Journalist Launches First Film

LaVonne McIver
News Editor

Blacks are phenomenal consumers but are not producing, says noted black journalist Tony Brown speaking to an audience at Bennett College.

However, Brown does not live up to this claim.

Brown is writer, director and producer of "The White Girl," a $2 million love story with an anti-drug abuse theme. He plans to recycle the profits from the film into the black community.

Brown challenged students to become leaders and to help build the black economic structure in America.

"As young black students you are part of our legacy," the founder of Black College Day said.

"The most important thing you can be is part of your culture."

Brown hopes his first "Buy Freedom" movie, the name of his campaign to produce economic development among blacks, will chart the course and provide a path to more jobs for blacks in the movie industry.

Although the Motion Picture Association gave the film an R rating, Brown says the film lacks explicit sex and nudity. However Brown cites that the film does show people using drugs and in one instance dying from them, resulting in the film's R rating.

The title of the movie "The White Girl" has a double meaning. It is the street name for cocaine and the way the lead character, a black college student, sees herself.

Brown says the key to fighting drug abuse in the black community is a strong sense of self-esteem.

"In our community we condemn those who like being black," the winner of the NAACP's Image Award said.

"We're not equal because we're not a group."

Brown doesn't plan a general release of the film until 1989. He hopes to produce another movie the following year.

Loan Funds Available

College Foundation Inc. (CFI) announced this week that educational loan funds are still available for the 1988-89 academic year. CFI has financial commitments from North Carolina banks in excess of its current estimates on loan needs for funding its three educational loan programs for 1988-89.

Stafford Loans for Students are for dependent or independent students and are based on financial need. Supplemental Loans for Students are for independent self-supporting students and are not based on financial need. PLUS Loans for Parents are for parents of dependent students and are not based on financial need. All three types of loans are offered under the North Carolina Insured Student Loan Program, with the State Education Assistance Authority providing the guarantee.

The loan funds are available for applications received by the Foundation up to 30 days before the end of the academic period specified in the loan request. According to their enrollment situation and financial situation, students may specify the full academic year, or specific semesters or quarters, as their loan periods.

Additional information and applications are available from the financial aid offices at higher education institutions or directly from College Foundation Inc., Box 12100, Raleigh, NC 27605.

Study Reveals Statistics on Crime

Lenore A. Lewis
Special to the Register

Last year 31 students were killed, more than 1,800 were victims of armed robberies, more than 13,000 were assaulted, and more than 600 were raped (with nine of every 10 rapes going unreported) according to a study done by USA TODAY.

More than 700 law enforcement officials, 698 schools, and 4,000 students were surveyed in an eight-month investigation of campus crime and safety.

There is a strong link between crime and alcohol abuse which is "widespread on campuses," according to the study.

On A&T's campus last year 702 cases of crime were reported to campus police alone. Larceny and/or breaking and entering accounted for almost half of the cases. "There is not an increase in incidents reported," said John Williams, A&T's chief of university police.

Williams says there is no main cause of campus crime. "There is no one cause of campus crime, there are many."

Many university campuses are faced with an increase in campus crime. To help alert students and faculty A&T's Division of Student Affairs sponsored a Conference on Campus Safety.

Students, faculty, staff and other participants should learn what precautionary methods may be taken in order to reduce the number of crimes on campus, according to information given at the conference.

The conference did not single out A&T or any one campus as having a lack of campus safety.

"The goals of the conference, were to develop an awareness of violence on college campuses, to find ways to cope with crime, and to become partners in ensuring that when violence does occur, it will not be tolerated by the community," says Chancellor Edward B. Fort.

The conference, a two-day affair, was attended by about 225 visiting faculty from other colleges and high schools in the area.

There were seven different workshops which discussed: emotional health, physical abuse on campus, legal issues, campus watch, sexuality and the campus environment, alcohol and drug abuse, and safety of minority students on campus.

Lecturer Stresses Self Respect

Mary E. Ellerbe
Special to the Register

Sexuality includes our total self, emotions, values, morals, social relations and the ability to use good judgements, says Ruthena Smith, assistant professor in the Department of Sociology at a recent conference on campus safety.

Smith stressed the importance of knowing and respecting ourselves when it comes to sexuality. "We should know the names of the parts of our bodies and not the slang used to describe each part," said the director. "Being educated about ourselves is the first step to safety."

The Conference on Campus

Safety sponsors hope Sexuality on the Campus Environment informs students and faculty of the significance of 'safe sex'.

"The best way to practice safe sex is abstinence, to do without," Smith said. Pregnancy and sexually-transmitted diseases are rising rapidly on college campuses and students are "dying daily," according to Smith.

Romona Clark, director of the child development laboratory discussed the theories that govern sexuality from Sigmund Freud's standpoint.

Clark suggested that our sexuality stems directly from our childhood and the environment around us. She also said that from the time we are born our sexuality is formed.

The audience, including teachers, professors and students from universities and high schools across the state, were surprised when asked to draw and label a picture of their genital area.

"This is one of the things we do," said Yolanda LeCraft, commissioner on the status of women. "If women are more educated we can educate the males on teaching them to respect us."

The Conference on Campus Safety, which included seven different lectures, was sponsored by the Division of Student Affairs.

