Mayfield Files Tenure Suit

The former assistant director of admissions, Benny R. Mayfield is suing the university and several school officials on the grounds of unlawful denial of tenure and sexual harassment of another university official.

Mayfield, who was also an undergraduate and graduate education instructor was appointed assistant director by former Chancellor Lewis C. Dowdy and served from 1972-1984.

According to the Carolina Peacemaker, the suit names the University of North Carolina Board of Governors, the UNC President William Friday, A&T Chancellor Edward B. Fort, Vice Chancellor Nathan Simms Jr. and the Director of Admissions, Clenton Blount Jr.

Mayfield was told in February that he would not be reappointed.

The suit says the defendants terminated Mayfield's employment without following the policies and practices of A&T or the laws and statutes governing the university.

It also said Dowdy recommended Mayfield to the A&T Trustees Personnel Committee for faculty tenure as an Assistant Professor of Education in October of 1980. The committee approved the recommendation.

According to a Greensboro News and Record, it was in August of 1981 that Mayfield inquired about his recommendation to Simms, who told him the trustees had not acted on the recommendation. Mayfield also said Simms refused to explain why or take steps to see that the board did.

Mayfield is asking that he be reappointed to the faculty with permanent tenure and that he receives back pay and damages of not less than $6000,000.

Jackson Supports Mondale

NORTH OAKS, Minn. (AP) - The Rev. Jesse Jackson on Tuesday announced his "deep and intense" support for Walter Mondale's presidential campaign while reserving the right to disagree publicly with the Democratic candidate.

At a joint news conference, Mondale and Jackson, after meeting for more than two hours at the Democratic nominee's home, announced that they would make several joint campaign appearances.

"My support will be broad based, my involvement will be deep and intense," said Jackson, who frequently has publicly chided Mondale for not moving quickly enough to involve blacks, Hispanics and women in his campaign.

Jackson added that "we have a right to be unified without being uniform."

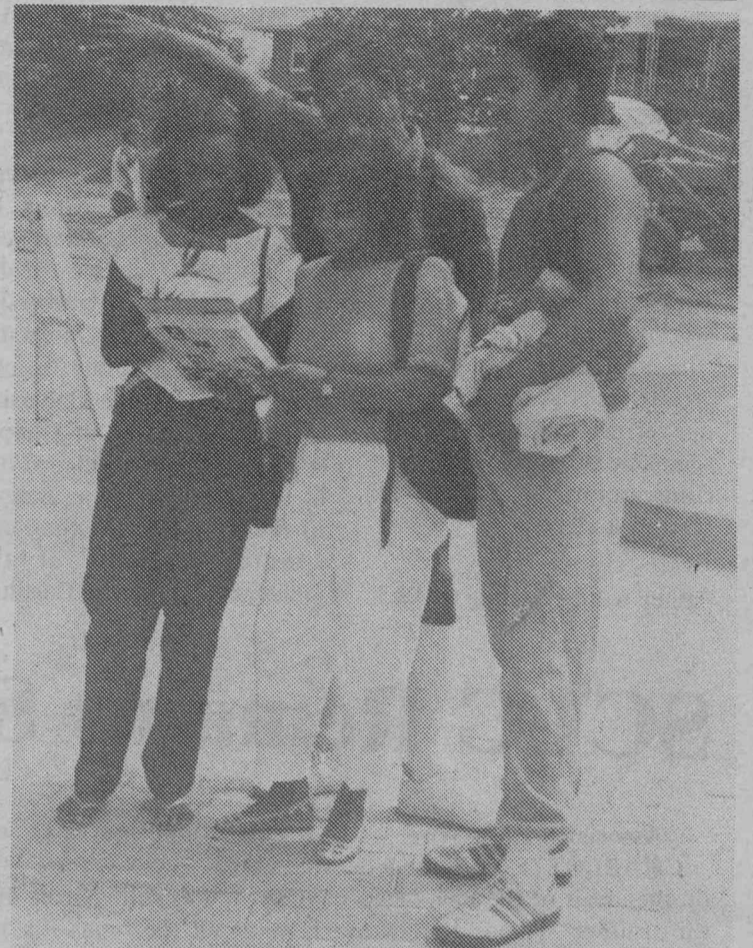

Asked if he had agreed to stop attacking Mondale, Jackson said, "I've not been attacking him. I will always reserve the right to challenge and express myself. I have not taken any vow of silence."

