A&T: 100 Years of History and Accomplishments

By Letitia Wiggins Chief Reporter

Celebrating its 100th anniversary, North Carolina Agricultural and Technical State University in Greensboro, North Carolina is one of the foremost comprehensive universities in the southeastern United States. Since 1891, A&T has been committed to providing higher education for the state and nation.

North Carolina A&T State University is one of two land-grant institutions in the state. It is the largest of eleven predominately Black universities in the state of North Carolina with an enrollment of approximately 6,500 students.

When the school first opened, its existence was a college, not a university. In 1902, it dropped all of the female enrollees making the college all-male. A&T did not become co-ed again until 1928.

At this time the school was called Agricultural and Technical University of North Carolina.

It wasn't until 1967 that A&T was elevated to University status changing the name to North Carolina Agricultural and Technical University, as it is known today.

Since then, A&T has been organized with course offerings in the Schools of Education, Business and Economics, Technology, Agriculture, Engineering, Nursing, Graduate Studies, and the College of Arts and Sciences.

Today, all of the Schools and the College of Arts and Sciences are nationally accredited.

Dr. Gibbs, An Aggie Legend

By Letitia Wiggins Chief Reporter

Dr. W. T. Gibbs

Dr. W. T. Gibbs, alumni

Dr. Gibbs is a wonderful character that we should acknowledge for his contributions to the university. Since he was a part of the first class to graduate from A&T in 1926, his story is one of perseverance and dedication.

The first class of students at A&T consisted of 76 students, 43 of whom were Black. With the passing of Jim Crow laws, many Black students were unable to attend college. Dr. Gibbs, along with other students, fought against this discrimination.

In 1926, Dr. Gibbs received his degree in electrical engineering from A&T. He went on to become a successful engineer and served as the President of the North Carolina chapter of the National Association of Black Engineers.

Dr. Gibbs also played a significant role in the development of the university's campus. He was instrumental in the construction of several buildings, including the Coliseum, which is still standing today.

Dr. Gibbs was the first Black person to serve as a professor at A&T. He taught courses in electrical engineering and mathematics for many years.

In conclusion, Dr. W. T. Gibbs is a true legend and an inspiration to all students at A&T. His contributions to the university and the community have left a lasting impact.

bers of the newspaper and to say goodbye to the ones who were leaving.

"I felt that it was a symbol of good organization at the paper," Gibbs said. "This tradition also continues today.

In 1955, Gibbs, then 63, became the fourth president of A&T. Five years later he retired and was made President Emeritus.

Gibbs says he's watched the school grow from a college into a university and he wants it to continue to grow.

"A&T must continue to hire well-trained professionals as instructors and update the teaching processes in all fields of study," says Gibbs.

"I would just like to see A&T continue to be a great institution for higher education," he added.

Dr. Gibbs lives in Greensboro and will celebrate his 100th birthday in six months.

We bless the power that gave thee birth to help us in our need

We ever strive to honor here on earth all loyalty to yield

REFRAIN

With joy, with joy, dear A. and T., thy students turn from thee

There are programs in computer science, chemical, civil, architectural, industrial, mechanical, and electrical engineering, business, education, mass communication, biology, chemistry, nursing, physical, social work, the fine arts, humanities, political science, and technology.

The student body at A&T today represent 50 countries, 29 states, and 99 foreign countries.

The student activity is composed of many things, clubs, fraternities, sororities, councils, committees, boards, teams, sports of all kinds, and many more.

Over 65 percent of the faculty hold doctoral degrees.

A&T ranks third among North Carolina's 11 public universities, with $50 million in research and development project spending more than $15 million annually.

The School of Engineering now, has a Ph.D. program in cooperation with North Carolina State University.

As the future develops, A&T will continue to maintain its status as a leader among institutions of higher education.

Nothing's New

Greg Williams
Editor-in-Chief

Even since the beginning of time, grievances have plagued the Black race. A recent rash of violence in Greensboro has shocked a lot of people, but Black on Black crime is nothing new. Before America was "discovered," Africa imported over 100,000 guns from European nations. For the few Africans, theirs were lawless classes, indentured servants and prisoners of tribal wars to be used as strange weapons.

Africans were also traded for other luxury items, such as rum and cheap European made tools which often costed them their lives. Not only were these groups destroying the economies of the tribes, but it also destroyed the trust between tribes and even countries; a weak Africa was left to fall prey to the more technically advanced murderers from Europe who eventually raped Africa of over 40 million people.

