Athlete Arrested On Drug Charges

LaVonne McIver Staff Writer

An A&T football player was arrested on Sunday, Nov. 8, and charged with possession of marijuana with intent to sell and deliver, possession of cocaine and possession of weapons on campus, according to Guilford County police records.

Joe Summersett Jr., a 21-year old starting defensive back from Miami, was arrested at 2:50 a.m. in Cooper Hall by A&T police officer L.M. Bopp.

Summersett

The arrest was made when Bopp and A&T police officer Donald Lindsay were searching Summersett's room for a weapon during the weapon search controlled substances were found in Summersett's room, 406 Cooper Hall, according to John Williams, chief of police.

Williams said A&T police first investigated Summersett's room on July 18 when they received reports that weapons were fired in Cooper Hall. He said that Summersett gave consent to have his room searched in July, but no weapons were confiscated. Since the July 18 investigation, Williams said the investigation remained open.

During the arrest on Sunday, 12 small bags of a green, vegetable-like substance believed to be marijuana, white powdery residue believed to be cocaine and other items believed to be drug paraphernalia were uncovered, according to Williams.

No weapons were confiscated in the search on Sunday and lab test on the substances have not been completed, Williams said.

Summersett was released on a $15,000 secured bond, Monday, Nov. 9 at 9 a.m.

Summersett is scheduled to appear before the Guilford County District Court at 9 a.m. on Dec. 8, according to the Guilford County release order.

According to Dr. Nathan Simms, vice chancellor for academic affairs at A&T, no disciplinary actions have been taken against Summersett.

"It would be improper to take any disciplinary action until the case is reviewed by the tribunal, the law enforcing body of the University," Simms said. "He is innocent until proven guilty."

Black Female Candidate Runs for Presidency

Esther Woods Editor-in-Chief

If Jesse Jackson loses the 1988 Democratic primary election, a black candidate must represent the needs of the black community during the general election, according to Dr. Lenora Fulani, national spokesperson for the New Alliance Party.

Fulani is running on the independent ticket for the presidency of the United States during the 1988 general election.

A spokesperson for the eight-year old independent New Alliance Party, headquartered in New York, Fulani is the first black female to run on the independent ticket in the general election for the U.S. presidency.

In 1972, Shirley Chisholm, a former member of the U.S. House of Representative from New York, ran unsuccessfully for the bid. The Rev. Jesse Jackson ran unsuccessfully for the presidency in 1984.

Fulani said that because democracy is eroding in America, she is raising the issues of fair elections in her campaign.

"Through my campaign I'm bringing hopes and aspirations and desires into the electoral arena," Fulani said.

"People are kept out of the election arena. If it was up to the people, Judge (Robert) Bork would have never been nominated for judge of the Supreme Court."

A native of Chester, Pa., Fulani said that although she is not running against the Rev. Jesse Jackson on the Democratic ticket, she feels that if he does not succeed in the primary, she will act as an alternate candidate.

Analysts Raise Hopes of Mandela's Release

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) - Two government ministers have confirmed that African National Congress leader Nelson Mandela could be freed from prison if fellow ANC official Govan Mbeki's recent release does not trigger unrest among South African blacks.

Political analysts in Cape Town said Sunday that President Pieter Botha might refer to the possibility of Mandela's release when the South African leader opens a provincial congress of his ruling National Party in the city.

"No one expects Botha to say anything earth shattering, but people in the party seem to expect him to say something about Mandela's chances of getting out," one analyst said.

Moeki, 77, a former national chairman of the outlawed ANC, which seeks to oust the white minority government in Pretoria, was released after serving 23 years of a life sentence for sabotage.

He hinted in a news conference after his release that the government already has started talking to Mandela, 69, about arrangements for his release after 25 years behind bars.

The pro-government Rapport newspaper, which is often used to test potentially controversial government plans, said Sunday Botha was watching the reaction to Mbeki's release and would decide Mandela's future on that basis.

The newspaper quoted Justice Minister Kobie Coetsee as saying reactions to Mbeki's release and would decide Mandela's future on that basis.

Information Minister Stoffel van der Merwe told the Johannesburg Sunday Star, "The future of Mandela and others is to some extent in Mr. Mbeki's hands."

He said it was unlikely Mandela would be released if Mbeki "becomes involved in political unrest, trouble of incitement."

Mandela, life president of the exiled ANC, was jailed for five years in 1962 and was sentenced, along with Mbeki, Walter Sisulu and five others, to life imprisonment in a second trial in 1964.