Mondale's meeting with Jackson took place a few hours after he received a ringing endorsement from John Anderson, the former Republican congressman who broke with his party in 1980 to wage an independent campaign for president.

With Mondale standing at his side, Jackson said he was satisfied that the nominee was bringing blacks, Hispanics and women onto his campaign staff.

The Democratic nominee said Jackson "will be working closely with me. We will be campaigning together."

Construction to start soon on engineering building

A groundbreaking ceremony for an $8.5 million engineering building was held at A&T State University on Wednesday, August 8 on the campus.

Participating in the ceremony were Dr. William Friday, president of the University of North Carolina; Ben Ruffin, special assistant to N.C. Governor, James B. Hunt; Dr. Edward B. Fort, A&T chancellor; Dr. McArthur Newell, chairman of the A&T board of trustees; Dr. Suresh Chandra, dean of the A&T School of Engineering; John Maye Jr., president of the A&T Student Government Association.

Funds for the new building, which will be one of the most modern of its kind in the nation, were approved by the North Carolina General Assembly in July of 1983.

A&T Student Dies

A&T Student, Vanessa Faye Graham, 21, of Tarboro, died June 13.

She was a 1981 graduate of Southwest Edgecombe High School and a rising junior at A&T State University. During her two years here, Miss Graham resided in Vanstory Hall.

Surviving are her parents, Mrs. and Mrs. Frank Graham of the home; three sisters, Marilyn and Annie Graham of the home, and Bernice Nobles of Tarboro; six brothers, George Deloatch of LaGrange, Frank Graham Jr. of Macclesfield, Roy Graham of Rocky Mount and Michael Graham of Fayetteville, Bob Graham of Alexandria, Va. and Lomond Graham of Hampton, Va.

Somethings never change like these students waiting in the the long registraton lines.

Three Top Administrative Officers Appointed

Three top administrative officers have been appointed at A&T.

Approved by the Board of Governors and announced by A&T chancellor, Dr. Edward B. Fort, are Dr. Roland Buck, 40, as vice chancellor for student affairs; Dr. Albert L. Walker, 38, as dean of the School of Education; and Mrs. Alene Coley Young as director of library services.

"We are extremely pleased to have three outstanding educators join A&T's administrative team," said Fort.

"I am convinced that they will greatly assist us as we continue our efforts to offer quality academic programs and an exciting atmosphere for learning for the students."

Buck will be coming to A&T

after serving as assistant vice chancellor for student services, director of the Office of Student Development, and assistant professor of counseling and educational psychology at the University of Missouri in Columbia. He succeeds Dr. Jesse Marshall, who is entering fulltime classroom teaching.

Buck formerly served as dean and assistant to the vice chancellor-student affairs at the University of California at San Diego for two years; director of the University Center at the State University of New York at Stony Brook; guest lecturer at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill; director of residence life at the North Carolina School of the Arts, and teaching and research assistant at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro. He also taught high school for a year in Guilford County.

Buck holds a master's degree in educational administration from A&T and the ED. D. degree in educational administration from the University of North Carolina at Greensboro. He has several publications on the field of higher education. He is married and has two children.

Walker is leaving a position as assistant commissioner of education for the Missouri Department of Elementary and Secondary Education, a position he has held for five years. He succeeds Dr. S. J. Shaw, who will become a fulltime teacher.

Prior to assuming that position, Walker served as an associate professor of education at Lincoln University in Jefferson City, Missouri, principal at the Blaine-Summer Elementary School in Peoria, Ill.; visiting graduate professor at Bradley University, principal at the Webster Elementary School in Peoria, Ill. and as a classroom teacher in Peoria. He has published widely on topics of higher education.

While in college, Walker was an NCAA All-American in track. He holds M. A. degrees in educational administration and elementary education from Bradley and the Ed.D. degree in educational administration from Indiana University. Walker is married and they have three children.

Mrs. Young has served as acting director of library services at A&T since 1981. She joined the university's library staff in 1957 and has also served as serials librarian, project librarian for library service enrichment, and head of the public services division.

Prior to coming to A&T, she was assistant librarian and teacher of education and English at Spelman College in Atlanta; and librarian and teacher of English at Edgecombe County schools.

Mrs. Young holds a master's degree in library services from North Carolina Central University and has studied at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro.

She is married and has a daughter.