There remains today the high position Blacks are not only failed to help Blacks but are consciously hindering the progress of Blacks. Clarence Thomas said Blacks out.

Here's a guy who feels that Blacks should not get special opportunities to prove themselves in a country still afflicted with racism and discrimination. President Bush said Blacks should be happy to have Thomas on the Supreme Court.

But you would expect Bush to say that since Thomas agrees with the President's ideology and reasoning for viewing several Civil Rights Bills. The fact that Thomas is supported by David Duke, the ex-Grand Wizard of the Ku Klux Klan, is enough for me not to want major decisions that might change my life to come under his control.

The government uses people like Thomas to keep other Blacks "in their place." Studies show that the same percentage of Blacks are in poverty as 20 years ago. But it's nothing that counts.

This kind of statistic shows that the government is succeeding at keeping a large portion of our race oppressed. This oppression is the root of the violence, killing and eventually, genocide of the Black race.

Our only hope is to make intelligent choices while voting. The most important choice is to decide to vote. Otherwise, like runaway slaves, we will be captured, all of our progress will be lost, and the freedom to improve ourselves mentally, financially, and socially without the approval of the government will be eliminated.

It's after year, after year, I'm sure all of you know. The Register staff has produced brilliant and quality campus news and resource papers biweekly, during the academic year. The staff has put in much effort and dedication to report A&T's news, events and juicy gossip, and sometimes to keep their readers abreast.

But sometimes, we read about it. That's when we saw it, that's when we learned what really went on. And what was the force behind our knowledge? The Register.

But there's one problem. We go to the best university in the world, and granted, we have the newspaper to cover our events on the "yard." But what about Greensboro?

We come up, down and over to Greensboro to start our college career at A&T; stay in the dorms our freshmen and sophomore years then move into apartments for the last two years (we hope). We spend a few years under construction watching the Greensboro Zoo, Christmas, and totally disclaim Greensboro as our home. Thanks a lot, Aggies.

Face it, we all live here! This is our home and will be our home for at least four years, more if we are granted. And the people here whose home is Greensboro, is already devalued. All of you who come from Washington or North Carolina know what I'm talking about - drop them and accept Greensboro as your home.

That's where I come in. Greensboro is a modern city with everyday city happenings, one of which is news. Things happen here that are not only in the Black community and even our families everywhere. We have a stake in the community as much as it has on us.

The two go hand in hand. We need each other and as, students, we need to know what's going on around us, not just the Black community, but the whole A&T. We need some good, old-fashioned community news. And that's just what we're going to give you.

There's a new addition to the Register this year called "Around The Black." This page will be filled with interesting stories and features about the community and the people living in it. So from now on, be foreverful. If you think it's too much to accept Greensboro as your own, too bad. Be smart, read and become more aware about what's going on outside our campus. Don't worry, you'll enjoy it.

Self-Defense Is A Must

Several weeks ago, an 81-year-old man was arrested and charged with shooting a 15-year-old boy who, along with two other black males, was taking a "walk through the woods." The boy has since been released from Moses Cone Hospital. The charges were later dropped.

One of the first things you need to do is to defend yourself. There were three of them because of you. He said he carried the gun because he believed his neighborhood was dangerous. He also said he didn't want to hurt anyone, but he had no other choice.

Some of his neighbors disagreed. They said he didn't have to shoot the boy who, by the way, was unarmed. I, for one, think he had no other choice.

As I read the story that appeared in the Greensboro News and Record, several arguments flashed through my mind.

People say he shouldn't have shot the boy. However, one must realize that we're talking about 81-year-old man was being attacked by three high school-aged boys (the victim was 15), who probably would have had no trouble handling him one-on-one. In other words, you're asking a senior citizen to fight three teenagers by himself. Not an easy task.

Another argument I thought about concerned the reason the elderly man was carrying the gun in the first place. He said he needed to protect himself because he lived in a dangerous neighborhood. I couldn't believe that we live in a era where even a senior citizen isn't safe. If they aren't, then who is?

I know I sound like a "bleeding heart" so let me make my point. Black-on-black crime has apparently sunk to a new low. At least, it seemed like the young black male was at risk the most. As a result of this, it seems that we have problems with the age group that used to command respect from everyone.

Whenever I hear an incident of black-on-black crime, I think of Kool Moe Dee's line in the song "Self Destruction": "I never ever run from the Ku Klux Klan and I shouldn't have to run from a black man..." Neither should your grandparents.

Where Are The Buy African-American Campaigns?