Deltas Promote Holiday Spirit

A campus sorority is demonstrating the theme "it is better to give than to receive" by sponsoring clothing and food drives for needy holiday families and financially assisting "Ubiquity 88" and the United Negro

The Alpha Mu Chapter of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority, Inc. was able to supply two families with enough canned goods to last through the Thanksgiving holiday and into the new year, according to Delta soror, Bernadine Anthony.

"We owe the success of our food drive to the campus," Anthony said, "Students were just in a giving mood; They could not give us enough clothes and canned goods."

Wilson 'Cashes In On' Sweepstakes

Who ever would have guessed that calling a radio station to win four record singles would evolve into a 1988 Cutlass Cierra SL, a trip to Orlando, Florida and $50,000 in cash?

Derek Wilson, a junior marketing major, never dreamed that he would be the grand prize winner of the "New Generation Dream Sweepstakes", sponsored by the Pepsi-Cola Company.

Last Summer, Wilson, a native of New Castle, Delaware, called WDAS in Philadelphia and won four record singles from the station. He did not know that the station had submitted his name for the sweepstake drawing.

Wilson's name was announced by the station as the first place winner in the Philadelphia area. One of his friends heard the announcement and told him that he had won. Wilson said that he did not know the sweepstakes was being held.

Twelve other contestants won cars and the trip to Florida with $1,000 in cash. The contestants travelled to Orlando on the weekend of September 23 to compete for the drawing of the keys of the grand prize. The key which was hidden in the glove compartment of one of the cars contained a dummy check for $50,000.

Amazingly enough the winning key was chosen by Harry Stephens, a close friend of Wilson.

"There were three cars left for the finalists to choose," Wilson reported, "and I was ready to choose number five." Stephens, a junior accounting major, suggested that he take number eight instead. Wilson chose number eight and won the $50,000 first place prize.

Wilson plans to put $10,000 in the bank so he can further his education. He also has plans to invest the remainder in CD's (certificates of deposit) and money markets.

Craft Appointed Interim Dean

The departments of Mechanical and Architectural Engineering will have to make some changes by Fall '89 or lose accreditation says Chancellor Fort.

The accreditation board's last evaluation in 1987, jeopardized each department's chance for re-accreditation.

"The ABET will go a long way in determining what our future will be as a university", the chancellor said.

The accreditation board criticized the M.E. and A.E. departments for allowing students to take courses out of sequence. The board also wanted an outline for buying, replacing, maintaining and selling equipment used in the department of Mechanical Engineering.

"The future of the school rests with what you, the students do next fall," said Fort.

Dr. William Craft was appointed interim Dean of the School of Engineering and Chairman of the Department of Mechanical Engineering effective January 1, 1989.

A search committee, appointed by the chancellor is accepting applications for the position of Dean of the School of Engineering.

There are two student representatives on the committee. Regina Richardson an M.E. major and Berdenia Walker an E.E. graduate student.

Dr. Mark Kiel, chairperson of the Department of Accounting, will head the committee.

The deadline for accepting applications is February 1, 1989.

"The process will remain confidential," Fort said. "It would not be fair to the school nor the person applying for the position."

THE MEANING OF CHRISTMAS

CRAMMING

Finals are next week. Some of us have already started studying and some of us will wait until the very last minute and cram and try to do our best.

I challenge you to take time and prepare for your exams. They are nothing to play with. Instead of cramming take the initiative to really study.

Many times we "get by" through cramming for tests and quizzes thinking that it is normal or that it is O.K. Cramming is stupid! In the long run all you really learn is how to give yourself a headache trying to memorize something you don't even understand.

I think there is a misconception that students who make "A's" are born smart. It is how one develops their brain that will determine their capacity for knowledge.

How many times have you heard about the principles of time management? Reading Day has been set aside for you. Utilize it wisely. It may seem as though sometimes there are not just enough hours in the day to get what we want accomplished. We must set priorities.

Take time and study for your finals. I think you will be surprised with the results.

Happy Holidays from The A&T Register.

Associate News Editor
and
Juan Cherry
Features Editor

Classes are over, exams are beginning and the holidays are finally approaching. "Boy, do we need it!" Although various things come to mind when thinking of the Yuletide season we [Sherry Rogers and Juan Cherry] feel that most will agree that Christmas is definitely a time of peace, love and happiness.

Well Sherry, thinking past exams, as hard as it may seem, let's think of Christmas and what it means. Well, it's when you say Christmas that many think of Santa Claus, Christmas trees and gifts, but to me it's more than that.

To me, Santa doesn't hold water to what Christmas really means. Christmas is a miracle in itself for a couple reasons. For one, Christ was born of a virgin mother (that's enough in itself) and secondly Christmas is a miracle because Christ is God himself which means God was born on the day we call Christmas.

So when you think of giving, think the way God did. He gave himself as a gift to the world. Your giving doesn't have to be the biggest or the most expensive, but if we follow God's example and give of ourselves, those who receive will appreciate you more.

Juan, I agree 100 percent. In addition to enjoying the company of family and friends, I also take time to concentrate on the birth of the Christ child and take note of the seriousness of our celebration.