Mbeki visited black ghettos around the southcoast city of Port Elizabeth, his main power base before he was arrested in Johannesburg in 1963.

A crowd of about 600 people waited for him in the townships of New Brighton, Kwanobuhle and Soweto as he toured by car, mostly staying inside as supporters rocked and jostled the vehicle.

Brown Stresses Everyone Has Talent to Offer

It is hard to escape the conviction that this story was told mainly for the man with one talent. There are more one talent people in the world than five talent people. Only a few are poets like Keats, inventors like Edison, statesmen like Lincoln, or preachers like M. L. King Jr. Peculiar dangers beset the one talent man. He is tempted to say, "With my poor talent nothing will be expected of me, what can I do?"

The other justification for the one talent man is to make excuses for his lack of drive or enterprise.

Why did the one talent man make excuses for his failure. Two reasons stand out:

First, he resented the fact that he was given one talent while others had more. One commentator says, "The one talent man is...prone to resentment. He may hold a grudge against life and envy against his fellow men because he is poorly gifted. His resentment was such that he blamed his master for his failure to be industrious."

Secondly, for his response was his fear. In the twenty-fifth verse he says, "I was afraid." He dared not venture because he was paralyzed by fear.

Charlotte Bronte says, "Better to try all things and find all empty than to try nothing and leave your life a blank." The adage is true in this instance, "the fear of failure is greater than the undertaking of success." There are too many people who fear failure. Therefore, they turn to excuses like the one talent man. They feel that if they can find refuge in their inadequacies they can find solace there.

What God has given unto His children is good and necessary unto their calling. There should be no animosity because we are not like one another. God makes us unique because He calls us to be what he creates us to be.

When the day of judgement comes we shall have to answer for what God has called us to do. When He answers with those awful words, "Get

Students Can Overcome Barriers Regardless of Background

This University has a long and proud heritage. There has been, and continues to be, outstanding faculty and fantastic students.

Students have come here from meager backgrounds who have gone on to do great deeds. (Those are the students that we like to remember. Of course, that's human nature.)

Students have also come from great backgrounds and have gone on to do less than great things.

Smith

Much of what one does in life is more a function of the individual, not so much the institution from which one graduates, family background, or friendships.

Of course these things may ease the road to entry into a position, but once there, it is the individual who will decide whether he succeeds. Also, we acknowledge that there are other barriers--possibly sex, race, or others. None of these barriers are so great that they cannot be overcome.

In overcoming barriers, we must acknowledge that they do exist, but not dwell on them. We must learn our strengths, focus on them, and avoid taking the path of least resistance. We must develop an attitude of curiosity and a willingness to explore uncharted courses.

As young people we must be willing to experiment with new concepts and to incorporate those new and positive concepts into our thoughts and actions. Finally, we must be willing to accept change.

For years we have talked with students about preparing for employment opportunities in New York, Chicago, Los Angeles and other regions of this country. Today we should be talking with students about preparing themselves to work in Tokyo, Paris, or other major cities in the world. We must now consider international opportunities.

How do you rate the performance of the SGA President thus far?

Kris Feaster
Electrical Engineering

"I feel the president did a fair job on the homecoming celebration. But as far as any further performance, I haven't noticed any accomplishments of achievements."

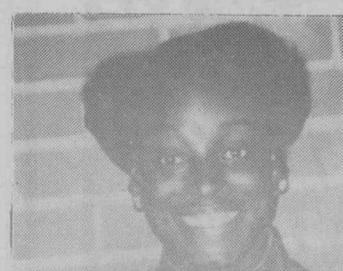

Clinton Barber
Industrial Arts Technology

"It would be hard to rate her because of the fact that she is never seen. She should be voicing the opinions of the student body in a more effective and efficient manner. I have not seen her speak on any topic as of yet."

Jeannie Gardner
Chemical Engineering

"I haven't heard very much about her. I don't know if she is doing an effective job or not. However, I do feel she could do a better job of letting people know what she is doing."

Annie Dupree
Mass Communications

"I feel that the SGA president is doing well. I'm sure some things could have been handled better. But considering that every SGA president has his or her own style, I feel Karen has done an outstanding job thus far."

Thomas McCray
Industrial Technology

"She's doing a fair job. The activities that she has been involved with have been improving. I believe the homecoming show ran smoother than it has run in the past. And I believe she had something to do with that."