Senna Lane
Campus News

The recession has cause me to become concerned with the plight of African-American businesses in this weakened economy.

I was flipping through the pages of Essence Magazine when I saw an advertisement that I consider offensive.

It was an ad for a new watch, the base of the ad did mention me, it was the message. The ad was part of the United States' campaign to bolster the idea of Americans buying products manufactured in the United States.

The campaign was developed after the United States was a decline in employment opportunities across the country which directly affected the influx of money in the American economy.

Feeling disgusted, I pulled out one of my favorite black magazines and turned to WONY Channel, while watching the "Good Evening" show, I remembered that they had been spotlighting North Carolina businesses in many of their shows. I tried to remember how many African-American businesses they featured when they turned on a commercial that bashed several North Carolina businesses for which the station urged support as part of its "Buy North Carolina First Campaign."

I assume that the station established the campaign to enhance the local economy, but I have yet to see a spotlight placed on any African-American companies in any of the commercials.

Since African-Americans spend only 6.6 percent of their income with African-American owned businesses, the decrease in spending among African-Americans in their own communities needs to be considered and developed.

We are Americans and we, too, live in North Carolina, and I believe there needs to be a special campaign designed by us for the specific purpose of providing increased support and revenue for our African-American businesses.

We, the A&T Register Staff would like to take this opportunity to apologize for the delay in publication. Due to circumstances beyond our control, the first issue was delayed. However we appreciate your patience and understanding, and look forward to providing you, the students, faculty and friends-with a quality paper in future issues.

Mandela Lauds Castro In New Book

The African National Congress will always stand with the poor and the righteous," said Nelson Mandela, president of the ANC, at a rally of tens of thousands in Manama, Cuba, in July. "We will ensure sooner rather than later that they rule the land of their birth.

And when the moment of victory arrives in South Africa, Mandela said, "it will have been made possible not only by their efforts but through solidarity, support and encouragement of the great Cuban people."

Mandela's speech, together with the talk given from the same platform by Cuban President Fidel Castro, is contained in a new book to be published by Pathfinder Press November 1.

The world as we know it today is an intriguing combination of corruption and potential. As it stands now the negative and the positive are raging a war and leaving behind too many casualties to mention, from our perspectives, one can clearly see that it seems as if the negative has the positive on the ropes awaiting the knock-out punch.

What must be done in order to win the war? The only true and lasting solution to the many problems that plague the Black community is to create a generalized, holistic approach to life.

As we a people must strive daily to learn and teach all that we can about the vastness of our beautiful ancient cultures. Our ancestors profoundly understood the oneness of all manifestations of art and music, science, and philosophy. This mentality was the foundation of all ancient holistic cultures. Through careful interaction with nature and truthful self-inspection our ancestors created civilizations that lasted for thousands of years.

It was understood that all things have a purpose and are interdependent. This understanding was revealed through their entire way of life, their diet, their personal interactions, even their language.

The interdependence of all things within the universe is necessary in order for life to exist. An understanding of this master plan is needed in order to create a stable, effective environment for ourselves as we continue to evolve. Therefore our perceptions must be transformed from where they presently are.

At this time in our vast history we live in a world that separates all things and does not have the ability to make the necessary corrections so that a holistic view can once again be established.

One basic yet profound example is the fact that we make no connection between our diets and our physical, mental, and spiritual health. Consequently we perceive that we can eat what we choose, when we chose, and how much we chose without any negative effects upon our health.

It is critical for our survival as a people that we research the traditions of our ancestors. We need a light. We need a direction. We need to light a candle even though it may be small.

Culture as defined by Webster's New International Dictionary is "the total pattern of human behavior and the products embodied in thought, speech, art, and action subsisting in a people and transmitted from generation to generation." It is the foundation upon which our society is built. Culture, as defined thus, is an integral part of our existence.

Through the centuries of our existence, our ancestors have inherited a system that is inscribed in the image of the Creator. Through their society an intricate system of education and initiation was developed in order to bring our divine creative faculties into physical manifestation.

This system of education was totally different from the system we presently find ourselves in. The current educational system forces, as an information, much of "falsehood" upon man's capacity for learning and transmitting knowledge to succeeding generations through the use of tools, language, and systems of abstract thought.

African cultures practiced a lifestyle that acknowledged the omnipotence of the Creator. We have inherited this system and we as a people must continue to learn and understand it.

The root word of education is the Latin word educere, meaning to draw out or lead out. The process of true education should be to pull out inner knowledge and understanding that has been held in the mind by man. Once this is achieved we can then move towards creating a world where all things are understood to be interdependent, and therefore one.