Thoughts of the holidays generate enthusiasm and excitement from within. The stress of the overabundance of school work, tests, deadlines and other responsibilities have been temporarily alleviated. I find time to focus on other things that are less mind-boggling. The holidays serve as a relaxation as well as a re-evaluation period for myself. A time to reflect on the past and reform for the upcoming year.

So, fellow classmates, in the midst of enjoying the camaraderie of the Christmas holidays, take time amidst all the commercialism placed on Christmas and focus on the true meaning of our celebration.

CHRISTMAS FOR THE REGISTER

Paula A. Hamilton
Managing Editor

'Twas the night before Christmas in the Register House The staff were all worried and full of great doubt

Carl expressed with a sigh that the future looked bleak

His explanation was that there was no hard news this week

"What we need is headline news," announced LaVonne

"Something that appeals to everyone,"

"We know that," said Paula

"But what can be done?"

Tammie asked with delight if her 12 entertainment stories would count.

But Carl had to explain that her page was laid out.

Just then there was a noise like the sound of a jingle

The staff rushed to the windows and looked up at the shingles.

A jolly old man rushed the door hard and quick

"Oh my gosh!" exclaimed Sherry

"That there is Saint Nick."

"I bring gifts of great joy," he said "for those in great need."

"And in this case gifts of news would be a good deed."

So the staff took the news and began to follow through

As Santa, Erika, and Jini jammed to "It Takes Two."

Sherry and Cedric joined in and made the party complete

While Juan and Cynthia searched for errors to delete

So the paper was finished and the staff was elated

In walked J.R. asking "What needs to be updated."

"We're finished," said Kim "Santa added his touch."

"Where did Santa go," asked Stephanie "we owe him so much."

Sylvia announced "There he goes," as he drove through the night.

"Merry Christmas to the Register," he said "You're all outta sight."

SECOND OPINION

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

$10 surcharge explained

Letter to the Editor:

A number of students have raised questions regarding the $10.00 surcharge imposed on all students on the meal plan to pay for the damage caused by the food fights in the cafeteria. Basically, the questions revolve around two issues: (a) Why wasn't this fee charged only to the guilty parties? and (b) Why $10.00? This amount is excessive given the fact that it will generate almost $28,000. I most definitely sympathize with these innocent, law abiding students who have to suffer with the immature few. However, to get this childish behavior stopped every student who eats in the cafeteria must assume some responsibility in reporting this kind of irresponsible behavior.

As far as the money is concerned, let me share with you a breakdown of how it is going to be used: the security system (eight cameras and monitors)-$15,000; replacement of broken glasses and dishes-$5,000; medical expenses of injured students, plus litigation fee, if any-$8,000. The last item can multiply five fold if the university is sued and a judgment is rendered against the university for negligence.

You can see therefore, that the money collected will not be enough in the event that the parents of the injured students decide to pursue legal action. Frankly, I am not interested in your ten dollars - I am far more interested in stopping this behavior that is causing serious public relations problems for the university.

The vast majority of you are good students who are here to get a quality education. You must not allow a few bad apples to damage the reputation of your university or cause your fees to go up. Any time you witness this kind of behavior, whether in the dining hall of in your residence hall, please let someone know about it. If you want to be anonymous, your identity will be protected.

I appreciate your understanding in this matter.

Thanks for support

Dear Editor:

The election is over. The people have spoken. I congratulate Howard Coble on his reelection.

I ran for Congress because I deeply believe that a greatness of a society is best measured by the concern of one generation for the next.

As a father of three and a grandfather of three, I was and am still deeply concerned about our huge national debt, our trade imbalance, the need to improve our public schools, the increasing cost of health care, the textile problem, affordable child care and affordable housing, the Japanese and other foreigners buying up America, and many many other problems.

I would like to take this opportunity to publicly thank those who supported our candidacy. I hope you will continue to be involved in working for a better America.