SCLC Remains Strong

Associated Press Wire

CHARLOTTE - Founded on the ideals of the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr., the Southern Christian Leadership Conference grabbed headlines and power in the 1960s, faded in the 1970s, and is back in the public view in the 1980s amid the conservative policies of the Reagan administration.

Rev. Joseph Lowery, SCLC president, attributes the new interest in part to a perceived erosion of civil rights under the present administration, but others say Lowery himself is the reason for the change in the 27-year-old organization, which held its annual convention here this month.

Lowery stresses that the Atlanta-based SCLC never stopped being active.

"In 1982, we marched 2,700 miles from Alabama to Washington for the extension of the Voting Rights Act, and it worked," he said in an interview. "We still picket and boycott all the time. It's just the media aren't as interested - you were worried about snail darter," the tiny fish which threatened construction of the Tellico Dam on the Little Tennessee River.

The administration came under fire from civil rights activists after President Reagan changed the makeup of the Civil Rights Commission to add commissioners who shared president's opposition to racial quotas and affirmative action. Civil rights groups also were outraged by the administration's stance on tax exemptions for schools found by the Internal Revenue Service to discriminate on basis of race.

"The SCLC in the last two or three years under Lowery is in better shape and having a bigger voice in the black community...than at any time in the last 12 or 13 years," said David Garrow, an SCLC observer and a political scientist at the University of North Carolina who wrote The FBI and Martin Luther King Jr. and Protest at Selma.

Some SCLC members, such as the Rev. James E. Palmer, chairman of SCLC's Charlotte chapter, say the resurgence is due to the tenor of the times.

"All organizations decline when the issues are not prevalent," he said. "But now, the Ku Klux Klan is on the upswing, we've got Reagan, U.S. Sen. Jesse Helms (a North Carolina conservative Republican) and (Moral Majority director) Jerry Falwell. We can't relax."

"Take Aim On Progress"

James (Jack) Frances first days at A&T were no different from a lot of Aggies. He knew he was taking a chance coming to the campus without financial aid or a place to stay, but he took a gamble, hoping someone would give him a chance to prove himself.

Through many hassles and the usual registration run arounds, James France not only survived that year, but upheld his goal to make it to the top: President of the Student Body.

France, a senior Industrial Technology major from Martinsville, Va. was elected SGA president last April, after serving one term as attorney general.

Just as he stuck to his personal goal to achieve, France is seeking the same goals for the executive board to take A&T to the top.

"I have a good staff and they are working extremely hard to do a good job. We're going to do our best, France said.

He said the only way his administration can accomplish their goals this school year is to "Take Aim on Progress, the 1984-85 SGA theme.

France said he will use this theme to attempt to solve some of the problems such as housing, administration-student relations and student involvement, which have remained unsolved.

"It is time we stop talking about our problems and solve them through a progressive movement," he said. Progress is positive.

France and his staff spent most of the summer organizing Homecoming (Oct. 6) and Black College Day (Sept. 24).

He encourages students to participate wholeheartedly in the planning of both events.

France said he would like to have homecoming tickets as low as possible. WilJam Productions of Lathan, N.Y. are the sponsors of the Homecoming Show.

Activities will remain basically the same.

"I would really like to see A&T students come out in large numbers for Black College Day in Raleigh said France who is vice president of the North Carolina Association of Black SGAs, the sponsor of BCD. "If we don't support our own cause who will."

France said he would have more comments on homecoming and other issues during the student body meeting on Tuesday, Sept. 4 in the Memorial Union Ballroom, which he said he hopes all students will attend.

"I really want to see students involved in government this year and we (SGA) welcome their opinions and ideas for all student activities," France said.

Jackson's Candidacy Offers Sense of Hope

By Dr. Albert Spruill

It is rather risky business for one to turn from the familiar grounds of higher education to comment on subjects in the political arena. This is particularly true of one whose background is not in the realm of political science. Yet, when one is asked to comment as a guest editor in a distinguished collegiate newspaper, one can hardly pass up such an opportunity. Added to this is the fact that the discussion here deals with one of my former pupils who has done things that I could never do and has been places that I could never go, namely, The Reverend Jesse Jackson.

The candidacy of the Rev. Jesse Jackson for president of the United States on the democratic ticket is fresh on our minds. We are only a few weeks removed from the Democratic National Convention and what we saw as a culmination of his actions are awe-inspiring. We watched and read about all of the activities we could involving our friend and fellow alumnus from the announcement of his candidacy to the fiery oratory in San Francisco.