The ancient African prophet, "Man, know thyself", sums up the civilizations and manifestations of our ancestors. Viewing the present state of the Black community, it is the responsibility of all Africans to search for ways in which our divine knowledge can be brought forth. Serious inner examination is required as we quest to rebuild the world.

It all starts with a look in the mirror.

Every other person you see is wearing "X" articles and to this day the last month of those people were wearing "Black Bar"'s shirts and you and I both know that Spike Lee is just a far, or there is a genuine growth of interest in his teachings.

The ancient African prophets taught us to remove the things that are hindering our progress. It was taught that when a person becomes enmeshed in a rut, driven by his inanimate art, he/she discovers the truth that his/her true self is a person who is committed to making others see his/her true self.

Spike Lee has discovered his true self and is committed to making others see his/her true self.

This article is intended to be informative and respectful to all races and cultures.

Knowledge Lost: "X"-ploitation

The New York Times re- ported that railees were behind "Bring Me. Lee's exploitation to the masses. Baraka said that as a spirit of black pride and national- ism grew among African Americans, and with it a re- vived interest in Malcolm X's teachings, it was an important part of his influence.

Shelly Shabazz, Malcolm X's wife, said that those who knew and respected him knew that he had always been protective of him and his leg- acy.

Just because Spike Lee is doing a film, doesn't mean he own Malcolm," said Shabazz. The script for the movie was written by James Baldwin and Arnold Perl in 1969.

Elmore Braxton, Harlem community leader said the film should not be another "Spike Lee Joint." Even if Spike Lee follows the Baldwin's script word for word, the commercial effect is irreversible.

A&T Dedicates $600,000 Lab In McNair

By Lawrence Silver
Managing Editor
The department of electrical engineering celebrated the opening of the new Microelectronics Fabrication Laboratory with a ribbon-cutting ceremony in McKin Hall on Thursday, Oct. 10. This is a great day for A&T's electrical engineering department," said Dr. Wind- sion, director of the electrical engineering department, as he cut the ribbon at the entrance of the lab. He was joined in the ribbon-cutting by Dr. Harold Martin, Dean of the School of Engineering, Dr. Richard Fair, vice-president of the Microelectronics, Communications and Supercomputing Center, North Carolina. Dr. Webb Collins, lab director and Darryl Simpson of Rockwell Solid State Laboratory.

According to Dr. John Foster, current chairman of the electrical engineering department, the purpose of the lab is to "create an environment for exposure to microelectronics." Microelectronics is the key technology for computers," he said.

Campus Security Tightens Up

By Lori Ingram
Staff Writer
North Carolina A&T & T's campus police are getting ready to take on a record-breaking crowd to make sure that the university's campus is a safe one.

Not only will we have local people attending, but we will expect people outside of Greensboro attending the festivites," said John Williams, chief of police administration.

"The campus police are dealing with a whole lot of behavior. We can only do so much," Foster said. Williams explained campus police that are sworn officers in the state by North Carolina. "These police officers patrol the entire campus," he said.

Then are the resident security officers, who patrol the resident halls from 8 p.m. to 4 a.m. Chief Williams said he didn't want a repeat of the incident that occurred last year's concert. Someone was shot after an altercation near Moore Gym.

In addition to help out the campus with homecoming festivities, Williams said that Friendly Patrol Inc. and Faulkner Patrol security agencies have been contracted to help out with bar shows and pre-dawn. Kimber Guard and Patrol will assist with the football game.

Williams said that they have also discussed A&T's Army and Air Force cadets to help monitor the parade. Resident security will play a big part in patrolling the campus during homecoming. They will help prevent a lot of break-ins that may occur on campus while students are attending the homecoming festivities," said Williams.

Williams explained that these officers have a good rapport with the students living on campus. This in turn can discourage a lot of negative behavior. "Because of the resident security officers there has been a 90% drop in crime within the resident halls," he said.

Williams advised students not to drink as much as they did last year and to show a little restraint in the football games.

Aggies vs. Bison In Homecoming Showdown

By B.J. Evans

North Carolina A&T Aggies will entertain the Howard Bison in the biggest game in the Centennial Homecoming.

The Aggies come into this game following an outstanding performance in the 38-13 win over East Tennessee.

This weekend, the Aggies will have to deal with a hungry and very hungry Bison squad. "We took them apart last year with our defense and special teams and I expect them to be ready," said Head Coach Bill Hayes.