Sincerely yours,
Tom Gilmore

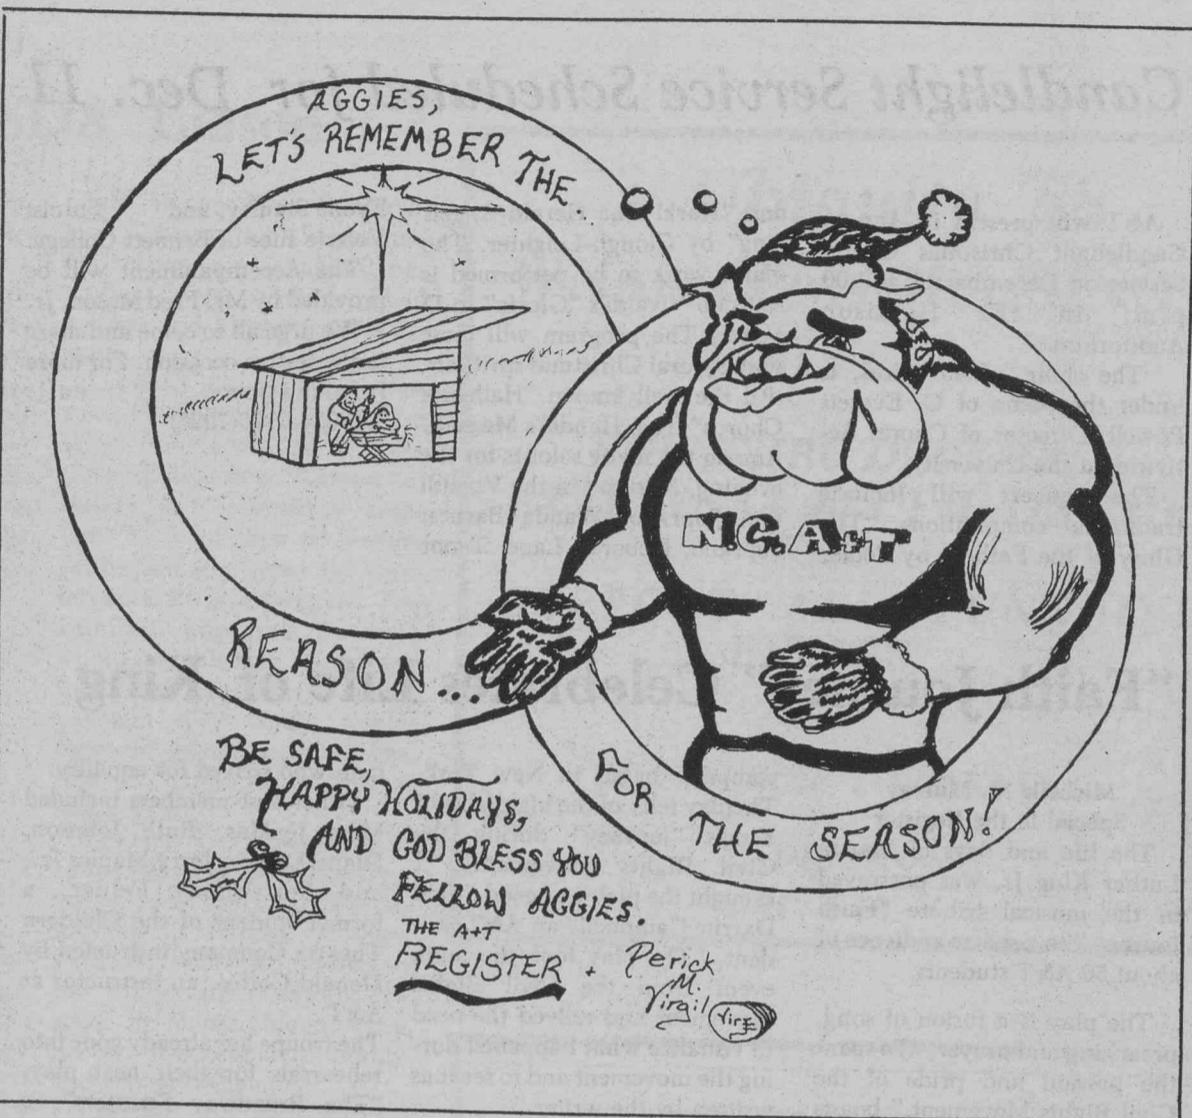

'Tau Beta Pi is no honor'

Letter to the Editor:

The North Carolina Epsilon chapter of Tau Beta Pi at A&T is very slack. A definition of an organization is one that plans and organizes.

Tau Beta Pi is far from this. Initiates were redelegated to finding out their responsibilities from members at the very last minute. The members definitely have a lack of communication. There was a lack of concern from many members who stated "You'll know" or "We'll let you know."

In most organizations there is an emphasis placed on what must be done to accomplish their goals. Tau Beta Pi has been very slow in doing this.

The purpose of Tau Beta Pi is not to recognize engineering students of scholarship and outstanding character. But their purpose, it seems, is not to suit the individual to the organization, but rather one that suits the members in the organization.

I'm an honor student, but to be associated with Tau Beta Pi members and their procedures is no honor. Tau Beta Pi members are above average in scholarship and in other areas of development, but believe me my fellow Aggies, they are a class below in human development.

Because of their deceit to the initiates in their sly ways, I only seek to let my fellow Aggies know what is going on.

Nationally Tau Beta Pi stands for integrity, honesty, and outstanding character, but the N.C. Epsilon chapter doesn't totally represent these principles.

I recognize Tau Beta Pi not as a group of great achievers, but only as a group of great deceivers.

Comments are appreciated.

Christmas greetings

Greetings Aggies:

Christmas is a wonderful time of the year. No other time of the year quite expresses the feelings and emotions brought about by this special holiday. For some, it is a time to celebrate the birth of our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ. For others, it is a time of the year to show those that we love how much we appreciate them for all that they do and have become in our life.

Isn't it special to have a family or loved ones to be with you and share in your happiness throughout the holiday season. Don't you remember as a child, how excited you were to know that there was something, large or small, waiting for you underneath the Christmas tree when you awakened on Christmas morning? It could have been extravagant or something very small, but the true and most important factor is that it was given in love.

Wouldn't it be wonderful if everyone could experience the kind of Christmas that we cherish most? Wouldn't it be great if every child could wake up on Christmas morning and have a Christmas tree with a gift underneath. Unfortunately, this is not the case. You are 100 percent correct when you say that Christmas is more than just material blessings. This, however, is very difficult to explain to a child.