What has been the impact of Jesse Jackson's candidacy for President of the United States? It is difficult to be expert on this question, but some feature emerge at the outset.

First of all, he has provided a new sense of hope for the unaligned and hopeless in the democratic party and in the political process. Secondly, he has given us an outstanding example of courage on the midst of fortitude. Thirdly, he has provided for us a remarkable example of Christian-idealism which has always been a part of the American Dream. Fourthly, Rev. Jackson has shown us that jone can overcome weaknesses to achieve great esteem in the society. Finally, he has shown the creation of a forum whereby he can exert a tremendous leadership force in the national and international arenas.

It is interesting that every election year about this time we follow the paths of those who are and were candidates for the presidency. We examine individuals who offered little esteem or political savvy to those who appeared as giants on the political horizon. For many of us, it never occurred that an Afro-American male could seriously consider running and have distinctive following across racial and ethnic lines as he canvassed for the highest office in the land. Jesse Campaign an unusual amount of good will from groups that had never before taken seriously this posture on a national basis. He aroused within the disinherited, the common person and others a sense of belonging in the search for identity in the world of politics.

Jesse Jackson is not easily distracted from his goals. There were times in the campaign when many would dropped out. When there was the slightest jerror, the press and news media raked him over the coals, but Jesse stood his ground. He had said to me that his handling of the press was his stongest quality and this was shown to be true. Who would have expected that a man who had no political leverage in the traditional sense as a governor or congressman or senator would not take a back seat to anybody ad his political expertise simply chased some of the tall timber out of the woods.

Christian idealism has always been a part of the American Dream, indeed as Ralph Waldo Emerson implied many years ago, all Americans are a part of that divine soul which inspires all men. He was speaking of scholarship and enlightenment, but I suspect he meant it for politics as well. Jesse Jackson believed that he could change and that he was indeed a part of that divine soul and put forth his best effort to change it. He fired up minorities and women, the poor and Hispanics and the like to an idealistic frenzy for changing the demoeocratic party. His rhetoric was very much idealistic particularly his reference to the motto on the Statue of Liberty.

Now, Jesse Jackson has his weaknesses, as did other aspirants to the democratic presidential nomination. He said things he did not mean to say and it came back to haunt him, if press releases can be believed. His alliances were sometime suspect, but he apparently overcame these so that he amassed a genuine and significant following. Anybody who expects to gain the presidency as a representative of the Democratic Party will have to square with Rev. Jackson before the victory is won.

Here's to the Class of 1988

I commend you for your two-week survival because I am sure it has been rough.

Especially having to greet the upper classmen who just because they have hours decide to tease the baby Aggies.

Have no fear of those veterans because remember they were in your shoes once. Many of them are still in freshman shoes academically and in some cases mentally.

Regardless of the hassles and headaches you have suffered already, these can be the best years of your life if you would like for them to be.

Sure, there are the fraternity and sorority parties, the nice looking coeds and the go and come as you please advantages.

However, priority number one is, yes you guessed it your EDUCATION.

Maybe this is your one-millionth time hearing that sentence, but you will be surprised how many times one can lose sight of that priority.

On several occasions this writer has heard college drop-outs blame their failure to get a degree on their school, on their instructors, their major requirements and rarely on their friends or own laziness.

They use such excuses as my advisor never told me about that class or instructors were never around to help me after class.

Don't let them kid you and don't kid yourself, we know who is really to blame.

Aggieland can be a land of great opportunities if you want it to be. It can also be a land of failures if you want it to be but that can go for anything in life.

So, this is your chance dear freshmen to go for it!

Welcome to Aggieland, your home away from home for the next four years it you want it to be.

Basking In The Sunshine

By DWAYNE PINKNEY

It is undeniable that at this point in the game, the Republican Party is basking in the sunshine of a very favorable image.

And in politics, images are very important.

But just what or who is behind this excellent projection of the Grand Ole Party?

In trying to answer this question, it is imperative that we take a look at the mood of the country.

The school prayer issue is just as hot as ever, and the abortion issue is certainly not about to disappear.

The conservative spirit soars in America today, and the leaders of the Republican Party are riding high on its wings.

Somehow, in some masterful way, Ronald Reagan has succeeded in wrapping himself up in the flag, and selling himself as the American candidate.