The Bison (2-4) are led by quarterback Donald Cen, who has thrown for 657 yards and seven touchdowns. They run from a multiple offensive set, and because they had two weeks to prepare, the Bison pose a big threat to the Aggie defense.

"This game really worries us because they've had two weeks to get ready," said Hayes. "Their offense can change so fast; they may run it from a front-four receiver set one week to a double tight end set the next. I don't know what they might come out to Greensboro with."

Also, this game becomes very important to the Aggies because conference-leading Bethune-Cookman is undefeated and a loss to Howard on Saturday may hurt the Aggies chances of reaching the Heritage Bowl. "We have to win this game; our team is in a must-win situation," Hayes said.

With a win on Saturday the Aggies will move to a 7-1 overall record and, more importantly, a 3-0 conference record going into the Bethune-Cookman game next week in Florida.

A loss this weekend would leave the Aggies hopes of reaching the postseason in the hands of other teams. "We don't want to be the team sitting around waiting, we want to control our own destiny," said Hayes.

Cheering For Excellence

Donna Price

"It doesn’t matter if it’s at football or basketball games, competitions, cheerleading camps or community affairs, the A&T cheering squad shows their school spirit with dignity, pride and a smile. The Blue Team is led by captains Michelle Braundge and Ryan Robinson. They cheer for all the football and men’s basketball games. The Gold Team, led by captains Lamar Fernandez and Ivy Brown, also cheers at the football games, as well as the girls basketball games. They are allowed to cheer for the visiting team if their cheerleaders do not arrive. The cheerleaders have been involved in many activities in which they have received high recognition. From July 3-5, they attended the Champions Cheerleading camp at NC State University. They were named the top coed squad."

Two years ago, they were one of the first black universities considered for national status in cheerleading competition. Other black institutions who tried are Grambling, Howard and Virginia Union. The cheerleaders could not perform with such perfection without coaches Cythia Richardson, a former major, and Melanie Keaton.

"When I first came to A&T, people thought I wanted to change the squad’s style of cheerleading," she says. "However, I just wanted to expand their techniques so they would be familiar and competitive with other schools used all over the U.S."

Keaton has made many attempts to recognize the sport of cheerleading. With the help of Andre James, director of auxiliary services at A&T, she has written a proposal for cheerleading scholarships which will hopefully go into effect no later than the fall of 1992.

Karate Team Wins Tournament

By Carolee Byars

Karate has been the rage. Four members of the A&T karate team earned one out of the five tournaments held in Greensboro.

The Charles Lucas Karate Open was sponsored by Charles Lucas, a well-known Greensboro karate instructor. The students, Sonya Lamb, Matthew Thacker, Wyna Austin and Frank McKinney, participated in the fighting and kata events.

Lamb won first place in the kata competition. He also won first place in his fighting division.

Austin later won first place in the kata and fighting competitions after defending all of the competitions in his division.

Thacker placed first in the blue belt fighting and kata divisions, while McKinney placed first in the white and yellow belt kata and kata competitions.

The A&T Karate team entered the Charles Lucas Karate Open and won eight of the eight trophies. Dr. Gilbert Castilew, the team’s head instructor and coach, said that A&T’s karate team continues to dominate competition in the Southeastern United States.

History Club Builds Dreams, Inspires Excellence

By Stephanie Boone Contributing Writer

If you walk into a history club meeting one day at Glotsch Hall, you may be the only one to talk of where we've been, where we are and where we're going. You may just find a dream there, too. A dream that is helping to make our community better and our children brighter.

Stop in at too of the dream where it all begins. If you walk into the administration building in Morningside on any afternoon, you may find more than an average afterschool study hall. But you'll find Dreambuilders, a tutorial program that is changing Greenboro's future and helping some Aggies to make a difference.

Dreambuilders is a program, which in conjunction with Southeast Greensboro Council, attempts to help students from the Morningside community who have education deficiencies. The program has changed its name and focus many times over the years but has strived to achieve the same goal: help students to succeed.

Now Dreambuilders have Aggies. Students in A&T's history club have been involved with the program for three years. Day after day, they devote their time and hearts to the children by tutoring, enforcing discipline and teaching math and writing skills. The club members, "Our Future with Others," said Venkita Simms, a sophomore who has been a part of the program for a year. "We should educate children to think: it's only when we educate them that our future can look bright."

The president of the history club, Eric Short, said that he is proud that his organization is involved with Dreambuilders.

"Researching our culture as a people and applying it to everyday life is what we're here for," said Short. "The more people work with us, the more people can understand what we do and try to get involved."