This Christmas, the Student Government Association and the Office of Miss A&T are working to make a change in our community. We want to give back a little of ourselves to those a little less fortunate than we are. On Sunday, December 11, we will sponsor a party for some of the less fortunate children of our community. It will be held in the Student Union Ballroom at 7:00 p.m. Won't you join us in our endeavors? Whatever your talent may be-gift wrapping, decorating, games coordinator, singing cards or cleanup- we can use you.

There will be sign-up sheets posted for various committees on the doors of Room 208 in the Student Union and 503 Barbee Hall. Further instructions will

"Faith Journey" Celebrates Life of King

Michelle M. Murray
Special to the Register

The life and days of Martin Luther King Jr. was portrayed in the musical tribute "Faith Journey" to a sparse audience of about 50 A&T students.

The play is a fusion of song, preaching and prayer, "To spark the passion and pride of the Civil Rights Movement," boasts the programs passed out before the performance.

"Faith Journey" is played by the group The Believers, a black company based in New York. The play tells of the highlights of King's "journey" during the Civil Rights Movement. "I thought the play was good," said Darrin Campbell, an A&T student. "The play took the main event from the Civil Rights Movement and relived the need to visualize what happened during the movement and to see it as written by the writer."

"I enjoyed playing the role of King," said Fredrick Owens. Owens said it was a privilege to play the role of an influential man who strived for equality.

Other cast members included Mike Jenkins, Ruth Johnson, Diane Leaver, Jerry Maples Jr., and Persephony Felder, a former student of the Childern Theatre Company instructed by Donald Coffee, an instructor at A&T.

The troupe has already gone into rehearsals for their next play, "The Broadway Strutters", a play on black women singers of Broadway. They plan to return to the Carolina area with their new play.

Crandall started his career with SCS as a student trainee in Halifax County. After graduation in 1973 with a BS degree in Agricultural Education, he started to work as a Soil Conservationist in Wilkes County. He worked as a Soil Conservationist in Durham, Pitt, and New Hanover Counties before being promoted to District Conservationist for Moore and Montgomery Counties in 1981. He is a native of Edgecombe County. He received a certificate for outstanding performance from the USDA-Soil Conservation Service in 1978, 1982, and 1984. He also received a certificate for outstanding performance from the Moore Soil and Water Conservation District this year.

In July of this year, Crandall was selected to fill the newly established position by SCS to accelerate assistance to Limited Resource Farmers in North Carolina. This position is located on the campus of A&T. While serving in this position as the liason person between the

Crandall

USDA-Soil Conservation Service and A&T, he works with SCS and University officials to establish the first demonstration plot of resource management systems on the university farms. Conservation practice included in the demonstration plot were Field Stripcropping, Grasses and Legumes in Rotation, Conservation Tillage, Contour Farming, Crop Residue use, Cover and Green Manure Crop Conservation, Cropping Sequence, Chiseling and Subsoiling, Critical area seeding, Field borders and Vegetative Waterways.

Crandall also worked out an agreement with the Farmers in Home Administration for the Limited Resource Farmers to receive a Conservation Loan from FHA for their 50 percent established cost under the Conservation Reserve Program. The Limited Resource Farmers would pay this loan back out of their first three years annual payment they would receive from the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, ASCS office.

Crandall also worked out an agreement with the Stone Container Corp. to furnish free tree seedling to Limited Resource Farmers, who participated in the Conservation reserve Program in Moore, Montgomery, Anson, Rockingham, Stanly, and Scotland Counties.

Crandall will start his new position on January 3, 1989. Crandall is the first minority to hold such a position with the Soil Conservation Service in North Carolina.

Team Strives for Best Performance

John F. Allen

Special to the Register

The North Carolina A&T men's basketball team has ruled the Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference for most of the decade, but for the first time in a long time, there is some speculation as to how they will finish in this year's race for the MEAC crown.

The Aggies lost four key players from last year's championship team and have since replaced them with some relatively inexperienced talent.

Head coach Don Corbett says that the overall team morale is good. "I don't feel any pressure to repeat as conference champs. We have to just go out and play hard day in and day out." After an opening season loss, Coach Corbett says that his team has to progress and mature with each game.

December will be a tough month. The Aggies will face conference powers Florida A&M, and South Carolina State. The Aggies have won two big games against Alabama State, and Winston-Salem State.

Corbett says that if his team is to be successful, that his perimeter shooters will have to be successful because of the inexperience inside.

Seniors Chuckie Becton and Corvin Davis are expected to lead the team to the success that Coach Corbett alluded to earlier. Davis' role as a player has changed since the departure of all-conference performer Thomas "Ice" Griffis. "I now have to focus more on scoring since "Ice" is gone," said Davis. "Because if Chuckie and myself do not play well, we won't win a whole lot of games."