Chuck Brown and His Band "The Soul Searchers"

Search Way Through Aggie-Eagle Blow-Out

The "king of Go Go," Chuck Brown, and his funk driving eight-member band, the Soul Searchers will be the lead act at the "Aggie-Eagle Blow Out," Saturday at 8 p.m. in the Corbett Sports Center.

Brown, famous for such hits as "Bustin Loose," "Go Go Swing," and "Here We Go Again" has been the top band in the Washington, D.C., area for the past decade.

Brown

Also scheduled to appear are Heavy D and the Boyz; D. J. Jazzy Jeff and the Fresh Prince, Pa' Nache, a D. C. group produced by Chuck Brown, Whistle, Velore & Double O, with their new release "You're Ugly," and Dynasty, a local group.

The concert is strictly a function of the Health, P. E. & Recreational Department at A&T. It was organized by Melvin Groomes, and Deborah Callaway, chairperson of the Health, P. E. and Recreational Department.

The concert is promoted by Roger Lilly of Lilly Productions.

Callaway explained that a portion of the profits made from the concert will go toward a baseball scholarship named after Coach Groomes. Funds will also go towards computerizing the Health, P. E., Recreational Department.

Tickets are available at Ticketron locations at the cost of $12.50. Tickets will go on sale at the A & T ticket box of-at 4 p.m. on the day of the show.

Seating will be on a first come first serve basis, however, the Corbett Sports Center will open its doors at 6:30 p.m. to accommodate early concert-goers.

Coach Groomes commented, "We're trying to keep the money raised at the school, so I hope everyone will come and be entertained as well as support two good causes. We hope it will be a success."

Chuck Brown, Band Reign Supreme in Go-Go

Chuck Brown and the Soul Searchers hail from the nation's capitol, Washington, D.C., where they have reigned as the premiere band for the past decade. Formed by Chuck Brown, the group was "discovered" by Bill Withers who signed The Soul Searchers to Sussex Records in 1972. Their first album released in 1972 containing the hit singles "We The People" and "All In Your Mind" achieved immediate national success.

The second Sussex album in 1974, "Salt Of The Earth," with the smash single "Blow Your Whistle," gained even greater success. Then the label folded and The Soul Searchers having been disillusioned by the failure of Sussex record company and numerous experiences with less than candid promoters and record people, decided to concentrate their efforts on playing live performances--and play they did--and still do.

They have appeared with major artists such as Aretha Franklin, Kool and the Gang, The O'Jays, Parliament-

Funkadelic, Bootsy's Rubber Band, Earth, Wind, and Fire and The Commodores.

The group has undergone numerous personnel changes during the past several years, constantly succeeding in maintaining the very finest young musicians and professional quality of sound they have become famous for.

Chuck Brown and The Soul Searchers have grown into a living legend in the D.C.-Baltimore-Richmond area, playing regularly 4-6 concerts and club appearances every week. They have a legion of fans which are as devoted as those of any recording artist.

In 1978, after a recording hiatus of four years, during which time the popularity of the band continued to increase, Chuck Brown came into contact with music business attorney and producers James Purdie and David Carpin, also from Washington.

There was an immediate professional and personal rapport between the new association and it was agreed on to go back into the studio to capture The Soul Searchers' magic on vinyl.

The result was "Bustin Loose," an appropriately titled, "get down dance groove", and recording contract with Source Records, of Los Angeles, a Black music oriented label distributed by MCA Records.

The next major album for the group is Chuck Brown and the Soul Searchers' Live, produced by Future Sounds Productions in 1986, which includes such hits as "Go-Go Swing" and "Here We Go Again."

Sculptor Receives Award

Dr. Selma Hortense Burke, one of America's most distinguished artists, has been named recipient of the 1987 Pearl S. Buck Foundation Woman's Award.

The award is given to a professional woman, who, like Nobel and Pulitzer prize-winning author Pearl Buck, has distinguished herself in her career, devotion to family and pursuit of humanitarian goals.

Dr. Burke is best known as the winner of the 1943 Fine Arts Commission Competition in Washington, D.C., for her portrait of Franklin Delano Roosevelt which appears on the U.S. dime.

A graduate of Winston-Salem State University and the Saint Agnes School of Nursing in North Carolina, Dr. Burke also participated in artistic independent studies in

New York, Vienna and Paris. In 1941 she received a master's degree from Columbia University and in 1970, at age 70, she received a doctorate from Livingstone College.

An art educator at Livingstone, and at Haverford and Swarthmore Colleges in Pennsylvania, Dr. Burke founded art schools in New York City and Pittsburgh.