The director of Dreambuilders, Kevin Briston, works to improve the program, recruit volunteers and get the necessary funding. Aside from these administrative tasks, Briston always has a dream in mind.

"We need students from three or four different elementary, two middle schools and one high school," said Briston. "They go to school outside of the area communities because of forced busing, which I just against."

"Our objective is to visit the schools and homes and provide after-school support to show that education doesn't stop after you leave the classroom."

Although the students of Dreambuilders all come from the Morningside community, they attend different schools in Greensboro.

"We have students from three or four different elementary, two middle schools and one high school," said Briston. "They go to school outside of the area communities because of forced busing, which I'm against."

"We're trying to get students from all schools to come and make a commitment to help."

"We used to have more people, but now it's only a few of us," said Nicole McFar- lane, an A&T political science major. "We need more than students to help us, we need people who care."

"We need to have more people who care."

The club has come to the rescue, as well. Thomas Brown and Melissa McFarlane worked at the Dream- builders Summer Camp this year.

"The camp was a pretty good experience for me," said Brown.

Homecoming: Not Just A Student Affair

By Dawn Nail

Homecoming at North Carolina A&T is an event that attracts the best and brightest of the North Carolina Homecoming and the best of the Class of 2000 and the future. As can be expected, the activities of the Homecoming are centered around the theme of "not just a student affair." The activities include the Homecoming parade, the Homecoming game, the Homecoming dance, the Homecoming breakfast, the Homecoming luncheon, the Homecoming football game, the Homecoming ball, and the Homecoming weekend festivities.

A&T's Real Aggie

By Lawrence Sherrod Managing Editor

Forget the guy with the dog's head. A&T's real muses is, apparently, Aggie, a year-old, 50-pound male bulldog.

Aggie, who comes from 20 generations of pedigree show dogs, was born in August 1990. He was raised at Cecil's Bulldogs, a breeder of champions both out of Lexington, Kentucky, and at other shows.

Cecil's Bulldogs has bred dogs who have been entered in dog shows all over the country. Aggie's parents were champion-winning bulldogs.

Steven Hurley, the facility manager for the laboratory animal research unit at Webb Hall, describes Aggie as "every- thing a person would want in a dog for a bulldog."

Hurley says that Aggie was purchased by A&T's Pre-Vet Club in conjunction with B.C. Webb and the university.

"He's the first bulldog the university has owned," says Hurley. "Other bulldogs have been here, but not in such a formal role."

Aggie's role in the Homecoming was to accompany the Aggie President's Pre-Vet Club in the Homecoming parade.

Aggie is occasionally brought up for photo opportunities when the bulldogs are around. Aggie has been a regular at the Homecoming games, and he is a regular fixture at the Homecoming dance.

Information for the Around the Block (community news around the A&T area) should be submitted seven days in advance. For further information contact: Stephanie Boone (919) 334-7700.

Students Take Action

By Sonia Lowe

Carpe Nervus Editor

A&T students, in an effort to voice their concerns regarding housing and tuition, attempted a demonstration in front of the Dooley Administration Building on Oct. 16. Lewis Watson, the student liaison to Advisory Board’s cultural affairs chairperson and spokesman for the students who organized the sit-in, explained that the idea for the sit-in came about because students wanted their voices to be heard.

"SUAB had a rag session in front of the Student Center," Watson said. "Someone suggested a sit-in. We all agreed."

Chancellor Edward B. Ford and administrators suggested that a forum be held in Harris-

Auditorium instead.

When the more than 200 students and administrators ended the two and a half hour session, the ground work had been laid for the six hours of discussion that took place. "The meeting set the foundation," Watson said. "At the meetings that followed, we were able to go through five pages of complaints, prioritize the list and then decide when they should be completed." Among the complaints listed were housing conditions, food services and parking.

The meetings were attended by administrators Charles Mcintyre, vice-cholelhor for Business and Finance; Andria James, director of Auxiliary Services; Sullivan Wibben, vice-chair of Student Affairs; James Silber, assistant vice-chair of Student Affairs; Ronald Gates, university engineer; Jonah Smith, Budget Officer-director; Joseph Williams, director of Housing; and Joseph Daughtry, director of Police and Public Safety.

Watson said he was impressed by the administrator’s responses to the issues and their willingness to address the issues.

The SGA executive board and six students representing other campus organizations attended the closed sessions on Oct. 17 and 21.

"It is imperative that we have the largest student turnout at A&T’s history," said Watson.