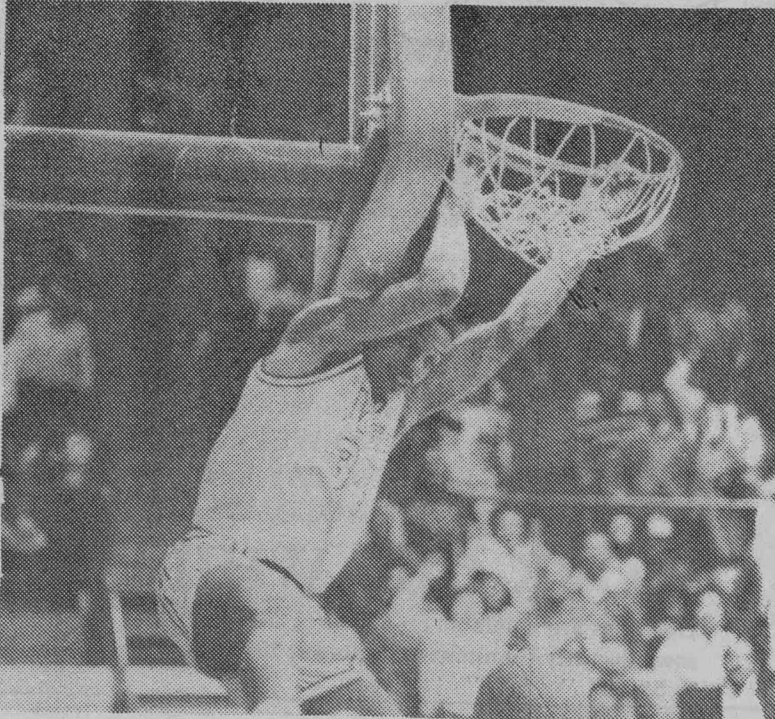

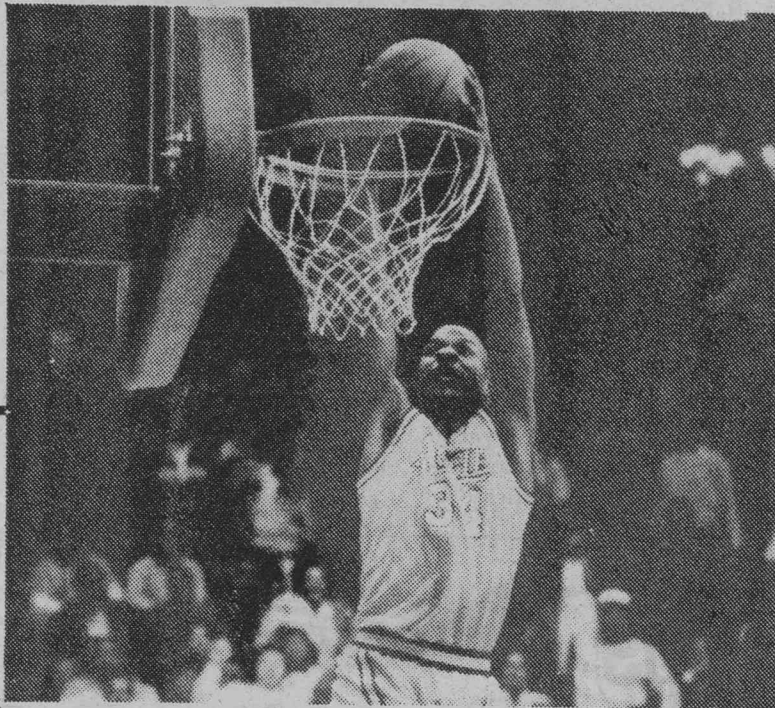

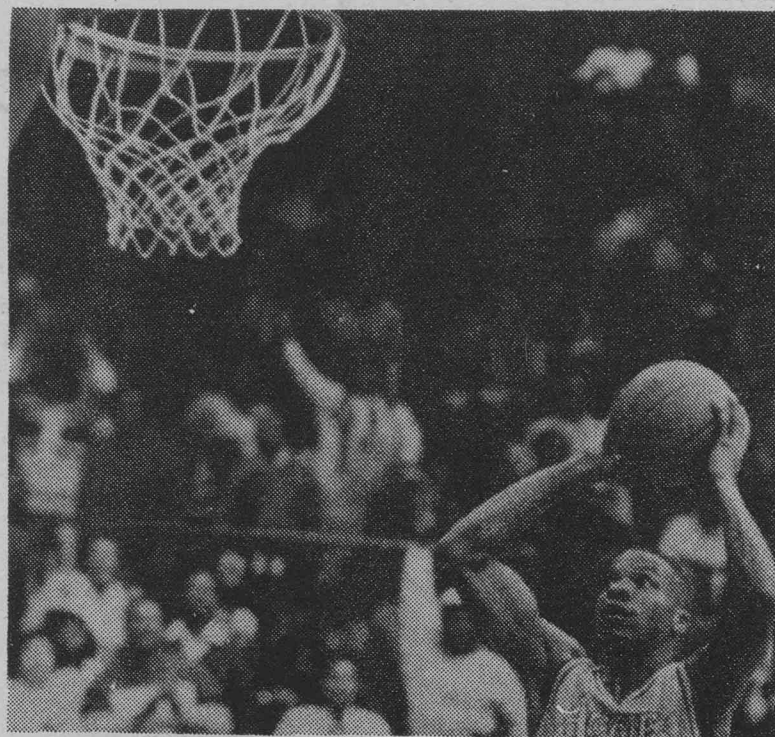

All-American candidate Chuckie Becton is the team's leading three-point shooter, and his success is pertinent for a successful Aggie season. "I don't feel any pressure to perform," says Becton. "I just know my responsibilities and go out and play as hard as I can and to the best of my abilities."

