and advanced the ball to the one.

Three plays later, James rounded the right corner for the touchdown dragging a Bulldog defender with him for a 6-0 Aggie lead. A lead that A&T would keep only briefly.

On S.C. State's next possession, Barney Bussey gave the game new meaning.

Bussey, standing on the goal line awaiting the kickoff, gathered the ball one yard deep in the end zone. He broke to the right side of the field, turned back to the middle and out ran all the Aggie pursuers for a touchdown.

The 7-6 Bulldog lead came just 15 seconds after A&T's score and with 6:47 left in the first period.

James marched the Aggies back down field with key passes to Pitts and flanker Maurice Montgomery. It was all for naught as S.C. State's defense bogged down to stop Ruffin on fourth down.

That was the turning point.

"We're not big enough to muscle them out time after time," Forte said. "And you can't pass, pass and pass. You've got to be able to run."

A&T tried desperately but could not muster any ground game against the much bigger state defense.

"I wouldn't call what happened today a classic," said S.C. State Coach Bill Davis, "but a victory is a victory and that's something we needed."

"Our execution wasn't what it should have been, and we simply took control because of our strength and experience." Davis said the kickoff return was the one thing that got them started.

"The goal line stand then gave us another boost. After two losses to begin the season, you take a win anyway you can get it."

S.C. State quarterback Desmon Gatson of Greensboro pointed to the win as "one we needed."

"Penalties hurt at times," he said. "We played just well enough to win, but I'm happy with the ending."

He scored the second Bulldog touchdown making the score 14-6 at the half.

Running Back Darrell McAllister tortured the Aggies all afternoon as he picked his way through a porous A&T defense for 140 yards.

Eventually, the Bulldogs would score a third touchdown on reserve tailback Frank Darby's one-yard plunge. Place-kicker Al Gardner added field goals of 18 and 31 yards out. "We never got on track in the second half," Forte said. "The jury is still out on the quarterback situation."

It's been there and we are going to continue to build upon it. We have drawing cards in conference rivals Howard-Delaware State and A&T-S.C. State. One of our best drawings though is Florida A&M-Bethune-Cookman."

While the CIAA's football program is not with the MEAC's, it has a successful basketball tournament. But because it is Division II, it cannot compete for the national championship.

"The MEAC, operating as a Division I school, automatically receives a post-season playoff berth.

The two years a berth has been extended, neither representative has made it beyond the first round.

"No, we haven't done well in the NCAA. I think we have a long way to go. In basketball, I've noticed that all new members struggle for the first five years or so. But on a given night we (A&T and Howard) could beat anybody."

Free was asked what he considered as being the chances of such a youthful conference surviving in today's economy.

"The future for us is great. It is as good as we want it to be. I think in today's economy people are looking to be entertained closer to their homes. Intercollegiate Athletics offers just that."

said that more than any other team, they have the greatest desire to play despite all obstacles they face. They stick together as a team and that's why they're going to win, she said.

With new and old talent, the Aggies are coming out strong. And encourages everyone to come and support them.