The next student forum is scheduled for Monday, Oct. 28 at 7 p.m. in Harrison Auditorium. This meeting will allow the student body to express additional concerns and be informed of the deadlines on the complaints list.

Network '90: On The Move

By Lonna Wiggins

Carpe Nervus Editor

Network '90, North Carolina A&T's Communications organization, is constantly on the move to bigger and better things.

The organization was established on October 31, 1989 when five seniors decided it was time for a change in the university's communications department.

The organization was set up so that its members could be exposed to and gain practical experience in their field of study and to stay abreast of new ideas and movements in the communication industry. It was also designed to stimulate a close and friendly relationship with other area organizations.

Today, Network '90 still holds its annual objectives and has earned the respect of the faculty, communication companies and organizations. Since 1990, Network '90 has held its first meeting of the 90-92 school year. During this meeting the group elected new officers for the school year.

The new executive board, made up of four members, is formed by students and members, say they plan to keep Network '90 moving in a positive direction.

Currently Network '90 provides a monthly newsletter entitled "Communication's Voice," to keep students abreast of new trends and movements in the communication industry as well as upcoming events in the department. Network '90 will conduct several fundraisers throughout the year and invites speakers and media professionals to join them and share insights about the industry with students.

Network '90's new officers are Lonna Wiggins - President; Ben Jeffries, Vice President; Jackie Jordan, Secretary; David Langley - Treasurer; Stephanie Boone - Public Information Director; Jessica Garrett - Ms. Network '90; and Scott Un- derwood - Mr. Network '90.

The organization held meetings on the first and third Thursday of each month at 12 noon in room 111 Crosby Hall.

Aggie Netters Improve

By Keith Buell

Carpe Nervus Editor

The Lady Aggie netters won their first game of the season in the MEAC Round Robin Volleyball Tournament held at Dobie’s Sports Center September 19-23.

They went into the competition with a 4-0 record, successfully winning three of five matches to advance them to 3-9.

They defeated Fayetteville State University September 23, but suffered a loss a week later to North Carolina Central University, leaving their overall record at 4-10. Carmen Thomas, the captain of the Aggie netters said the tournament went well.

She enjoyed the friendliness and spirit of the team. Thomas feels the season was up to what it said.

"I feel we have three matches we should have won," said Thomas.

"Overall the team played well at the end."

During the tournament, the team kept its spirit up, played safely and made the game simple.

The Aggie netters defeated the Lady Wildcats of Bethune-Cookman, 15-0, September 18; 15-9,September 19; 15-11, September 20; 15-1, September 21; 15-7, September 22; 15-0, September 23; and Florida A&M, 15-6, September 24.

The Lady Aggie netters were invited to compete in the NCCU Classic September 11-15; 15-11, September 15; 15-5, September 16; 15-6, September 17; 15-0, September 18; 15-4, September 19; 15-1, September 20; 15-0, September 21; 15-11, September 22; and 15-2, September 23.

Educator Turned Entrepreneur

Joseph Williams has been dedicated to educating students for over 33 years. For 20 years he has served as assistant professor at his alma mater, North Carolina A&T State University in the health, and physical education, and recreation department.

Williams commitment to the university will continue with the publication of "A Teachers Education Guide For Use By Student Teachers and Supervising Teachers of Health and Physical Educations." This guide outlines the rules and responsibilities of the student teacher to improve quality and effectiveness. It is available to all students in the department of health and physical education.

"I wanted to make a meaningful contribution to my students, to the health and physical education, and teachers education program before retiring," Williams said. "I felt that this guide will have a tremendous impact to the futures of the educators program."

Williams believes that the guide is representative of the quality of the educational experience that has embodied in his student teachers.

Council Aims For Safety

By Lonna Wiggins

Carpe Nervus Editor

The Student Judiciary Council at North Carolina A&T State University is turning over a new leaf.

The eleven-member council, which was elected by the student body in the 1991 Student Government elections, has plans for a prosperous school year.

Campus safety, a national issue that continuously poses difficulties to most colleges and universities, is one of the issues the council is trying to address through several projects to promote student safety on campus.

The Student Escort Program is one of the projects being coordinated by the council with the help of the University Police Department and is designed to ensure student safety on campus.

The program is being set up so that female students who have night classes will be able to utilize the escort service to get to and from class.

In the past, the Judiciary Council just followed its job description as stated in the Student Handbook.

That description says they have jurisdiction in all cases which involve student behavior, infractions of major social rules, and infractions of university policy as long as they occur within the residence halls.