Sophomore guard Glenn Taggart has to step in and assume the point guard position left vacant by Griffis, and is expected to play at peak performance levels every time he takes the court.

"I don't feel that I have to do everything myself," said Taggart. "I just play my game, and share the load with Corvin and Chuckie, and if we do our job, then we can overcome the inexperience and have a successful season."

So the "new-look" Aggies are up to their old tricks again, riding a two game winning streak. Don't count the Aggies out just yet. It appears that the pride will explode again this year as the Aggies hold court this 88-89 season.

All-American candidate, Chuckie Becton, sizes the situation as he goes up for the first "Aggie Slam" of the season during the A&T/Winston-Salem State game Wednesday night.

A&T and UNC-G to Sponsor Tournament in 1990

Cedric Bryant
Sports Editor

North Carolina A&T and UNC-Greensboro men's basketball teams will meet for the first time in a non-conference matchup during the 1989-90 season.

The first game is scheduled for Jan. 24, 1990, according to A&T Athletic Director Orby Moss, who made the announcement at a press conference in Corbett Sports Center.

"This relationship between A&T and UNC-G is of significant importance to area basketball fans in general and the Greensboro community in particular," Moss added.

The contest will be played in Corbett Sports Center and will be a doubleheader beginning the women's team.

"We are excited about the beginning of our new athletic era and the advent of a new rivalry with A&T," UNC-G Athletic Director Nelson Bobb said. "I truly believe the future competition between the schools will benefit the city and be a welcome addition to the local sports calendar."

A&T and UNC-G will also compete in the Greensboro Holiday Classic basketball tournament on Dec. 18-19, 1990 in the Greensboro Coliseum. In the tournament, A&T and UNC-G will not play each other, but will switch opponents on the second night of play.

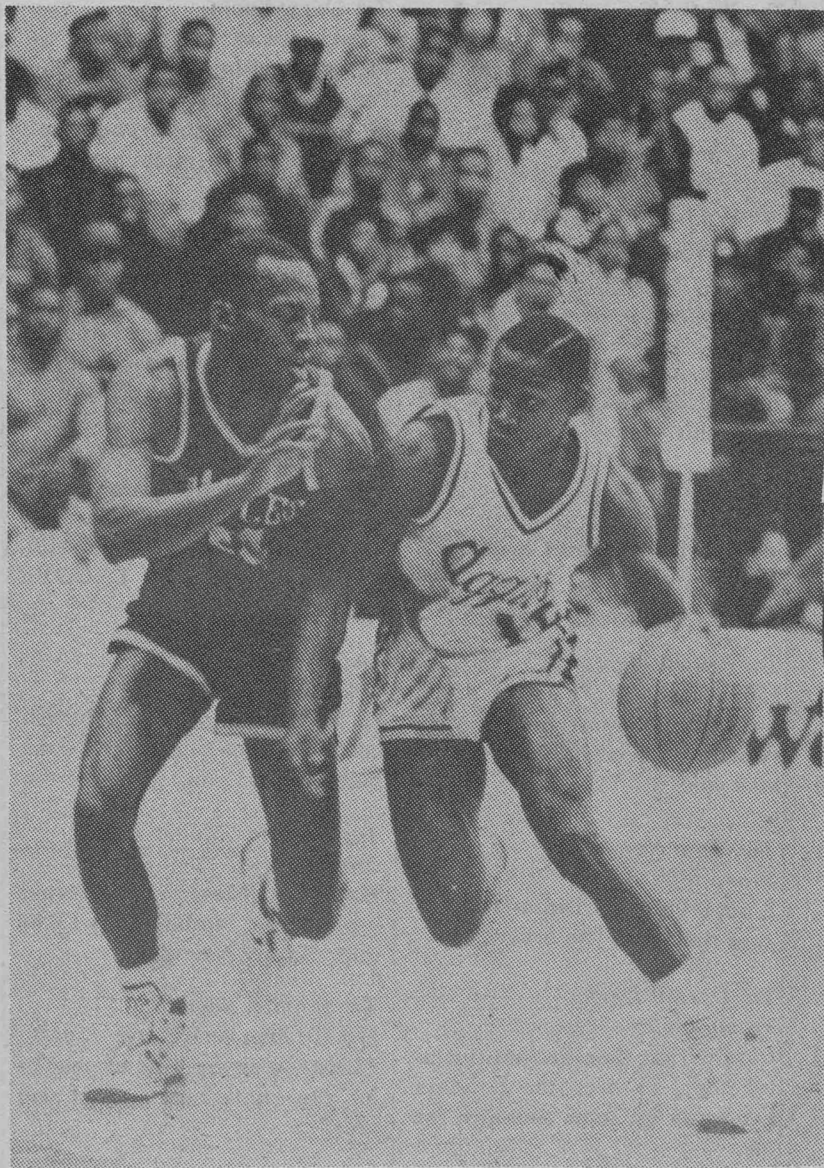

Greensboro Mayor Vic Nussbaum was in attendance at the press conference along with A&T Chancellor Edward Fort, UNC-G Chancellor William Moran and Tom Osbourne, chairman of the Greensboro Sports Council.