Among her many awards are the 1943 Urban League Award for outstanding participation in bringing about integration of black workers in war plants; the 1973 Kent State University Award for Excellence in Art; the 1976 Weidner Prize for Sculpture from the Philadelphia Academy of Fine Arts; the 1979 Women's Caucus for Art Award for outstanding achievement in visual arts, presented by President Jimmy Carter; and eight honorary doctorates.

Among her most celebrated works are the bronze bust of the late Duke Ellington at Milwaukee's Performing Arts Center; Mary McLeod Bethune's portrait at Winston-Salem State University; the sculpture "Grief" at Miami's Museum of Modern Art; and the eight-foot bronze statue of Rev. Martin Luther King, Jr., in Marshall Park, Charlotte.

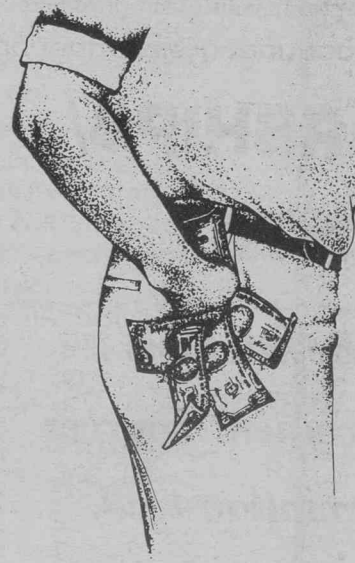

Born on New Year's Eve, 1900, in Morresville, Dr. Burke has resided in New Hope, Bucks County, Pa., for the last 41 years.

The Pearl S. Buck Foundation was established in 1964 by the late author primarily to aid Amerasian children, abandoned by or otherwise separated from their American fathers in Asia.

Former A&T Athletes Inducted Into Sports Hall of Fame

Drexel Ball
Sports Information Director
Three former athletes who went on to enjoy distinguished careers as a Miami Dolphin, a social worker and a local high school coach have been selected for induction into the North Carolina A&T Sports Hall of Fame.

Asim Razzak [Willie Pearson], Jimmy Robinson and William [Bill] Boyers will be enshrined Saturday, Nov. 21 at the downtown Ramada Inn at 7 p.m. The event is sponsored by the A&T Alumni Association.

A star flanker and defensive back, Pearson was a four-year starter on the Aggie football teams from 1965-68, earning All-Central Intercollegiate Athletic Association and All-America Honors.

In addition he was selected in Who's Who and was a member of the NAIA All-District 26 squad in 1968.

As a senior, Pearson led the Aggies in receiving and punt and kickoff returns. He scored a team-leading total of 10 touchdowns in his final year of competition, including eight touchdowns on receptions and one each on a punt and kickoff return.

Pearson was a fifth round draft choice of the Miami Dolphins in 1969. He played defensive back for three years with the National Football League franchise. When his professional career ended, Pearson became a sales representative for three nationally known firms.

Pearson currently lives in Greensboro.

Robinson was a standout second baseman on Aggie baseball teams which captured three consecutive CIAA titles in 1950-52, playing alongside great teammates as Tom Alston, Marvin Graeber, Hubert Simmons, Howard Rouse and Ernest Canada, all of whom signed minor league contracts.

In his final two years of competition, Robinson was among the teams' batting leaders with an average over .400. During his career, Robinson twice was named captain, voted vice president of the Letterman's Club and president of the physical education majors club and was a reporter for the A&T Register.

Upon graduation from A&T, Robinson signed a contract with Allentown, Pa., club in the Class A Eastern League.

Shortly afterward, Robinson had a two-year tour of duty in the U.S. Army. He followed that stint with a return to the St. Louis Cardinals organization before accepting a position with the Housing Authority of New York, earning that organization's outstanding service award from the city of New York, where he currently resides.

A native of Milwaukee, Boyers earned All-America recognition in 1949 and 1950. He was selected on the All-CIAA team in '50 and '51.

He has been employed by the Greensboro Public Schools since 1956, teaching physical education and coaching football, wrestling and track at Dudley High School. He is still on the Dudley staff as an assistant football and boy's track coach.

He has coached a number of Dudley athletes who have gone on to enjoy outstanding careers, including Lou Hudson of the National Basketball Association fame with the Atlanta Hawks, Fred [Curley] Neal, formerly of the Harlem Globetrotters, and Charlie Saunders, a former All-Pro with the Detroit Lions of the National Football League.

He has also coached Jerome Gant [Buffalo Bills], Jeff Davis [Tampa Bay Buccaneers], Staley Vincent [Rice University], and Butch Henry [Wake Forest].