As the Republicans cruised through their assembly of like minds—the Republican National Convention, they talked about the “San Francisco Democrats” as if they were from a foreign country.

Brilliant indeed, but everyone knows that Walter Mondale and Geraldine Ferraro are American.

Reagan and the Republican Party know this too, but they are diligently working to portray the Democrats as un-American.

But the way in which they are doing this is the most frightening thing about this campaign.

The conservative attempt to show liberals as representing anti-Christian principles is dangerous.

Whether the Democrats are Christian or not is really beside the point.

But here again, the Republicans have tapped into the conscience of many in this country.

It is indeed unfortunate, that we have not learned that religion and politics should remain separate.

This is not to say that those of a religious bent should not participate in politics—they should. But religion should never be legislated and politicians would do well not to court or be courted by religious groups, even if they do allow you to bask in the sunshine of a good image.

Decisions! Decisions!

By FRANCES WARD

Your friends want you to walk with them to Burger King. Tomorrow you have an 8 a.m. class and an exam. An hour later your favorite movie is on television. During the mist of these activities you need to be reading four chapters from your history book. So how is it all going to get done?

It's your decision and because you are in college now, you're the boss.

Decisions, decisions, decisions! As a college student you must make many of them. Your parents will not be around to tell you what to do and you can't always make a long distance call to ask them.

As an Aggie you will be called upon to make quick, sensible decisions concerning class schedules, financial matters, roommate hassles and many others. They will be yours alone to make and no one else will share the blame.

Since being the boss will determine your success in college you should begin the year off right by remembering several things.

First, being a student is your main priority. Don't let anyone tell you otherwise. Second, manage you time wisely. Do the most important things first. Next, attend class and be on time. This way you develop good relations with your instructor and you will feel better about the class. Last, save goofing off and socializing for free days. You'll have plenty of time for socializing after studying is done. Never fall behind because you may never catch up.

Being a student at A&T can be rough but most of the time it is what you make it. Never forget that you are the boss and you control your future here.

Campus Ministry Focuses On Respect

A new year has begun for all of us here at A&T. If you are like most people, you are making all kinds of resolutions for this new year. "I'm going to spend a little more time with the books." "Maybe a few more notes in my classes will work for me this year." "No more cutting classes for me!"

Perhaps another suggestion for a resolution that just might work for all of us is: THIS YEAR I'M GOING TO TREAT EVERYBODY LIKE A REAL HUMAN BEING!

Sometimes we learn bad habits in the way we treat other people. These habits become so much a part of the way we live our lives, that we no longer realize how we talk to one another.

One very special way in which this is true, is in our relationships with members of the opposite sex, particularly the way co-eds are treated. It is at least scandalous at times the way the female population is treated on campus. There is no intention in this statement to say that this is done with any vicious intent or out of a sense of hatred for women, but this is the way it many times comes across.

For men at A&T this is a serious problem. Can any man expect to have the love and respect of any woman when she is treated with disrespect?

Can any man expect anything more than contempt when a woman is viewed as not much more than a well-constructed sensual/sexual organism? Men will not be truly free until all people - men and women - are viewed and treated as created in the divine image.

This is not only a problem to be addressed by the male population on campus. The women at A&T have to come to see within themselves a great self-worth that will not stand for the way men treat them. For as long as women at A&T see their worth in terms of a relationship with a man, there is going to be a significant amount of hurting among the co-eds of the presence of Bennett College, and you end up with a situation conducive to self-hate and self-pity.

To address this issue of healthy and not-so-healthy ways of relating between men and women, Catholic Campus Ministry has put together a series of speakers and discussions of this topic. If you are interested in coming to a better style of relating with your special guy or girl, join us at the Campus House (1015 Bluford St.), Tuesday evening, September 4 at 9:00 P.M. There is no cost for the program (except for perhaps a little bit of pride). We will be looking forward to seeing you there.

Roberta Flack To Perform Benefit Concert

United Press International
Singer Roberta Flack will perform at a benefit concert for Gov. James B. Hunt Jr.'s senate campaign Saturday, September 8, at North Carolina A&T State University.

Ms. Flack is a native of Black Mountain. After graduating from college, she taught English in Farmville before moving to Washington, DC to work as a nightclub singer.

Tickets for the concert are $10 for adults and $6 for students.