UNC-G is currently in a three-year transition period that will result in NCAA Division I status for its athletic teams in 1991.

Corbett Gets New Look

Corbett Gymnasium underwent a facelift this past year in preparation for the 1988-89 basketball season.

Among the additions to the gym is the new $90,000 wooden basketball floor. The floor replaces the old rubber synthetic floor which was in use since the building was completed.

"It's better on the knees," said Tim Abney, head women's basketball coach, "although it has taken some time to get use to," added Kim Broadnax, a senior on the team.

Lighting fixtures were also added this year, which according to Orby Moss, Jr., A&T's athletic director is a benefit to the players as well as an effort to attract television stations, such as ESPN, to televise Aggie games.

The ground floor concession stand was remodeled into a press room that contains telephones, fax machines and copy machines. The fax machines are tied into the NCAA and MEAC lines which enables A&T to send the game's statistics directly to those offices immediately following the game.

The women's basketball locker room was completed with carpeted floors and individual dressing stalls. The blue chairs along courtside were purchased this summer for the player's comfort during the games.

"We have the best gym in the conference and we ought to win more games," said Moss. "The fans have shown more excitement this year than they have in the past half decade."

Nine Spartan teams are competing at the Division II level in 1988-89, and for the first time UNC-G is providing athletic scholarships to aid student-athletes.

"We are on track in our preparations and we're ready for serious competition," Moran said.

A&T is a Division I affiliate and a member of the Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference. The Aggies have won seven MEAC titles and appeared in the same number of NCAA tournaments.

Ticket Policy Re-instated

Christal Hardy
Special to the Register

Aggie basketball is not the only thing back this season. The half-ticket policy joins us again.

This basketball season Aggie students have to purchase tickets before the game in order to be admitted. "The ticket system is not new to the Aggie family, now it's back once more," says Lynn Davis, a junior at A&T.

Patricia Bryant, ticket manager says, "The major reason for the half-ticket policy is it cuts down the ins and outs of students and gives the ticket sellers an estimate of how many tickets they can sell per empty seat."

Bryant stated it also stops students from sneaking into games. "The half-ticket policy will help students adjust to the new system they will start next year using bar codes for the back of students' ID cards, to be used for basketball as well as football games," she said.

"There will be extended hours to pick up tickets to help students adjust to the change. There will also be a line at registration so students won't forget to pick up tickets for the January games," says an employee at the ticket office.

"There hasn't been much trouble with the ticket system except some students may not have their ID cards and we have to send them back," says an Aggie club member who takes tickets.

"You must have tickets and ID cards for these students' insurance," says Bryant. One student stated, "I don't know how I'm going to keep up with my tickets."

"Several division-one schools are using the half-ticket or the bar code system," says Bryant. "By next year A&T will be on the bar code as well."

Award-winning Play Celebrates Comedienne Moms Mabley

"Moms," the raucous one-woman show starring Clarice Taylor of Grandma Huxtable fame on the Bill Cosby Show, will tour in North Carolina during February 1989.

Rocrae Repertory Theatre of Durham will produce the Obie Award-winning play about North Carolina native Jackie "Moms" Mabley at Duke University's Page Auditorium in Feb. 11 and 12, 1989. The Carolina Theater will feature the play in Greensboro Feb. 13 and 14, 1989.

The Off-Broadway show, written by Ben Caldwell, will be in Brevard, Moms Mabley's home, for one day, Feb. 15, in honor of Moms.

Moms Mabley was one of the state's greatest comediennes. Born in Brevard during the 1890's, she created her character of Moms as a part of a nightclub act and went on to headline at national theaters. During her half-century career, she appeared in a number of movies as well as on several television talk shows including the Merv Griffin, Mike Douglas and the Flip Wilson shows.

Although Moms died in 1975, she lives on in Clarice Taylor's show. Taylor won an Obie Award for her portrayal of Moms during its original Off-Broadway run. She has appeared often on television and on Broadway. Her latest Broadway appearance was in "The Wiz." She has achieved wide acclaim for her performances in theatres throughout the world.

Rocrae Repertory Theatre is a Durham-based theatre group which produces culturally enriching plays about the African American experience. During the summer of 1988, Rocrae produced "The Amen Corner" in honor of James Baldwin.

Shows on Feb. 11, 12, 13 and 14 begin at 8 p.m. A matinee is scheduled for 4 p.m. Feb. 12. Tickets for the show are $19.00 in advance and $23.00 at the door. Tickets are available at Ticketron.

For more information call (919)688-5477.

Taylor will make an promotional appearance in Greensboro on Dec. 17 at Carolina Circle Mall and Bee Jays Nightclub.

While the sorority has shown support of the area needy families they are aware of campus and national concerns.

According to Anthony, the sorority is working in conjunction with WNAA radio station to promote the "Ubiquity 88" fundraiser.

Several of the sorority members work at the radio station and the organization plans to make a monetary donation to the fundraiser, Anthony said.

They have also worked along with their graduate chapter organizing campus tours for high school students from various areas of the country.

The United Negro College Fund, another sorority project, will also receive a monetary donation this semester.

They took gifts and went caroling at the Bell House, a home for the handicapped on December 8.