As a special feature of the induction ceremony, the A&T National Alumni Association and Sports Hall of Fame committee will honor members of the baseball team which captured the CIAA championship in 1952.

A&T Sophomore Receives Scholarship

Tonya Simmons
Special to the Register

An A&T sophomore has been selected as the first recipient of the $500 H.H. Robinson Agricultural Education Scholarship.

Leslie Conley, a sophomore agricultural major, was selected out of five students on the basis of scholarship and need for the scholarship which is named after A&T alumnus and former agriculture teacher, Herbert H. Robinson.

Recipients of the scholarship are required to maintain at least a 2.5 G.P.A. They must be an Agriculture Education Major and an undergraduate.

Conley says that she is grateful for the scholarship but thinks A&T should put more emphasis on the agriculture department.

"I was proud because many people think we (agricultural education majors) are here to farm," Conley said. "It's totally different.

"We are as important as Computer Science Majors. Our employment is 100 percent and people don't realize this. There should be more emphasis in agriculture since this is an agricultural school," Conley said.

Students

Students who are not preparing themselves to be global in their outlook are preparing themselves for the job market in 1971, certainly not the job market of 1991.

Another issue that bears consideration by our young people is that of service. As a people we have been quite fortunate and as young people we should always look for ways in which we may share that good fortune. Whenever we think of sharing we think of money and the fact that we don't have any. Money is often irrelevant.

We need to think in terms of giving of ourselves, not just during Thanksgiving or Christmas. Giving of ourselves may be in the form of tutoring neighborhood children, assisting the Greensboro Urban Ministries in their housing rehabilitation programs and in their food programs, or any number of service projects that we may engage in as individuals or through organizations.

We must be dedicated to the tasks ahead of us. Ahead of me now is the task of preparing for Summer School 1988. The wages for preparing this article is that I get to announce the dates at this time. The first session will run from May 23 to June 30. The Intersession, primarily for graduate students, will run from June 20 to July 1 and the Second Session will run from July 5 to August 11. More information will be available on Summer Programs in February.

Students, Faculty Debate Candidacy

Students and faculty disagreed on whether the Rev. Jesse Jackson should be running for president during a panel discussion Monday night in Gibbs Hall.

The panel, which consisted of Dr. Charlie Jones, a political science instructor; Kenneth Campbell, a journalism instructor; and students Rick Bradley, Beverly Threatt and Vince Hairston, examined the question, "Can Jesse Win?"

Jones said Jackson's social background, education and lack of political experience make him the wrong candidate for the presidency. He also said that blacks have been more successful with white elected officials than black officials.

Jones said the question should not be "Can Jesse win?" but rather, "Should Jesse run?" His answer was no.

Beverly Threatt, a professional English major, criticized the two-party electoral process which she said penalizes Jackson because he is black.

"He has done many things for this country and I think that this serves as ample qualification for the presidency of the United States," Threatt said.

Hairston, emphasizing that he is a Christian, said he opposes Jackson because he said Jackson supports gay rights.

Campbell said Jackson has made the media take notice than a black American can run an effective campaign for president. Thus, American politics will never be the same, he said.

"It is not Jesse Jackson that the media must now cover," Campbell said, "it is black presidential hopefuls.

"Just a few years ago the media could ignore a black person who expressed an interest in the presidency, now the media nor the public can afford such an attitude."

Bradley, a industrial engineering major, said "the beauty of the Jackson candidacy" is that Jackson has overcome great social obstacles.

"You're talking about a man who was born with no social background," Bradley said, "a man who was born out of wedlock, as I understand it, who has risen to now be the No. 1 contender, as far as the Democratic Party is concerned, for the presidency of the United States."

Summersett

said that if Summersett is convicted of distributing or selling drugs there is a strong possibility that he will be expelled from the university.

"You have to remember no student will be expelled without due process," Buck said. "Every student charged has to appear before the tribunal and there has to be sufficient evidence."

The tribunal, composed of five students and five faculty members, will review the case and make a decision within the next two weeks, Buck said.

Summersett, who was suspended from the football Tuesday, declined any comment.

I told you what I wanted for the party, Enid. And you didn't get it.
So from now on I'm not going to show my face to any of your friends.

*It's his party and he can cry if he wants. He wanted Bud Light, the light beer with the first name in taste. And there's no way he's gonna settle for less. So come on Enid, ask for Bud Light.
There's nothing worse than losing face at a party.*

Ask for Bud Light.
Everything else is just a light.™