Money Available

North Carolinians may borrow from $2,500 to $5,000 per academic year to attend eligible colleges or vocational schools anywhere in the U.S. the amount you may borrow depends on the student's academic classification, family income, other student financial aid, and the schools's estimated cost of attendance.

College Foundation, Inc., makes the loans under the N.C. Insured Student Loan Programs and the N.C. PLUS Loan Program. N.C. banks provided the loan funds and the N.C. State Education Assistance Authority insures the loans. More than 75,000 students have borrowed more than $240 million through College Foundation, Inc., during the past twenty-one years.

For an application form and details about the loans, contact College Foundation, Inc., 1307 Glenwood Avenue, Raleigh, NC 27605 (919) 821-4771.

Karate Offers Alternatives

Dear Aggies:

Have you ever wanted to be a part of an athletic organization but was afraid to try out for fear of being cut or unable to meet all of the requirements?

Well, have no fear, the A&T karate team is here.

The A&T karate team has been in existence for over ten years and never turned down anyone interested in the Japanese style, Go ju-Ryu Karate and never will. It is based at the Hayes-Taylor YMCA (beside Zoe Barbee Dormitory).

Dr. Gilbert Casterlow, an assistant professor of mathematics here at A&T is in charge of the instructional staff. He holds two Black belts, one in Japanese Go ju-Ryu and the other in Okanawan Ishun-Ryu.

Other instructors are Samuel Casterlow, who is also a mathematics instructor at A&T and a Black belt holder in Go ju-Ryu and Sandra Graham, a public schools system employee and a first Kyu Brown Belt and a Fall candidate for a Black belt.

The members of the team who hold Brown belts are Vincent Howard (president), Reginald Goodwin (secretary), Edward Allen (vice president) and Ronnie Payton, all seniors at A&T; Purple belts, Danny Boston and Keith Smith; Green belts, Terry Coley and Anthony Coleman (treasurer); Blue Belt, Runald Cruz; Yellow Belt, Antonio Van Dyke and White belt, Dana Dean.

The karate team meets three times a week, 7-9 p.m. Monday and Wednesday and 10-12 noon on Saturday, which is an optional class.

Anyone interested in joining the team should come by Hayes-Taylor YMCA during practice hours or contact Dr. Casterlow in Martenna Hall or any member of the karate team.

EVEN STRAIGHT A'S CAN'T HELP IF YOU FLUNK TUITION.

Today, the toughest thing about going to college is finding the money to pay for it.