But this year, the council decided to add new duties by implementing a Crime Prevention Network.

If implemented, the campus police will have a 24-hour hotline number that students can call whenever they witness a crime or are threatened.

The identity of the students will remain a secret and the possibility of a reward is being discussed.

The Judiciary Council will be working closely with Campus Police Department this year in an effort to make A&T a crime-free university.

Players Open With "Fences"

By Michelle Cain
Assistant Editor

The Richard D. Harrison Players of North Carolina A&T State University opened their doors to a large crowd to see the first play of the year. "Fences," directed by A&T acting instructor Frankie Lyons, is the story of a black family in the 1950's trying to put down roots in the hills of a middle-American industrial city that resembles Pittsburgh.

In "Fences," August Wilson tells the story of four generations of black Americans and of how they have passed on a legacy of morals, attitudes and patterns through stories with and without music.

Troy Maxson, the main character, is played by Junius Leake, an A&T graduate.

Troy is born to a sharecropper father who was frustrated by the fact that every crop took him further into debt. The father knew himself as a failure and took it out on everyone around him, including his young son Troy, played by Will Sims, and his wife Rose, played by Natasha Williams.

Troy, an excellent baseball player, learns that in the land of opportunity, chances for a black man are not always equal.

Other starring actors of "Fences" are Theron McDermott (Gymn), Jeff Moore (Bono), Tony Scborough (Gabriel) and Kristen Guo Williams (Raynet).

"Fences" is sponsored by A&T, Alpha Kappa Alpha, Gamma Sigma Sigma, and Sigma Gamma Rho and is directed by Frankie Lyons.

Homecoming Highlights

By Michelle Cain
Assistant Editor

The campus of NCA&T will be crowded this Centennial Homecoming 91, October 25-27.

This year the Aggies have many activities in store for a blustering celebration. The Aggies Homecoming events start early Saturday, October 26, with the "Centennial Parade 91."

The parade will begin at 1000, starting at the East Market Burger King and ending at Aggie Stadium. Miss A&T, campus queens, sororities, fraternities, W.N.A.A. (91.1 FM), alumni and many others will be seen this "Centennial Parade 91."

The Centennial Celebration Comedy Concert featured Martin Lawrence on Tuesday, October 22, in the Currituck Sports Center. You have seen him in House Party 1, on HBO and now see him live on campus. Martin Lawrence, the man will make you cry and laugh at the same time.

A&T sororities and fraternities will be stepping their hearts out at "Stompfest 91," on Friday, October 25 at 8:00 pm in the Currituck Sports Center. The Alphas, Omegas, Deltas, Alpha Kappas, Kappas, Sigma's, Zetas, and Sigma Gama Rho will compete to win the money pot of $500. Make your bet or bid on your favorite first of who you think will step their way into the big money pot.

The Aggies will be rocking all night at the Pre-Dawn Party, Friday October 25 at 8:00 pm in the Currituck Sports Center. The party starts following "Stompfest 91." Prepare yourself for an all night even of Aggie Pride at the Pre-Dawn Party with the A&T Aggies.

REMEMBER, PLEASE DON'T DRINK AND DRIVE!!!

W.N.A.A. (90.1 FM) won the prestigious "College Radio Station Of The Year Award" during the Second Annual Young Black Programmers' Awards Ceremony for the Carolinas Chapter.

The ceremony and masquerade ball was an annual event sponsored by the Carolinas Chapter of the Y.B.P.C. It was held at the Adams Mark Hotel in Charlotte.

Comprised of professional radio broadcasters and record industry executives, the Carolinas Chapter of the Y.B.P.C. recognized achievements of excellence in the radio and record fields by stations and record company representatives operating in North and South Carolina.

W.N.A.A. was nominated because of the high quality of its programming and for the professional manner it provides for announcers, many of whom have gotten jobs at radio stations in top commercial markets across the country.

W.N.A.A. was also cited for its successful "Save Our Stations" Fundraising Campaign which raised $6,000 in one week and prevented the station from going off the air.

Accepting the award, Yvonne Anderson, W.N.A.A. Program & Music Director, praised her staff and the student volunteers who worked together to keep the station on the air.

"We are all excited because a little more than four months ago we were facing the very real possibility of permanently signing off the air," Anderson said. "Our listeners' unselfish giving kept the station from happening and now the industry has recognized our hard work and dedication to excellence."

Also nominated were WSR-FM in South Carolina State University and WJSS-FM at Fayetteville State University.

Last year John contributed to the story.