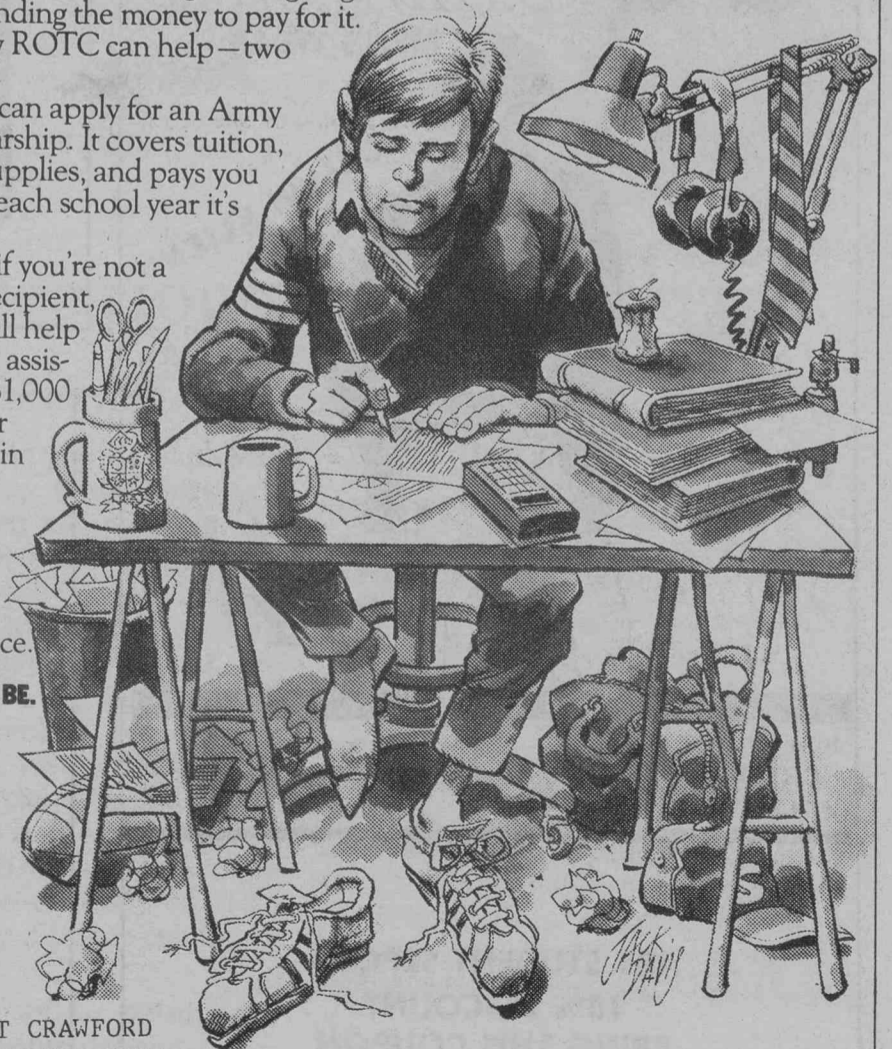

But Army ROTC can help—two ways!

First, you can apply for an Army ROTC scholarship. It covers tuition, books, and supplies, and pays you up to $1,000 each school year it's in effect.

But even if you're not a scholarship recipient, ROTC can still help with financial assistance—up to $1,000 a year for your last two years in the program.

For more information, contact your Professor of Military Science.

Conservation Careers Available

Opportunities for college students to obtain volunteer positions in conservation and resource management for the coming winter and spring seasons are now available through the Student Conservation Association's Park, Forest and Resource Assistant Program.

These positions enable selected students to participate in the work of government agencies responsible for the care and management of the country's public lands, or to assist in the activities of private organizations dedicated to land and resource conservation.

Through their involvement, participants gain valuable first-hand experience in resource management, which often improves their chances for future employment in this field, while making a significant contribution to the areas in which they serve.

During the winter and spring of 1984-1985, the Park,

Forest and Resource Assistant Program will place approximately 150 volunteers in more than 75 national parks, national forests, wilderness areas, resource management areas, wildlife refuges, and private conservation areas throughout the United States. Most positions are for a period of 12 weeks and involve tasks and projects similar to those performed by the professional personnel of the host agency or organization. Assignments range from giving interpretive programs for visitors and patrolling backcountry trails to conducting field research or cultural resource surveys.

Positions are now available with starting dates between November 1, 1984, and April 30, 1985. The deadline for receipt of applications for positions beginning in November and December is September 30. Later deadlines apply for positions beginning between January and April and are explained in the application materials. An additional 700 to 800 positions for the 1985 summer and fall seasons will be announced in December.

Interested people should send a postcard requesting the "1985 PFRA Program List" and an application to the Student Conservation Association, Dept. RP, PO Box 550C, Charlestown, NH, 03603. The telephone number is 603/826-5206.

The Student Conservation Association is a non-profit, tax-exempt, educational organization and is an equal opportunity program. All qualified applicants will be considered for placement without regard to race, creed, color, sex, or national origin.

Moss Makes Changes In Student ID Passes

Students will have to present a student pass at athletic events this year due to problems concerning the mis-use of student identification cards, according to Orby Moss, athletic director.

All A&T students who have paid an athletic fee will receive a student pass good for 1st semester athletic activities only.

Some passes were issued during registration. Students who have not received passes may pick them up at the cashier's office. The pass will admit students only to athletic events.

The pass will be punched for the specific event and is not good for re-entry. Therefore, students must purchase a ticket if they desire to leave and come back into a game. Students will not be admitted without the pass or a ticket.

Moss said the new policy was invented to prevent the loss in ticket revenue that has been experienced in the past, due to mis-use of student ID's.

Convention Viewers Identify with Jackson

Finally, Rev. Jackson established a forum whereby he can exert a tremendous force in the national and international arenas in the future. Many people watching the Democratic National Convention felt a sense of importance, not because of the party itself, not even because of the other candidates, but because Jesse Jackson was their point of identity. By the same token, many television viewers came to understand and to articulate views of a political nature because they heard these uttered by a person like Jesse Jackson. Ideas will be expressed in many ways as the clouds of the presidential campaign continues in full swing, but most people will be listening to what Jackson has to say and future leaders will gear their political efforts after the pioneering spirit of one of the heroes of the 1984 Presidential aspirants.
